Mr. Kahn Is Hopeful.
Mrs. Patterson, Editor.
Drive Money Away?
Foolish Farmer Question.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

BY REQUEST, Otto H. Kahn, who knows business and thinks about it, discusses the present depression:

"It is a world-wide, not a United States, depression. It began, largely, with the peace treaties of 1919 and 1929."

Many little nations were formed. They broke away from the "general flow of trade of the world," with "its liberal and discriminatory regulations and threw impediments across the great highways along which trade had moved for generations."

HOWEVER, MONEY is more abundant than it ever has been, too abundant, possibly.

Important raw materials and commodities are selling at, or below, the cost of production.

In some lines consumption is greater than production. Business must improve in those lines.

We went ahead too fast, improving machinery, junking men. We built up gigantic organizations, faster than we could find men able to manage them. No use building a ship until you have a captain.

Wise Mr. Kahn is not discouraged. He need not be, for he probaoly has $100,000,000.

"America is a nation of 125,000,000 inhabitants, hard working, resourceful, enterprising, with natural advantages such as none other possesses or ever did possess."

Mr. Kahn concludes that "the best guide for forecasting America's future is America's past."

MRS. ELEANOR Medill Patterson, granddaughter of Joseph Medill, founder of the Chicago Tribune, has been appointed by W. R. Hearst as editor-in-chief of the Herald, one of his newspapers published in Washington, D. C.

CONCERNING THIS appointment, Senator Capper, of Kansas, wires:

"I think appointment of Mrs. Patterson as editor-in-chief of the Herald is a great move. She is brilliant woman and I believe will make a great hit as directing editor of the Herald."

"BEST MINDS" want Amtorg, the Russian buying agency, out of the United States, bag and baggage.

It is a virtuous suggestion, probably, but Amtorg in the past nine months has spent $114,000,000 in the United States. This was paid with golden yellow dollars, not with blood red coin. In 1924-1925, according to testimony given yesterday, Amtorg spent $82,000,000 here. In 1928-1929, $138,000,000.

Our industries need that business, workmen need the employment.

"BEST MINDS" that want to throw out Russian business should keep cash and Communism separate, remembering what the wise Lord Beaverbrook said:

"Would Britain buy from Russia? Certainly, why not? We trade with cannibals."

THE HEAD of the American Agricultural Chemical Company reports to President Hoover that use of fertilizers would help the farmer. Intelligent fertilizing would cut the cost of wheat production to 47 cents a bushel.

THE FARMERS might ask:

"Then why don't you let the government operate Muscle Shoals that the people paid for and give us farmers cheap nitrogen, so that we can fertilize our wheat lands at a reasonable cost?"

To that the very complete Republican and Democratic answer is:

"We have a fertilizer trust. You are talking bolshevism."

GLENN H. CURTISS has started on his longest flight. He died in Buffalo yesterday.

The history of his life is part of the history of aviation, 20 years ago, in a plane that no modern pilot would take from the ground, he flew from Albany to New York, winning the Pulitzer prize of $10,000, establishing a long distance record, unbroken for many years.

And now, men fly from ocean to ocean by the light of one day. Curtiss lived to see his hopes and beliefs realized.

DR. WOOD, head of the Crocker Cancer Research Institute, announces the successful growing of cancer cells in a glass tube.

That they are genuine cancer cells is known because, transplanted in the bodies of rats, they produce cancer.

For three thousand years, Dr. Wood says, men have "worked with dead cancer cells. Now for the first time we have them alive, and capable of producing human cancer."

The announcement is important. To hold and study your enemy is a great advantage.

ONE BREAKS LEG IN LONG SLIDE FOR LIBERTY

Guard Bags Other on Verge Of Freedom; State-Wide Hunt on for Prisoner

Only one of three convicts who took a perilous slide down a 50-foot rope from a tower window in the Western Penitentiary early today made good his escape. The two others—one with a broken leg, suffered when he lost his grip on the rope and fell 20 feet to the ground—did not get off the penitentiary property before they were captured.

Convict Preston

A state-wide alarm has been broadcast for the capture of the single member of the trio who got away. He is R. B. Canfield, of North Bessemer, serving 12 years for robbery.

The captured men were Ralph Minter, 29, of Johnstown, and Freeland Preston, 29, of North Bessemer.

BROKEN LEG

Minter, who suffered a broken leg in his attempted escape, was serving four to eight years on a morality charge and would have finished his sentence in June, 1933. Canfield and Preston, both serving six to 12 years for robbery, would have been released in January, 1935.

Convict Minter

Today's escape had been well planned, except that the prisoners had overlooked the presence of a guard on the outside of the wall.

MAKE WAY TO ROOF

They were trusties, and late yesterday had been assigned to repair a fan engine in the basement of the main building, used in the ventilating system. Shortly after 2 a. m. they eluded a guard placed over them, and with a rope stolen from the store room they scaled the rough interior of a vent stack, four feet in diameter, and reached

Seek New Coolidge History; Ban Borglum as 'Editor'

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—Calvin Coolidge is to be asked to write another history of the United States and if he consents Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, will not be allowed to make any revisions.

The former President wrote a 300-word history of the nation to be inscribed on the Mount Rushmore memorial in the South Dakota Black Hills. Borglum, carving the memorial, altered the Coolidge history. It was then disowned by the former President.

Representative Williamson, of South Dakota, secretary to the executive committee of the memorial commission, advised his office today he would come East in September to see Mr. Coolidge. He said the former President would be requested to write the history as he chose and the sculptor would not be allowed to edit it.

Work on the memorial is still in progress.

ITALIAN QUAKE RUINS YIELD 3,000 DEAD

Hurricane at Naples Adds To Terror of Stricken People; Cemeteries Filled

Associated Press.

Latest semi-official figures on yesterday's devastating earthquake in southern Italy placed the number of dead at 3,025 and the injured at 4,264.

To add to the terror of the earth shocks, the city of Naples was swept this morning by a hurrican which drove huge waves ashore and added to the fears of the stricken populace.

Disturbed by the possibility of epidemics, health authorities took precautions against disease and sent out word for anti-tetanus serum and medical supplies.

Sombre Mt. Vesuvius, which stands a stern guard above Naples, added to the fears of some as its summit glowed dully in the sky.

NAPLES, July 24.—(AP.)—Government officials this afternoon expressed the fear that the earthquake death list officially given out at noon as 1,778, might be far exceeded as the count progressed. Unofficial reports said 3,025 bodies had been taken from the ruins throughout the devastated territory.

The same report said that the dead in the volcanic crater city of Melfi were increasing in number every hour as the work of rescue parties in the ruins progressed. The report said the cemeteries in that town had been filled and that 200 bodies had to be taken by train to Foggia for burial.

A hurricane, which at times kicked up what resembled a tidal wave, struck Naples between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning, just after most Neapolitans, shaken by Tuesday's earthquake, were convinced their scares were over for the present.

At the same time the strong wind blew down trees and fragile summer cottages along the coast.

RESIDENTS TERRORIZED

The residents were still nervous over the earthquake and were badly frightened by the newest

BOMB WITNESS' LIFE GUARDED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—(INS.)—Fear that "something might happen" to John MacDonald, confessed perjurer and star witness in the new fight for liberty for Warren K. Billings and Thomas J. Mooney, convicted in the Preparedness Day bombing, was the motivating influence in his removal from San Francisco, it was disclosed today, with MacDonald and his two attorneys, Hilary J. Gans and Charles Ruzicka, of Baltimore, en route for Los Angeles.

They will return in time to take him before the California Supreme Court Tuesday.

"We are not taking any chances," admitted Gans, regarding the removal of MacDonald.

"Other than the anonymous telephone call last Sunday night, warning us that an attempt might be made to poison MacDonald, we have not recieved any further threatening messages. But the Billings and Mooney cases are 'big issues' out here in California, and it behooves us to keep MacDonald safe."

Bar Hoover 'Parade' To Rapidan Camp

WASHINGTON, July 24—(INS.)—President Hoover will resume his week-ending at the Rapidan fishing camp tomorrow.

Because of a near accident to the President's automobile while en route to the camp, several weeks ago, secret service chiefs today decided that the long cavalcade of White House automobiles to and from the camp will be discontinued, and only two of the cars travel together.

DETROIT FACES MARTIAL LAW CLEANUP

Hunt for Buckley's Slayers Spurred by Offer of $7,500 Reward for Their Capture International News Service.

DETROIT, Mich., July 24.—Threats of military rule hovered over Detroit today as state authorities under the direction of Gov. Fred W. Green set out to halt three weeks of gang rule, which were climaxed by the slaying of Gerald E. Buckley, wealthy militant radio announcer.

The reward for capture and conviction of Buckley's slayers was increased to $7,500 today by the offer of $2,500 from the Detroit Times, a Hearst newspaper.

The Council yesterday offered $5,000. James E. Chenot, prosecuting attorney, plans to ask the board of county auditors to post an additional $5,000.

POLICE SHAKE-UP SEEN

A gigantic shakeup in the Detroit Police Department, as a result of the murder, was seen today in demands by city council that Thomas Wilcox resign as commissioner.

Wilcox countered by abolishing the centralized vice squad, a focal point of attack in the successful campaign to recall Mayor Charles Bowles.

The combined forces of city and state authorities started the promised cleanup with raids on the known hangouts of hoodlums, in which 63 men and a woman were arrested and a small arsenal seized.

Police guards have been assigned to protect Mayor Bowles. Others have been posted at the plants of the newspapers here, as a result of anonymous threats that they "will get the same as Buckley if they meddle."

SLAIN BY THREE GUNMEN

Three gunmen strode into the lobby of La Salle Hotel early yesterday morning and shot Buckley dead. Eleven bullets riddled his body.

Buckley, through his political commentaries over radio station WMBC, played an important part in the special election Tuesday which brought about the recall of Mayor Bowles.

Buckley had campaigned vehemently against Bowles from his radio rostrum. He was the elev-

CORA JANE DOWNTON, 19

Miss Downton, 1617 Center avenue, Wilkinsburg, brunette clerk at Mellon Bank, whose uncle has asked police to search for her.

GIRL BANK AIDE DISAPPEARS

For the second time within 18 months search is being made for an employe of the Mellon National Bank mysteriously missing. This time it is Cora Jane Downton, 19, attractive brunette, employed as a clerk in the bank.

Harold Graham, 19, messenger for the bank, disappeared 18 months ago, and no trace of him has ever been found.

POLICE AID ASKED

Police were asked today by Charles E. Koerbel, 120 Bronx avenue, West View, to search for Miss Downton. She disappeared July 16 after visiting her mother at her home, 32 Melrose street, Buffalo. The missing girl made her home at 1617 Center avenue, Wilkinsburg.

The Bureau of Missing Persons was asked today to locate Mrs. Henrietta Demal, 20, of Meadow boulevard, Brentwood. Her grandmother, Mrs. Anna Rant, reported that the young woman disappeared in May, leaving behind her 2-year-old son, Herbert.

Squirrel Hill's Presssure Failure Held Due to Flow To Big Apartment Building

Political pressure lowered the water pressure in Squirrel Hill to the point where residents of Beacon and Bartlett streets, Darlington road and adjoining streets were forced to go out to country clubs to bathe or shave.

In a report to Director Lang today, the superintendent of water distribution said the tapping of Squirrel Hill water lines at low levels always had been protested by the Bureau of Water.

Hundreds of complaints that have been pouring into the City Water Department are due to the fact that John McSorley, builder of the new King Edward apartments, Craig and Bayard streets, opened in May, was able to exert influence to have the Squirrel Hill water main tapped to supply his 10-story apartment building by gravity pressure, while the residents of one of Pittsburgh's most exclusive districts have had to do without water, according to William McCune, of Bartlett street, member of the Scott and McCune Real Estate Company.

"VIOLATED ORDINANCE"

McCune said:

"McSorley was able to have this line tapped, although the ordinance which provided the line provided it exclusively for Squirrel Hill. If he had been made to get his water supply from the proper mains he would have had to put in a system to pump the water in his building.

"The city is laying a line now

INJURIES FATAL TO STADTFELD

Joseph Stadtfeld, Jr., 30, of 5575 Wilkins avenue, son of Judge Stadtfeld, of Common Pleas Court, died in St. Francis Hospital today from injuries suffered in an automobile accident last Friday.

Stadtfeld and Jane Day, 26, of Charleroi, were driving in Bigelow boulevard about 3 a. m., when the car struck a retaining wall and upset at Craig street. Both suffered fractured skulls.

Miss Day's condition was reported as still serious at the hospital today.

Stadfeld's mother and his sister, Mrs. Rae Proctor Magee, are en route home from Europe, where they went to attend the Passion Play.

Mr. Stadtfeld's body will be held to await the arrival of Mrs. Stadtfeld and Mrs. Magee next Wednesday.

Mr. Stadtfeld had studied law at Ann Arbor and was finishing his course at the University of Pittsburgh law school, preparing to take the final examination next December and join his brother, Attorney Harold R. Stadtfeld, who was admitted to the bar on March 1, last, in the practice of law.

Miniature Golf Annoys Woman Spiritualist

A woman, described as a wealthy widow, has asked the Squirrel Hill police to correct conditions at a miniature golf course near her home, because these conditions interfere with her spiritual communion with her late husband.

The police made known today that she had complained by letter, signing herself, Mrs. X. She points out that the spirits have refused to function in the face of the electric lights and the hilarious conversation which attend the pruned golf festivities.

Before the miniature golf era she had no trouble conversing with her husband's spirit, she wrote.

HARRIS BACKS PINCHOT AS PARTY'S 'CHOSEN NOMINEE'

WON FAIRLY IN PRIMARY, HE SAYS

Ex-Governor Speaks Tonight At Wilkes-Barre; Will Sound Call to Voters

State Senator Frank J. Harris today announced that he would support Gifford Pinchot for governor at the general election regardless of the Supreme Court's decision in the Luzerne County perforated ballot dispute. Harris supported the Davis-Brown ticket in the primary.

Francis Shunk Brown, Pinchot's principal opponent in the primary election, has appealed to the Supreme Court to throw out the ballots of Luzerne County, which would give Brown the Republican nomination.

CITES PLURALITY

Harris pointed out that Pinchot received a 20,000 plurality at the primary and that no charge of fraud has been made. The attempt to take the nomination from Pinchot is based on an alleged technical violation of the election laws, Harris declared in this statement:

"I always have supported at a general election every candidate for any office who received a majority or a plurality of the votes cast for the nomination for that office at the Republican primary election.

SEES PINCHOT NOMINEE

"At the next November election I am going to support Gifford Pinchot for Governor. At the primary he received 20,000 votes more than his principal opponent, and I firmly believe that he is the Republican nominee. No charge has been made that his nomination was obtained by fraud, and the attempt made to take the nomination away from him is based on an alleged technical violation of the election laws, the purpose of which was not to commit fraud but actually to prevent the commission of fraud.

"No matter what the decision of the Supreme Court may be, it will not alter the fact that Gov. Pinchot is the choice of the Republican voters, and the attempt to deprive him of the Republican nomination is unfair, unsportsmanlike and un-American. If the decision of the Supreme Court deprives him of the Republican nomination and he is forced to be a candidate on an independent ticket, I will still feel that he really is the Republican nominee and will give him my support.

SUPPORTED BROWN

"I supported Francis Shunk Brown in the primaries because of my long personal friendship and my belief that he was fully qualified for the office of Governor. In my opinion he was fairly and squarely defeated and I believe that every Republican who participated in the primary should now support the candidate who received a plurality of the votes cast."

PINCHOT SPEAKS TONIGHT

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., July 24 (AP.)—Gifford Pinchot will sound his call to the voters of Pennsylvania for the fall election in a speech at the "victory banquet" to be tendered him tonight by the Republican committee of Luzerne County.

Provisions have been made for 1,000 guests, including chairmen and vice-chairmen of the Pinchot organization in the eastern part of the state, and numerous political leaders from various parts of Pennsylvania.

The former governor chose Luzerne for the sounding of his battle cry because of the important part this county has played in the primary contest. The 25,000 plurality he received here wiped out Francis Shunk Brown's margin of victory, and in the same county the perforation of ballots as a guard against frauds is the technicality which the Brown forces have brought into play in the hope of winning a gubernatorial nomination for the Philadelphian.

2 Escaped Convicts Captured in Illinois

JOLIET, Ill., July 24.—(INS.)—Two convicts who had escaped from the Stateville Penitentiary, near here, yesterday, were captured today at Oswego, Ill., following an all-night search by state and county police.

The men, Arthur Dill, 31, sentenced to serve from 10 years to life for robbery with a gun, and Chester Davis, 25, sent up from Du Page County in 1927 for burglary, escaped in the automobile of a prison foreman.

2 Prisoners Flee Rockview Prison

the roof, 50 feet above the basement. Tieing one end of the rope around a pipe, they threw it over the side of the wall into the prison yard.

Canfield was the first down. Minter followed, but when half way down he lost his hold on the rope and fell, breaking his right leg. He was found two hours later in a clump of bushes on the prison property.

CAPTURED BY GUARD

Preston was the last to descend. As he reached the ground William Dunn, a guard patroling the outside wall, saw him and covered him with a revolver. He was led back into the prison and sent to the hospital for treatment for his hands, seriously burned and torn by sliding down the rope.

Dunn said he saw Canfield as he was holding Preston, but that his gun jammed as he tried to stop the fugitive.

As soon as the escape was discovered an alarm was broadcast and scores of police and detectives began closing in from all sections of the district, in hopes of bagging the missing Canfield and Minter. Dunn, returning to the outside after seeing Preston in the hospital, began searching the river bank. In the bushes he found Minter, moaning from pain of the broken leg.

FUGITIVE DESCRIBED

Canfield was described by prison officials as being 5 feet 11½ inches tall, with light brown eyes and hair, medium dark complexion and an eagle tatooed on his left arm.

Warden Stanley Ashe characterized the men as "trusties gone wrong." Prior to their break for liberty all had borne good records in the prison, he said.

Prison officials today said additional time could be added to the sentences of Minter and Preston.

Edwin C. May, president of penitentiary trustees, with other members of the board, today made an informal investigation of the escape. No meeting of the board is expected for several days.

Says Slot Machine Was Forced Upon Him

A slot-machine agent insisted on putting a nickel-device in the grocery and confectionery store of J. W. McRoberts at 548 Baldwin street, Hays, McRoberts testified in South Side Police Court today.

McRoberts said:

"Last Monday a man who said he was Tom Graham brought a machine to my store and placed it in a rear room. He said he would leave it there for a few days and be back for it later.

"As soon as he left I threw it into the back yard."

McRoberts testified in the case of James Monaghue, 45, of Mirror street, arrested last night after a patrolman had found the machine, on suspicion that Monaghue might have stolen it from the store. Magistrate John J. Sweeney discharged Monaghue for lack of evidence.

The magistrate quizzed Patrolman Frank Neil, who made the arrest.

"Did you ever see a slot machine in McRoberts' place?"

"No, though I don't look out for them particularly."

"If you saw one, would you seize it?"

"Not unless ordered to do so by my lieutenant."

CARMEN VOTING ON 6-DAY WEEK

Twenty-eight hundred conductors and motormen of the Pittsburgh Railways Company are voting today on a proposition to work a 6-day week, and so afford employment to extra men, but neither side would forcast the outcome.

The plan, it is stated, was presented to the company by Division 85 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, of which the men are members.

The voting began at 9 a. m., in the various street car barns at which the men report, and will continue until 5 o'clock this afternoon. Secretary P. J. McGrath expects the results to be made known about 8 o'clock tonight. The men have been working on a seven-day week basis.

The proposition of a 6-day week, to aid extra men because of a decrease in traffic, was put up to Vice President Thomas Fitzgerald recently. It would keep employed about 300 men threatened with unemployment because of a reduction in car operations and increased use of one-man cars.

27 Motorists Face Traffic Violations

Twenty-seven motorists were arraigned in Traffic Court today in the crusade against violation of the auto laws. Seven were freed, five fined and 15 held over.

AUDITOR FACES QUIZ IN STEEL MERGER

International News Service

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 24.—George O. May, senior partner of Price, Waterhouse & Co., New York accountants who made the audit incident to the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with Bethlehem Steel Corporation, will be called to the witness stand late this afternoon or tomorrow to explain the basis upon which stock exchange was arranged in the merger.

ATTACK CONTINUED

This announcement was made today by anti-merger attorneys as they continued their attack in Common Pleas Court here on the legality of proxies and ballots voted for the merger at the famous Sheet and Tube stockholders' meeting last April 8.

May's testimony is expected to bring the trial of the spectacular injunction suit against the merger to one of its most important stages.

The original recommendation of Price, Waterhouse and Company was on the basis of one-half shares of Bethlehem common stock for each share of Sheet and Tube common. The final agreement, upon which the merger was approved, was the exchange of one and one-third shares of Bethlehem for each share of Sheet and Tube stock.

RECORDS ON WAY

Working papers from which Price, Waterhouse and Company made their computations on the stock exchange basis, were en route from New York today, it was said. Anti-merger attorneys declared they would introduce the papers into the court records of the trial immediately.

SHOT ADMIRER'S WIFE, PEERESS ADMITS

Lady Owen, Held in France, Blames Tragedy on Money Loaned to Victim's Mate

VERSAILLES, July 24.—(AP.)—Lady Owen, the wealthy French-born widow of Sir Theodore Charles Owen, under arrest for shooting the wife of Dr. Paul Gastaud, Paris raidologist, appeared before a magistrate this morning. She declared:

"The question of money ruined my romance."

Mme. Leone Gastaud, the victim, lies near death in her husband's clinic at Paris. She has two bullets in her abdomen and one in her chest. A fourth bullet grazed her breast.

Lady Owen told Judge Latrille she had loaned Dr. Gastaud 100,000 francs for his clinic. She continued:

"That, in my opinion, was what began to spoil things."

When the doctor told her of his intention to break with her, she said, she became so angered she bought a revolver.

When she arrived at the Marly-leroy home of the Gastauds, a friend and associate of the doctor tried to reason with her. She declared:

"I wished however, at all costs to see Mme. Gastaud, who was in her garden, embroidering.

"When Mme. Gastaud came to meet me, I fired several times at her through my silk shawl"

Lady Owen appeared quite calm and confident. As she was waiting in the anteroom, she lighted one gold-tipped cigaret after another. Between times she was busy with her vanity case, touching up her heavily rouged lipes.

She fully expected to be released immediately and was much surprised when the judge told her she must go back to jail.

EXTORTION CHARGED

A possible motive for the latest murder was seen by police today in the revelation of an unnamed gangster that the radio announcer had extorted $4,000.

Police Commissioner Wilcox said he had received a sworn statement from the racketeer stating that Buckley had induced him to get into the alcohol game, and then had demanded money from him.

Police accepted the extortion story as a possible explanation of the slaying. Buckley's associates, headed by the victim's brother, Paul, insisted he was killed because of his espousal of the mayoralty recall. Others believed his continued attacks on gangsters offered a motive.

'Hard-Boiled Army' Aids Quake Victims

MELFI, Italy, July 24.—(AP.)—Hard-boiled soldiers of the "Disciplinary Company" stationed here as a penalty for various forms of misconduct, proved themselves tender-hearted heroes in ministering to the injured and terror-stricken inhabitants of this mountain city.

The so-called "bad boys of the army" have redeemed themselves a hundred times over by the prodigious work they have performed and their pardons have been recommended to the King.

Italy's King Ready To View Quake Ruins

ROME, July 24.—(INS.)—King Victor Emmanuel is leaving Rome tonight to visit the regions devastated by the earthquake, it was announced here today.

The King's cousin, the Duchess of Aosta, as well as other members of the royal family, already are aiding in the rescue work and administering to the injured and homeless.

Pope Sends Agent Into Quake Zone

VATICAN CITY, July 24.—(INS.)—Pope Pius XI took steps today to aid victims of the Italian earthquake.

REPUBLICANS AWAIT MOVE BY HUSTON

Eager for Chairman to Quit, Party Leaders Seek Way To Let Him Down Easily

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—Republican politicians said today that definite developments were expected tomorrow in the case of Claudiss Huston, who has been expected to quit as Republican National chairman for some time.

James Francis Burke, committee counsel, and Joseph R. Nutt, its treasurer, hastened to New York and saw Huston. They came back and talked with President Hoover today.

Afterward it was understood Huston expected to come to Washington tonight or tomorrow, to make his delayed announcement.

Burke said, after his departure from the White House by a side door:

"We can say nothing!

"However, we are confident things will work out to the best interest of all concerned very quickly now."

Everyone expects Houston to resign, but how it is to be brought about is the problem. He has told party leaders if he gets out, he wants to get out of his own will.

Consequently, it is believed that when he returns to Washington, Huston will announce he is calling the executive committee together. This will leave him free to resign at his own pleasure, probably when the executive committee meets late in August or early in September.

Burke and Nutt, who have been among those insisting Huston must go, emphasized today that they had no hard feelings toward the chairman.

outburst of nature. Many of them had spent a restless night in the parks and public squares, afraid to return to their homes because of the possibility of new quakes.

The storm subsided as quickly as it arrived, and a dreary drizzle set in.

An impressive funeral was held for the four persons who died in Naples as a result of the quake and in commemoration of the two who were killed at Salerno and one at Triani.

HUGE DEATH TOLL

ROME, July 24.—(AP.)—Reports tabulated by government officials up to 11 o'clock this morning showed that the terrific earthquakes of Tuesday in Southern Italy took 1,788 lives and injured 4,264.

The toll, meanwhile, was growing hourly as fresh reports were received from the stricken regions of bodies being recovered from the ruins of crumbled buildings.

Houses destroyed were placed at 3,188, with 2,757 others damaged.

The Ministry of the Interior, which gave out the figures, had great difficulty in obtaining them from provincial prefects, who were unwilling to give out even approximate totals and appeared greatly incensed at what they considered exaggerated reports published abroad.

AVELLINO STRICKEN

Late return from the province of Avellino, showing 1,391 deaths, raised the figure from the previous unofficial estimate of 679.

Among the damaged buildings is the royal palace at Caserta.

All flags were ordered at half-mast in Naples and vicinity today, and the example is likely to be followed all over the country.

Premier Mussolini intends to call a council of ministers into session soon to take emergency measures.

American Tells of Quake Tossing Him From Bed

NAPLES, July 24.—(INS.)—A vivid description of how the earthquake which rocked Naples and surrounding territory appeared to an American tourist was given to International News Service here today by Webster James, of Chattanooga, Tenn.

James was interviewed at the Grand Hotel, one of Naples' best-known establishments, which because of its comparatively modern construction escaped serious damage when the series of temblors rocked the city. He is visiting Naples with a party of friends. He said:

"We were in bed and asleep when the first violent quake came a few minutes after 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The shock threw us right out of bed onto the floor.

"The whole city was in inky blackness. People swarmed the promenade along the sea, well out of the reach of buildings that threatened to collapse. Many of them had on only a few pieces of clothing, donned hurriedly when the first shock came, and there were some who had nothing but blankets thrown over their night clothes.

"The night air was chilly, however, and we decided it would be more comfortable in bed. As there seemed to be no further danger, we returned to the hotel."

The scores of American tourists in Naples seem to be getting a thrill out of the incident, and there is no trace of fear or panic among the visitors. Nor are there any indications of hastening departures.

BLUE LAW HERE MOST DRASTIC IN COUNTRY

38 States Have 'Liberal' Sunday, Kiwanis Club Told By Musmanno, After Poll

The Blue Law of Pennsylvania stands out as the most severe restriction of Sunday observance in the United States, a survey of the Sunday laws and their enforcement among the 48 states has disclosed, Assemblyman W. A. Musmanno, speaker at the luncheon of the Kiwanis Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel, declared today.

Thirty-eight states permit Sunday sports and amusements in one form or another, but Pennsylvania is the strictest of the remaining 10, according to the survey, Musmanno asserted.

DECLARED DEAD LETTER

He said he had communicated with the attorney general of each state, in an effort to determine accurately the attitude of every state on the subject of Blue Laws, and from their replies found that by an overwhelming majority the Blue Law is a dead letter.

The attorney general poll revealed that "local option" is a popular method of disposing of the question of Blue Laws, according to Musmanno, who said he had particularly referred the chief counsel of each state on the matter of sectional referendums. Musmanno will present a bill, at the 1931 session of the Legislature, providing for "local option" on the Blue Law in each county, borough and township of Pennsylvania for its own regulation.

LOCAL OPTION STATES

Musmanno listed as "local option" states Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina, Ohio, Rhode Island and Wisconsin. So called "widely open" Sunday states are Colorado, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Oklahoma, Utah and Wyoming.

States listed in the "liberal" column by Musmanno were Indiana, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, New York, North Dakota, South Carolina, South Dakota and Washington.

Some states have drastic Sunday laws, but they are ignored, he said. They include Tennessee, Texas, Alabama, Kansas, Minnesota and New Jersey.

SHOUSE DENIES LEGGE CHARGE

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee, denied in a statement issued today that Democratic criticism of the Federal Farm Board was "political bunk" and termed Chairman Legge's recent assertion to that effect an "alibi." Shouse said:

"The farmers who are selling 60-cent wheat to pay for their harvesting machinery are complaining, not the Democratic National Committee or the Democratic orators. There is nothing political in the almost nation-wide censure of the Farm Board and the discrepancy between what it is supposed to do and what it has accomplished.

"The Democratic National Committee and the orators mentioned by Mr. Legge did not write the quotations of the present prices of wheat, corn and cotton in the daily market reports, which are neither political nor 'bunk.' These are the record of Mr. Legge's Farm Board's failure to effect the purposes of its creation."

Coolidge Wants Standard Of Living Kept Up in U. S.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 24.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Some say we cannot go on maintaining a higher standard of living for our people than that enjoyed in other nations. We have done so for generations. That is the fact. The theory that it cannot continue may be no better than the theory that it will last indefinitely. Some nation always has taken the lead.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

But supposing we shall finally reach the same position as others. That is no reason why we should now relinquish our supremacy and descend to their level. It is our business to make our conditions the best as long as we can. We would not be justified in tamely surrendering our treasure now because at some time it may be exhausted.

To become equal to others we must go down or they must go up. For us to go down would not in itself raise others.

Our example of a free and prosperous people has been the sovereign remedy for world oppression. The truth is our trade regulations are more fair to others than theirs are to us. And what is of chief importance is the great service we render by giving credits and furnishing markets. The higher our standards, the greater our progress, the more we do for the world.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

TRACE LOTTERY DEATH CHECKS

County Detective Michael Stabile today expected to turn over to District Attorney Andrew T. Park checks given "numbers writers" by Antonio Bancale, who killed himself Saturday because of lottery losses.

Through the checks Park hopes to establish the identity of the racketeers to whom Bancale paid his savings. More raids were also expected in Park's war on the "numbers writers," as detectives continued the investigation of the ramifications of the "racket."

While Park continued his search for the "higher-ups in the numbers racket," Public Safety Director James M. Clark was to receive a report from his men who are investigating the McArdle - Goslin - Levandowski controversy on the South Side.

Special investigators were said to be busy checking reports that "Hunky Joe" Levandowski had muscled in on Thomas (Goose) Goslin's South Side racket, and that Levandowski is now the South Side lottery head.

Clark said we would make no announcements on the South Side controversy until his men have completed their investigation.

He said:

"If I find Inspector McArdle (South Side police head) was in any way connected with this lottery, I will fire him immediately."

Einstein and Mme. Curie Have Animated Chat

GENEVA, July 24.—(AP.)—A lively chat between Albert Einstein, German physicist, and Mme. Marie Curie, French co-discoverer with her husband of radium, attracted a crowd in the lobby of the League of Nations secretariat.

The celebrated scientists are attending a session of the League of Nations Committee on Intellectual Co-operation. As they talked they smiled, and the onlookers wished they might have a stenographic record of what they were saying.

TRAIL FUGITIVE IN DYNAMITING

because it was feared the mental anguish and shock might be too much for her, in her present condition.

Jean, 10, and Betty, 8, the other two children who were sleeping in the same room with their mother, escaped injury in the blast which tore their little frame home to shreds.

State Police Sergt. James V. Buckley, in charge of the Troop A detachment at Ebensburg, is directing the search for the fugitive father. It is Sergt. Buckley's opinion that Langham is hiding in the dense forests between Barnesboro and Cherry Tree.

Buckley expressed the fear that Langham may still have in his possession several sticks of dynamite.

The fugitive was believed to have suddenly gone insane as a result of failing health and jealousy.

Deputy Coroner Russell R. Yost, of Johnstown, visited the scene of the dynamiting late yesterday. He impaneled a jury from among the miners and spectators to be found around the wrecked bungalow and held an inquest into the two deaths. The verdict read.

"Deaths resulting from an explosion of dynamite placed under the room in which they slept."

It recommended that the father, Perry Langham, be apprehended on a charge of murder.

Brother, Stepson Cut Off With $5 Each; Money To Educate Unemployed

International News Service.

CINCINNATI, July 24.—Bequeathing what the law allows to his divorced wife and $5 each to a brother and stepson, James Eads How, "millionaire hobo," left the balance of his $1,000,000 estate to the "Workers of the World," it was revealed today.

Nicholas Klein, attorney friend of How, who died at Staunton, Va., on Tuesday, said How had drawn up the will here two weeks ago.

TELLS OF WILL

Klein said that on July 13 he received word to go to the Union Depot here, and there he found How, in shabby clothes and suffering from self-starvation. He took the "millionaire hobo" to his home, Klein said, and at How's request drew up his will.

Klein is named executor of the will. He said How's request that the money be used for the "sole use and benefit of the Workers of the World, especially for the education of the unemployed," would be followed.

A period of 30 days of mourning for How will be carried on by the International Itinerant Hoboes of America, Jeff Davis, one of the officials of the organization, announced.

VERDICT NEAR IN BABY MIXUP

CHICAGO, July 24.—(INS.)—In the role of a modern Solomon, Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, health commissioner, today will announce the decision of a corps of prominent scientists enlisted to straighten out the Bamberger-Watkins baby mixup, which has puzzled the parents of both infants.

Statements from several of the scientists have indicated the infant now known as the son of William Watkins will become officially the son of Charles Bamberger and vice versa. Fingerprints, however, refuted this conclusion.

The parents of both babies have promised the health commissioner they will abide by the decision reached by the experts.

A few days after the births of the two infants the Bambergers found a tag bearing the name Watkins on the baby they took home from the hospital. A similar marker with the name Bamberger was found on the supposed Watkins child. The babies were born in Englewood Hospital on the same afternoon.

The scientific tests included studies of the hair and skin, comparative skull, nose, ear and face measurements of babies and parents and reflex tests.

WATER SCARCITY HERE BLAMED ON POLITICS

on Beacon street from Schenley Park, but it isn't helping us any yet," McCune said. "I appeared before the city engineers and laid these facts before them. They agreed with me, but said that they did not have anything to do with giving McSorley the permit to tap the main."

James H. Kennan, superintendent of water distribution, today reported to Director Lang his findings on extra tap connections. The report reads:

"The Squirrel Hill district is supplied by the following lines: A 12-inch line on Forbes street to Beechwood boulevard, said about 1900; one 20-inch, Fifth avenue to Morewood to Forbes and Aylesboro, laid during 1923; one 20-inch line on Forbes street to Schenley Park with distributing lines to Beacon, Bartlett streets, Murray and Shady avenues, laid in 1914.

ORDINANCE CITED

"In this connection nothing was said in the ordinance which provided for the laying of these lines, that there should be no taps made at the lower elevations, although the bureau of water has always protested aginst same being done.

"Our records show that the following connections have been made to the Herron Hill system in the Oakland district excluding the Schenley Farms district: No. 1, Carnegie Library, 4-inch connection about 1900, no data avilable; No. 2, Schenley Hotel, 4-inch connection about 1900, no data vilable; No. 3, Schenley Apartments, 6-inch connection December 18, 1922, granted by Director Charles H. Finley; No. 4, Webster Hall, 4-inch connection, laid August 24, 1926, granted by Director Edward G. Lang (Note: The buolding also has a low pressure connection); No. 5, Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, connection made February 27, 1928, granted by Charles M. Reppert, chief engineer D. P. W., acting for Lang; No. 6, New King Edward (McSorley Apartments), 4-inch connection granted April 11, 1930, by Director Lang."

LANG'S STATEMENT

Director Lang of the Public Works Department issued a formal statement on the matter today. He said:

"The water connection at the new King Edward Apartments has absolutely no bearing on the Squirrel Hill water situation.

"We did there what we will do, and have done, for every citizen that tries to advance the welfare of the city by building.

"There is no lack of water for Squirrel Hill or anywhere else. Our reservoirs are filled. There is, however, insufficient pressure for Squirrel Hill, especially when the people there are using hundreds of lawn sprinklers.

"We are trying to remedy the pressure and will do that as soon as possible. There is nothing unusual in the fact this line was tapped for the King Edward apartments. That was done for Webster Hall and many other places. It will be done for anybody, irrespective of political pressure.

M'SORLEY NOT IN OFFICE

McSorley could not be reached at his office today. However a spokesman for him said:

"We are not even on the main line to Squirrel Hill. We are on a by-pass line. The Schenley Apartments and Webster Hall are on the main line. They were on it before we were cut in and we are entitled to be on the line if they were. There has been a water shortage in parts of Squirrel Hill for 15 years. The supply never has been kept up according to the growth of the district. The Department of Public Works is just now completing a line that will give service. We use three booster pumps in our new apartment to supply water above the fourth floor. I do not believe that cutting in of the buildings in Oakland on the Squirrel Hill line would have much effect on the pressure in the water lines for they have been inadequate for years."

Meanwhile, residents of the King Edward Apartments, a 10-story building containing 68 apartments, luxuriated in plenty of water clear up to the top floor, while the residents of Squirrel Hill tried to coax a few drops from the tap in the basement.

Mormons Celebrate Founding of Church

PALMYRA, N. Y., July 24.—(AP.)—A four-day period of pioneer services in commemoration of the organization of the Church of Latter Day Saints and the eighty-third anniversary of the Mormon pioneers' entrance into the valley of Great Salt Lake, began today at the National Shrine of Mormonism—the Joseph Smith farm near this village, where Smith told his followers 100 years ago he had climbed the Hill of Cumorah under heavenly direction and unearthed a volume of gold plates containing the record of a lost American civilization and the tenets of "the true religion."

CURTISS BURIAL TOMORROW

HAMMONDSPORT, N. Y., July 24.—(INS.)—Here, in the picturesque village of Hammondsport known locally as the "cradle of aviation," Glenn H. Curtiss, world-famous aviation pioneer who died unexpectedly in a Buffalo hospital, will be buried from his home here at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

It was here, at the old race track, on July 4, 1908, that he electrified the world by making the first officially-observed airplane flight of one mile in a box-like contraption he named the "June Bug."

The body of Mr. Curtiss was brought here early today from Buffalo, where he died suddenly yesterday morning.

He had undergone an operation for chronic appendicitis in Buffalo General Hospital two weeks ago, and as recently as Monday his condition was regarded as favorable. Yesterday he relapsed into a coma, and death came quickly.

Fells Woman With Cat; It's 'Cruelty To Animals'

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP.)—After knocking a woman down with a cat which he swung by the tail, Charles Bronowitz, a 37-year-old longshoreman, was sentenced to 15 days in the workhouse after trial on a charge of cruelty to animals.

A patrolman who heard the woman's screams, arrested the longshoreman. Bronewitz pleaded guilty, but protested that his treatment of the cat was due entirely to the fact that he had been drinking. The woman, who just happened to be passing by during the cat-swinging, did not appear in court.

Says U. S. Agents Shot Man in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, July 24.—(AP.)—The district judge at Juarez has reported to the department of justice that Felix Garcia, Mexican rum-runner, shot several days ago near Juarez by American prohibition officers, had met his fate on Mexican territory.

The judge said the case would be given to the department of foreign relations for a protest to the United States Government.

MARSHAL FINDS WIFE SLAIN

AKRON, O., July 24.—(AP.)—The body of a woman with head and limbs detached, found in a blackberry patch near Hudson, O., yesterday, was identified by Marshal Clyde Smith, of North Randall, O., as that of his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Smith, who had been missing from home since June 16.

Apparently Mrs. Smith had been murdered by shooting about three weeks ago.

West Virginia Jury Dooms Man to Die

LEWISBURG, W. Va., July 24.—(AP.)—A verdict of murder in the first degree without recommendation for mercy was returned in Greenbrier County Circuit Court against Roosevelt Darnell for the slaying of Clarence Holbrook near Auto on June 8. The verdict makes the death sentence mandatory.

The defense contended Darnell was intoxicated and did not know what he was doing when he killed Holbrook.

$440,000 DOPE SEIZED ON SHIP

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Seizing 100 kilos—about 220 pounds—of morphine in a secret raid on the Black Diamond liner Inoko, docked at Hoboken, the newly-formed Bureau of Narcotics delivered its first major stroke at the drug smuggling trade in the drug smuggling trade in the United States Saturday, it was learned in treasury circles today.

At the prevailing wholesale bootleg price of $125 per ounce, the seizure represented $440,000. At the prevailing retail or "street" price of $1 for a "cube" of one and one-half grains, the shipment would have brought a total of $1,038,000.

The seizure was the largest in the last two years, the last of equal size being that found on the French liner Rochambeau in 1928.

The raid, it was learned, was conducted with the utmost secrecy and was the result of a long trail which narcotics officers have followed through half the country. It was led by Joseph A. Manning, with the co-operation of Special Customs Agent Gregory W. O'Keefe.

Discovering that an important drug importing gang was expecting a shipment of morphine from Antwerp, the agents, under orders of Acting Commissioner Harry J. Ansinger, discovered 10 cases of supposed electrical equipment from that port and upon investigation found that three of the cases contained the morphine.

U. S. BARS RUM IN CONSULATES

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP)—Bubbling champagnes and choice wines at governmental expense are forbidden luxuries in American embassies and consulates abroad, under an executive order just signed by President Hoover.

The order cites in detail regulations governing the disbursement by nearly 100 American diplomatic and consular missions abroad of allowances recently voted by Congress for official entertaining.

In addition to liquors, three other items are tabooed under the order—hire and repair of automobiles, printing and engraving expenses and club dues.

3 BANK ROBBERS TO DIE FRIDAY

KANSAS CITY, July 24.—(AP)—Three gunmen who shot a path through a Republican National Convention crowd June 14, 1928, to escape after robbing the Home Trust Company today faced the certainty of death on the gallows Friday morning.

Gov. Henry S. Caulfield announced yesterday he would not stay the triple execution of the bandits, condemned for the slaying of Patrolman James H. ("Happy") Smith.

The men under death sentence are Tony ("Lollypop") Mangiaracina, Carl Nasello, and John Messino, driver.

Sees Black Shoes As Style for Fall

Black shoes will be in the majority this fall, Nathan L. Weiss, sales director of Wise Shoes, Inc., forecasts. Mr. Weiss believes this will be the result of the present careful and economical buying that prevails on the part of the public today. There will be some demand for browns to match brown costumes. Suedes will be the fashion during early fall while the kids, rajah and calcutta lizards will also play a prominent part in the fall fashions.

COAST GUARDS WOUND TWO

WOODS HOLE, Mass., July 24.—(AP)—Coast Guard patrol boat 2387 fired upon the yacht Marge off Bourne early yesterday, wounding two of the six men aboard her. Frederick Stone and Daniel Conway, both of New Bedford, received machine gun bullet wounds in the legs. The Marge, owned by Howard Jackman, of Salem, was held here pending orders from Boston on a charge of rum-running, and the men were released.

Differing versions of the affair were given. Stone, one of the wounded men, declared the patrol boat had flashed its searchlight on the yacht and opened fire with the machine gun without further warning. He said he was a passenger on the Marge and denied there was any rum aboard.

Commander F. A. Nichols, of Base 18, asserted the Marge was well known as a rum runner to the Coast Guard and said every effort had been made to halt the craft before firing on her.

You Are Urged to Visit Our New Department of

STYLTHRIFT Furniture

It has been our aim for a number of years to broaden our stocks of the less expensive furniture. During this time we have been making efforts to develop Horne-grade furniture in the lower price ranges, with the co-operation of our regular manufacturers. It was impossible to secure styles and quality to our taste and standards in ample variety in any other way.

This year has seen our plans put into execution. We have been aided, of course, by a highly competitive market and by the low prices of commodities in general. Without deviating from Horne standards, we have developed the styles of finer furniture and had them reproduced on a lower cost basis.

Today we opened our new department of Stylthrift Furniture. Here we have assembled in one large section on our remodeled sixth floor, more extensive assortments of inexpensive furniture than we have ever shown. This furniture will meet the requirements of many thousands of small homes with limited incomes, as to style, size and price.

We hope you will visit this new section of STYLTHRIFT furniture tomorrow. See how practical and attractive the furniture is, how low the prices are.

ERK TO CONSULT WITH HOOVER

WASHINGTON July 24.—(AP)—Edmund F. Erk, who served the late Representative Stephen G. Porter of Pittsburgh, as secretary for 20 years said he would discuss his candidacy to succeed to Porter's seat with President Hoover today. Erk called at the White House yesterday and was given an appointment by Walter Newton, one of the President's secretaries.

When Porter became chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee in 1919, Erk was made clerk of the committee and is serving in that capacity at present. The chairmanship of the committee was assigned to Representative Henry W. Temple of Washington, Pa., who told his colleagues he desired to have Erk made a member of the committee if elected.

Whether Erk will be named the Republican Party's nominee depends, it was said here, on the outcome of an early meeting of the Thirty-second Congressional District Republican Committee. It was understood here the Republican and Democratic district committees would select candidates who will contest for the seat in the November 4 general election.

FORD SENDS M'GUFFEY'S

MISS ELIZABETH REED WITH M'GUFFEY'S READER

Miss Reed, now 90, with one of the reprint copies of McGuffey's readers sent her by Henry Ford. She once taught school from them—back in the days when Ambridge was Economy, Pa.

TEACHER GETS FORD BOOKS

Back in the days when Ambridge was Economy and the Union was near the splitting point, a young school ma'arm, Miss Elizabeth Reed, was cramming knowledge into youngsters of Economy, with only McGuffey's reader and the Bible as her texts.

Today Miss Reed is 90, and has left the Beaver Valley for the Reformed Presbyterian Church Home for the Aged, Perrysville avenue. Though she's a bit too old to teach, she still has a McGuffey reader. Henry Ford sent it to her, for Mr. Ford also is convinced of the book's merits.

Miss Reed says it came about this way: One of her nephews learned last year that Ford had made reprints of the old school book. He wrote to Mr. Ford that his aunt had taught the text, but had given her original copies to children. Shortly a set of six readers was delivered to Miss Reed at the Home in Perrysville avenue.

In return for the set Miss Reed mailed Ford a scrap book stuffed with songs and poetry written during the Civil War, which she had collected. The automobile builder was glad to get the scrap book and in return mailed her another set of the readers.

Miss Reed's mind still is clear as she tells of the days when William H. McGuffey, author of the readers, taught in Darlington Academy, Beaver County. It was at the same institution that she was initiated into the mysteries of her favorite literature.

Wales' Flight Off, Crash Fear Hinted

LONDON, July 24.—(AP)—A flight that the Prince of Wales was to have made to Carnavon to open the Royal Welsh agricultural show has been canceled. 2 INQUIRIES ON IN CAR CRASH

An investigation was begun today by the major accident committee of the Pittsburgh Railways to fix responsibility for the street car collision at Butler street and Penn avenue yesterday, in which 28 passengers were hurt. The city also is conducting an inquiry.

The company's men, as well as outsiders, are being interrogated with a representative of the Street Railway Men's union present. The inquiry is under the immediate direction of J. M. Loftis, superintendent of transportation.

Edward Bain, motorman of the Butler street car, and Frank Kane, motorman of the Pranks-town avenue car, which collided at the "forks of the road," have had many years of service with the company.

Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey, of the Department of Public Safety, declared:

"Negligence on somebody's part was responsible for the crash."

He says the forks of the road has never been considered dangerous. Inspector Dorsey stated that if the investigation by his department warrants it, steps will be taken to install traffic lights or other safeguards.

Real Estate

A stimulus to suburban development in desirable sections in the southern border of the county is found in the activities of residents in that district in circulating petitions seeking the grading and surfacing of the old Washington road from the village of Clifton to Donaldson's Cross Roads in Washington County. The petitioners are asking for the opening of the historic road through state aid.

The petitions, circulated by H. C. Steffey and Miss A. M. Sutkaitis, will be presented respectively to the commissioners of Allegheny and Washington counties. The stretch of road upon which improvement is asked covers about two miles in Upper St. Clair Township, Allegheny County and about three miles in Peters Township, Washington County. It parallels the Washington Interurban Street Railway and abuts on many country home plots, the subdivision of Southern Hilands, opened recently by Stevenson, Williams Company, the Edgebrook plan controlled by the Freehold Real Estate Company and large areas of farm land.

It is argued that the grading of the Washington road would shorten the present routes between Pittsburgh and Washington by nearly three miles and would relieve traffic congestion on state Route No. 19 and the McMurray road.

Winfield K. Shiras has transferred a property, 70 by 110 feet, in Saranac avenue, Beechview, to Ormond K. Felmeth.

J. J. Coyne, a builder, has applied for a permit for the erection of four brick veneer dwellings at 517-22 Coyne terrace, Fifteenth Ward, at an estimated cost of $20,000.

F. C. Dever will erect five brick dwellings in Colombo street, Eleventh Ward. In the application for the building permit the cost of the block was estimated at $35,000.

John Durin will erect three brick veneer dwellings at 4003-13 Beechwood boulevard. They will cost $25,500, according to the estimate in the application for the building permit.

J. A. Apallo has applied for a building permit for the erection of four brick store buildings in the 4400 block, Penn avenue, at a cost of $7,000.

A. G. Para will erect a new restaurant building adjoining his cafeteria at 126 South Highland avenue.

Three hours after the first blaze firemen answered a call to the garage. It was burned, with one car. The pilot of a passing airplane threw a searchlight on the building and gave the alarm.

DOLORES DENIES 'ALIENATION'

LOS ANGELES, July 24.—(AP.)—Dolores Del Rio, film actress, through her attorney is quoted as not being able to understand the charges of Gunther R. Lessing, formerly her lawyer, that she caused a break between Lessing and his wife, Laura C. Lessing.

Mrs. Lessing filed suit for divorce last January. Her husband's answer sets forth that Miss Del Rio, by lavishly bestowing her home, her purse, her jewels and other gifts upon Mrs. Lessing, influenced her to leave her husband.

Lessing, formerly was counsel for the actress. Trouble arose over fees and the lawyer brought an action against Miss Del Rio for $31,000.

Dominic Muskthel, who operates a bus line between Butler and Eau Claire, desires to extend his route to Van. His application was before Examiner W. E. This message is for people who are sensible enough and quick enough to take advantage of an opportunity to profit.

Skeptical people, wise-crackers and know-it-alls will derive no good from this information. They might as well stop reading now.

In all probability, however, some person young enough to have hope, or old enough to have confidence, will very likely read this AND WIN $1,500 CASH. (It is a matter of record that a 12-year-old girl in Macon, Georgia, won $1,600 in prizes in a Movietest contest conducted by the leading newspaper of that city.)

The Sun-Telegraph's Movietest is three days from its close.

The fact is that one person is competing for every 100 persons we anticipated would compete.

It is a fact that on various occasions more people sent in answers to win prizes totaling $25 than have sent in answers qualified to win $5,000 in prizes.

As a result of this situation, THE ROAD IS WIDE OPEN FOR ALMOST ANYONE TO ENTER THIS CONTEST AND PRACTICALLY WALK AWAY WITH THE FIRST PRIZE.

For anyone who intelligently, determinedly and conscientiously applies himself or herself, winning First Prize in this contest SHOULD BE ALMOST A WALKAWAY with just a slight personal effort on your part.

This contest, started some weeks ago, is based on 30 cartoons, each of which represents the title of a motion picture. The general idea of the contest is outlined in the lower left-hand corner of this page. It is interesting. Any man, woman or child with good common sense can turn in a solution.

If you already know the details of this contest, and if you already have the complete set of 30 cartoons, do not let anybody or anything stop you from turning in your set of answers. The person who talks you out of entering this contest is taking a whole lot of responsibility, because that person may be talking you out of prizes amounting to hundreds of dollars.

If you have the "hunch"—if you feel that now is your time to win—if you believe you can master the Movietest cartoons, GRAB THE OPPORTUNITY. GIVE YOURSELF AN OPPORTUNITY TO WIN. IF EVER IN YOUR LIFE YOU HAD A REAL CHANCE, THIS IS YOUR TIME.

This is not a contest to see who can get the most subscriptions. So far as subscriptions are concerned, the requirement is the same for everybody. For instance, there are 30 prizes in this contest. Twenty-five of these prizes are offered for the best answers to the cartoons accompanied and qualified by two new six months suscriptions to The Sun-Telegraph. The other 25 prizes are offered for the best answers to the cartoons accompanied by one new six-month subscription to The Sun-Telegraph.

You do not compete with anybody so far as subscriptions are concerned. The requirement is the same for everybody.

$1,000 in cash heads the list of 25 prizes which can be won by answers qualified by two subscriptions.

$500 cash heads the list of 25 prizes which can be won by answers qualified by one subscription.

Those Persons Who Have Full Details of This Contest Should Allow NOTHING to Prevent Their Sending in a Set of Answers

TITLE.....
The correct title for Cartoon No. 28 can be found in this list: "A. B. C. Love;" "The Campus Flirt;" "Accused;" "The Bridge of Sighs;" "Ace High;" "Adam and Eva;" "The Adorable Deceiver;" "After the Ball;" "The Breaking Point;" "The Lamp of Aladdin;" "At the River's End;" "The Alaskan;" "Beverly of Graustark;" "The Amazing Interlude;" "That Old Sweetheart of Mine;" "Annabel Lee;" "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come;" "Are Parents People;" "The Avalanche."

Here Is the General Idea of This Contest!

The cartoon you see at the left represents or suggests in some way the title of a well known and widely advertised motion picture. The correct title can be found in the list of titles directly under the cartoon.

In the Movietest there are 30 cartoons similar to this one. Each one represents the title of a motion picture, and with each is a list of titles that includes the correct title for that particular cartoon. This is the 28th cartoon of the series of 30.

Everybody in the family can compete and win two of the 50 cash prizes.

SCHOOL BATTLE COSTS 2 LIVES

HEBER SPRINGS, Ark., July 24.—(AP.)—Boge Cannon, a farmer, and his son, Jim Cannon, were shot to death at Wolf Bayou School, near here, and Lelas Murphy, 20, is in prison, accused of murder, as the aftermath of an attack on Murphy's wife, a school teacher, because she attempted to whip one of the Cannon children.

Authorities disclosed Mrs. Murphy was prevented from whipping the child by older members of the family, likewise members of her class, who advanced in a body to the front of the room and beat her severely.

Boge Cannon later demanded that Mrs. Murphy resign. Upon learning she was back in the schoolroom, he and his son went to school.

Murphy was there ahead of them. They quarreled, and Murphy and Boge Cannon exchanged shots. A few moments later Cannon and his son lay dead on the ground. Murphy was not wounded.

HEARINGS ON OIL MERGER END

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP.)—Hearings by Special Master Fred Williams on the proposed merger of Standard Oil of New York and Vacuum Oil closed yesterday. Final arguments will be heard in Federal District Court at Omaha, October 6 and 7.

The government brought suit to restrain the proposed merger, alleging it is a violation of the Supreme Court decree dissolving the old Standard Oil Company.

Williams has until September 10 to present a printed digest of the testimony taken here in the last month. Additional hearings may be held in Washington before that date.

Harold F. Skeets, a director of Vacuum, was recalled to the stand yesterday and gave figures of 1929 production of crude oil and refinery capacities, tending to show that the merged company would still stand only sixth in world oil circles in the first category and fourth in the second.

Married Woman Keeps City Job

SHARON, Pa., July 24.—A woman stenographer in the office of City Engineer Lewis Burnside was the object of a near battle in Council. Councilman Fred Thomas introduced a motion asking that Mrs. Herbert Maxwell, stenographer, be fired and the post given to an unmarried woman. The motion was defeated. Mrs. Maxwell has held the post for seven years.

New Way Closes Ugly Pores

—blackheads disappear!

Whenever I see a face that would be beautiful—if it weren't for disgustingly large pores, blackheads and oily skin that spoil make-up—I feel sorry.

For our in Hollywood they have a wonderful recipe for a lotion that so easily corrects these flaws and quickly makes the skin nice and smooth.

The very minute you put it on the face and neck it gets down deep into the skin and cleans out the dirt. It removes blackheads, closes the pores and erases tiny tell-tale wrinkles. Soon the skin becomes silken in texture, youthfully fresh and healthy. There is no silliness to fight or perspiration to damage make-up and make you look done-in.

Just get 3 ounces of Orchard White from any druggist, mix it with the juice of 2 lemons and you have a full quarter-pint of a lotion far finer and more effective than any special soap, cream or liquid you have ever used.

Note: In the summer this Hollywood recipe keeps the skin free of freckles and guards against that leathery look caused by wind and sun.

world-famous chemist says:

"Colgate's has greatest cleansing action"

WHAT do you expect of a dentifrice? Dr. Philip B. Hawk tells you what you should expect. "The prime function of a dentifrice," he declares, "is to cleanse the teeth thoroughly and safely."

Which dentifrice is best for that purpose? Dr. Hawk took 10 leading products, studied their effects, found—and this, you must remember, was an independent analysis—that "Colgate's has the greatest cleansing action because of its low surface tension." There is the impartial judgment of a world-famous chemist.

Match it with the opinions of such men as Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Commissioner of Public Health of New York City; Dr. Hardee Chambliss, Dean of the School of Sciences, Catholic University of America; Dr. Jerome Alexander, M. S., B. S., President of Association of Consulting Chemists and Chemical Engineers; Dr. H. H. Bunzell, Ph. D., University of Chicago. You will discover the amazing fact that all these men, who have been retained to render expert opinion, are in absolute agreement with Dr. Hawk.

They find that Colgate's penetrating foam floods away food particles from the crevices and fissures of the teeth in a way ordinary tooth pastes are unable to do. It really cleans. Thus it prevents decay.

This new wealth of scientific evidence just disclosed confirms the 30 years of recommendation by dentists and scientists which has made Colgate's today the largest selling tooth paste in the world.

Dr. Hawk says:

"To ascertain the relative cleansing power of some of the most popular dentifrices, I have tested and compared them. My investigation proves that Colgate's has the greatest cleansing action because of its low surface tension. This would indicate that Colgate's not only cleans the surface readily but removes decomposing food particles by reducing their tendency to remain within the tiny crevices and fissures of the teeth. Other dentifrices, with higher surface tensions, lack this capacity to cleanse as thoroughly.

"Colgate's deserves high rank among these dentifrices because of its great power to perform the prime function of a dentifrice—to cleanse the teeth thoroughly and safely."

Philip B. Hawk

The price is important—but the quality—not the price—has held Colgate leadership for 30 years.

WAVERLY GASOLINE

is now "STANDARD"

FOR slightly more than a year we have been selling "Standard" products in Western Pennsylvania. From the first, the response of the public has been tremendous. Sales of "Standard" Gasoline and ESSO, the Giant Power Fuel, have steadily increased, day by day and month by month, until today they are the most talked of motor fuels in this section. So fast, in fact, has the popularity of these widely known fuels and of "Standard" Service grown, that our retail facilities have, for the past few months, been overcrowded.

In fairness to our present customers and to our host of friends who want "Standard" products, we have recently increased our service facilities. We have secured the Waverly group of service stations, conveniently located and adequately equipped to render the type of service to be found at "Standard" stations everywhere. These, together with over 200 dealers formerly selling Waverly products, have changed over to "Standard" Gasoline and ESSO, giving us outlets of a high type in many neighborhoods where we have not been represented.

Wherever you see the "Standard" and ESSO pump globes, whether on former Waverly pumps or on those of older "Standard" Dealers or Service Stations, you will get the same high quality "Standard" Gasoline, and ESSO, the Giant Power Fuel, that are winning new friends each week, by the thousands, through sheer performance on the hills of Western Pennsylvania.

YOUTH FINDING STILL SLAIN

CUMBERLAND, Md., July 24.—Roy Upthole, 16, son of Asa J. Upthole, near Deer Park, Md., died at Memorial Hospital here early today following amputation of his leg. He is believed to have been the victim of an unidentified moonshiner. Last Friday while in the woods with his father hunting groundhogs, the boy received a charge of buckshot in his leg.

The elder Upthole said they came upon a still and ran from it, fearing they would be suspected of being prohibition officers. The boy was brought to the hospital last night after infection had set in.

FIRM PROTESTS PHONE RATES

HARRISBURG, July 24.—(AP.)—The Armstrong Cork Company, of Lancaster, protested before the Public Service Commission alleged unjust and unreasonable charges of the Bell Telephone Company for leased wire or "tie line" service between its plants at Lancaster, Pittsburgh and Beaver Falls.

The complainant alleged that the change from route distance to airline distance in computing charges was in effect an increase in rates. The former charge was made at the rate of $4 a mile for the actual wire mileage used in connecting the plants while the new charge is on a $3 a mile basis for the airline distance between the points served.

The company's counsel informed the commission the new rates produced an increase of $53 in the monthly charge for service between the three plants. The decrease of about $2 a month on the Lancaster-York line was offset, he said, by increases of $10 in the Pittsburgh-Beaver Falls service and $55 in the Lancaster-Pittsburgh service.

The telephone company presented testimony that the change was in accordance with its policy of putting all its service on an airline basis.

The commission directed the company to furnish the protestant with certain data requested and directed that briefs be filed incorporating the new data.

RADIO PATENT CURB ASKED

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—Attorney General Mitchell was asked by the Radio Protective Association to seek a preliminary injunction against the Radio Corporation of America to prevent its extension of receiving set patent licenses to include the superheterodyne field and television.

In a letter to Mitchell, Oswald F. Schuette, executive secretary of the association, said the purpose of the extension was to obtain an acknowledgement of validity which would "extend the illegal control enjoyed by the radio trust over its competitors for an additional six years."

Schuette asked that the step be taken in conjunction with the suit now pending in the Federal District Court at Wilmington, Del., brought by the Department of Justice to test the validity of the Radio Corporation's patent control.

OFFICERS HOLD CUP CONTEST

MOUNT GRETNA, Pa., July 24 —(AP)— Thirty-five commissioned officers of the One Hundred and Fourth Cavalry today were awaiting announcement of the winner at their annual competition for the Riley Cup, held last night. The contest involves a 15-mile night ride during which the officers must locate certain stations whose markings correspond with the maps given them. The cup is donated by Col. E. J. Stackpole, Jr., commander of the regiment, and Maj. B. C. Jones.

The control problem to be worked out last week by the cavalry was announced today. It will include two fights in the Hand Of the first night the cavalrymen will defend Hafner Creek Pass near Cornwall against an imaginary invader and the next day they will move on to White Oak to learn the intentions of the enemy. The annual review of the regiment was announced for Saturday morning.

The infantry was busy yesterday on the anti-aircraft range. Maj. William H. Ody, United States Army instructor, reported that the gunners finished the first day with a fair degree of accuracy, for 25 per cent of their shots struck vital parts of the moving targets. All training activities have been slowed up some by the intense heat.

HERO IN 3 WARS POISON VICTIM

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 24 —(AP)— John W. Lewis, veteran of three wars and seven times decorated, died from poison here. Found unconscious in his room, he was rushed to a hospital but did not regain consciousness.

The man who was responsible for the capture of 175 Spaniards in the war with Spain, served in the Boxer Rebellion and was gassed in 1917, had carried in his pocket a clipping from a Los Angeles paper which revealed that he pawned his seven medals for $10 in that city.

Though it revealed he had worked as night watchman for several film stars, it also showed that much of his time since 1917 had been spent in government hospitals.

He had been receiving a pension of $50 monthly.

Breaking Out on Baby Lasted One Year. Healed by Cuticura.

"We first noticed the trouble when our baby was two months old. It started with small red pimples on her left cheek and almost covered it. The breaking out itched badly and she scratched and irritated it. When she was awake she used to rub it until it would bleed. The trouble lasted one year.

"We tried different remedies but they failed to help her. We began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in about a month she was completely healed, after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Eugene C. Vey, 215 Spring St., Bellevue, Pa., April 9, 1930.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass."

A whistle shrieks its short, shrill blast . . . men scurry back and forth . . . a huge crane creaks and strains in a mighty effort to raise and lower its precious, heavy burden, the final load of a valuable cargo ready to set-sail across the seas to another land. The destination is Chile, and the cargo of huge Electric Locomotives which will shortly see duty on the Chilean State Railways, bears the colorful circular trade-mark of a Pittsburgh concern.

Going abroad to do service in foreign lands is the frequent habit of electric products labeled with the familiar markings of Pittsburgh manufacturers . . . Motors for China and Mexico . . . Switchboards for Japan . . . Transformers for the Argentine . . . Circuit Breakers for France and Spain. Not only is the distribution of Pittsburgh Electrical Products international in scope, but national as well. Add Wiring and Transmission Devices, Electric Furnaces and Heating Elements, Fuses, Washing Machines, Rail Road Signaling Devices, Motors and Generating Apparatus of every description shipped to thousands of American towns and communities, and you have a complete picture of the magnitude of Electrical Manufacturing in the Pittsburgh district.

The Duquesne Light Company, serving Electric Power to this important industry in the Pittsburgh district, feels particularly identified with its growth and development. Providing the Power for the making of Electrical Products which in turn utilise Electric Power, unites utility and manufacturer in one important objective . . . that of serving mankind.

Rendering electric service to the Greater Pittsburgh district has been the experience of the Duquesne Light Company for fifty years . . . experience in the production of electric power that permits the extremely low rates charged today, among the lowest in the country.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Jerry Murdock is mysteriously shot and killed at Gordon Stiles' palatial home in Manhattan Beach, a suburb of New York. The only clues are a bullet hole in a window drape and footprints in the snow. A number of well-known Broadwayites are at the house for a week-end party. Eric, the Stiles' butler, implicates Diana Amberson, a dancer. She admits having gone into Murdock's room just prior to the murder. Dr. Wattles, police medical examiner, reports "doped" water in the two rooms adjoining Murdock's. Capt. Blake questions the Quincys, who occupied one of the rooms. Robin Dale elicits the fact that Murdock financed a tea-room operated by Dolores Quincy. Later, as Diana Amberson is being arrested, Bert Forrest, a playwright, confesses to the crime.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER IV.

"A gallant gesture, Forrest, but I'm afraid I can't take it seriously," Blake said.

"Perhaps you will when I'm through. I was out on the balcony last night when Diana—Miss Amberson went into Murdock's room. The dirty swine tried to force his filthy attentions on her, and when she ran from the room I gave him what he deserved. Diana Amberson happens to be my wife!"

"But—what of the footprints in the snow?" Robin Dale's calm voice broke the short silence after Forrest's confession.

"Those footprints? Why, I—I made them this morning to mislead the police," Forrest explained with some hesitation.

"Strange! They were almost obliterated by a new fall, and no one left before nine. It takes two or three hours to cover tracks like that, and it's scarcely 11 now," said Dale.

Jardin entered the room, halting the controversy. He held an automatic in his hand.

"We've found the weapon, Captain Blake."

There was one empty shell in the chamber. The calibre was .38. The smell of burnt powder was still strong in the barrel.

"Where was it, Jardin?"

"In Forrest's room—at the bottom of his traveling bag."

"Why, it's my automatic!" Gordon Stiles said suddenly. "I kept it in the drawer of a stand next to my bed."

Diana Amberson made a frantic effort to deny Forrest's guilt and implicate herself. Grace Stiles became hysterical and was led from the room by her husband. In the end Bertram Forrest was taken away under arrest for the murder of Jerry Murdock.

Elbert Bailey was elated over the story Robin Dale knocked out for the Monday morning edition of the Daily Journal. Then on Monday afternoon the evening papers got the break on the first important sidelight of the Murdock case. Dale took a copy of one of the papers and dropped in at headquarters. He found Blake at his desk.

"I suppose you saw this, captain?"

"Oh, about the Kane woman? Yes. I've heard about it. We don't care who gets Murdock's money, we're interested only in the one who shot him."

"It says here that Rita Kane, showgirl, claims she was Murdock's wife and is entitled to his estate. Any idea where she was Saturday night, captain? Motives, you know—you wanted motives."

"We've got a confession, haven't we?"

"You didn't fall for it yourself at first."

"Where is this Kane woman?"

"Not working at present—has an apartment on Fifty-first street."

"Done a little gum-shoeing already, Dale, eh? Well, all right, we'll go up and see her."

"Thought you would."

The place on Fifty-fourth street proved to be an exclusive apartment house. Rita Kane ushered the two men rather willingly into an elaborately furnished sitting room. She half lounged on a divan, eager to be questioned, especially when she learned that there was a reporter present.

"We're not interested in your marriage, Miss Kane, but we would like to know where you spent Saturday night last."

"I hardly remember, captain—you are a captain, aren't you?"

"Well let that pass. See if this will refresh your memory. Were you in the city or out of it on Saturday night?"

"I remember now I wasn't feeling very well and thought a drive in the fresh air would help me."

"And so you drove toward the beaches where the air is very fresh. Wasn't that it?" Robin Dale suggested pleasantly.

"Of course, that's just what I did do. You're terribly clever to think of that!"

"See if you can remember what time you returned home, Miss Kane," Blake continued.

"You see, captain, I had a little trouble with the car, so it was awful late."

"After three o'clock, at least Miss Kane, wasn't it?" From Robin Dale.

"How long did you stay at Manhattan Beach?" demanded Capt. Blake suddenly before she could reply to Dale.

The languid creature rose to her feet, and the mask dropped off. Her eyes flashed and something like a veil of evil overspread her beautifully moulded features. Even in speech she reverted to type.

"Say, listen, flatfoot, you ain't got anything on me, and you can't get me all balled up with your smart questions. I was out riding Saturday night, and I was out alone. Now, if you want to think I was somewhere you'll have to prove I was there. And if you don't believe I was married to Jerry Murdock, the certificate is locked up in a nice safe place and you can see it! There's a justice of peace's name signed to it and it's dated June 5."

As she finished there came a loud knock on the door. It had a startling effect on her, but there was nothing to do but for her to open it. When she did Duncan, Murdock's man, stepped into the apartment.

It is a question who was more greatly surprised, Duncan or Capt. Blake and Robin Dale. It was, to say the least, a most unexpected meeting. Once he was recognized it was too late for Duncan to turn about.

"Come in, Duncan," Blake said. "We're just making a little social call. You too, I suppose?"

"Puzzlin'—puzzlin' motives," Dale muttered as if to himself.

WOULD HAVE MADE BIG DIFFERENCE

Lady Wishes She Had Known of World's Tonic Months Ago.

"My baby was born last June," said a well known matron of Pittsburgh to the World's Tonic interviewer. "He was not a big, bouncing boy like the others, but rather weak. I could not nurse him, and while he is all right now we had a hard time with him for several months. No doubt his poor start was due to my wretched health. I was bilious for weeks at a time, and used to see black spots before my eyes and suffer a severe pain in the top of my head. My heart sometimes thumped uncomfortably after exertion, and my stomach was very delicate, so that I had to be most careful in my eating. My main trouble started after I had the flu. I lost weight until I only weighed 94 when I used to weigh 146. I could hardly keep anything on my stomach, which was ulcerated. Whatever I ate that stayed down felt like hot coals in my stomach. I had to take different kind of medicines every night to get my bowels to move. I had an anemic condition of the blood and took colds very easily. My feet were cold all the time.

"All I did for myself did not help much until I tried the new medicine that everybody is talking about here, called World's Tonic. I was surprised and delighted with the quick results. My liver became active again, and the biliousness went away. My heart beat regularly and my stomach digested everything I ate. I gained weight and strength rapidly. World's Tonic proved to be just what a woman in my condition needed, and if I had known of it a year earlier it would have made a big difference in both my baby and myself."

World's Tonic can be had of Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, or of any other first class drug store. (A-96)

The blonde that burns

Sunburn dangerous to some skins What to do

A CONSIDERABLE number of blonde Nordics can't stand sunburn," says a noted health officer. "They don't tan. They just burn. And often they get actually ill from the effects of the sun."

And sunburn is not only injurious to your delicate skin, it is unbecoming. Better avoid it. Even on cloudy days there may be enough violet rays to cause irritation. Use a parasol and wear a hat. Look out for the reflected violet rays from the water and take your "Vaseline" Jelly along on all outings for complete protection. The tube slips easily into your hand bag.

Before you go out, apply a thin layer to the exposed skin, face, arms, neck, legs (if you go without stockings). Wipe it off with cleansing tissues and apply powder. This will give a protective film over the skin.

And if you feel yourself burning, apply a fresh layer and leave it on. Never mind the looks. Better be safe than sick.

This is a harmless way to save yourself trouble. Do try it. "Vaseline" Jelly can be bought anywhere, in jars or tubes, and it is very inexpensive.

GERMANS BEGIN FLIGHT TO U. S.

BERLIN, July 24.—(AP.)—Wolf Hirth and Oscar Weller, German aviators, left Staaken for Croydon, England, this morning on the first lap of a flight to the United States.

The fliers will travel by way of the Orkneys, Iceland and Greenland in a 40-horsepower Klemm sporting plane.

Hirth is a noted aviator and on March 8 was awarded the Hindenburg aviation cup for 1929 for the year's outstanding achievements in civil aviation.

His principal accomplishments were a flight around Europe in a light plane and a flight from Germany to the Isle of Man, in the Irish Sea.

PACT AFFIRMED IN COMMONS

LONDON, July 24.—(AP.)—The House of Commons last night adopted on second reading the bill embodying legislation on the London naval treaty, thus virtually insuring that it will be enacted.

A third and final reading will follow, but that largely is a formality, as action on the second stage is considered the equivalent to ratification. In the meantime, the bill has been referred to the committee of the whole, where only routine action is regarded as likely.

When the measure is officially adopted on third reading the treaty will have been ratified by two of the signatories, as the United States Senate approved it this week. Only Japan is yet debating.

The naval treaty was signed by the British government and would be binding in any case, but C. G. Ammon, parliamentary secretary of the admiralty, explained in urging approval last night that supporting legislation was necessary to give full legal effect in quarters other than governmental.

Witnesses said the craft fell nose downward, striking trees and imbedding itself in the ground.

Joan Crawford Again Does Picture With Modern Youth Theme

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 24.

If Joan Crawford has held any ideas regarding a vacation trip this summer she had best put them out of mind, and only hope that they will materialize some time next July.

For the next few months look like busy ones for the M-G-M star, if one can believe the production schedule. However, that might be changed by tomorrow, its an old habit around the studios.

Joan Crawford

But if not Joan is stuck in Hollywood. She has just started production on "The Great Day," and by the time it is finished another story "Dance Fool Dance" will be ready for her.

"Dance Fool Dance," while not by any means a sequel to "Our Dancing Daughters" or "Our Modern Maidens," is the same type of sophisticated theme, and tells a story of modern youth today.

Harry Beaumont, who has made some of Joan's best pictures, will again direct the star in this story.

NO COME-BACK

An unknown promoter attempting to enlist the services of several stars for a radio program made the mistake of calling Vivienne Segal.

Reaching her by telephone he said:

"We have a feature program for you to sing on the radio."

"Yes," answered the star. "When is it?"

"It's going to be a tremendous affair," he said, starting the sales talk. "At 9 o'clock, next Saturday night. Everyone of any importance will be there."

"Thanks a lot. I'll listen in," replied Vivienne, hanging up the receiver.

LIKE FATHER LIKE SON

Making his initial appearance before a camera, Noah Beery, Jr., is playing a bit in "College Lovers" at First National. Young Noah, who is 15, graduated from Hollywood High School last June, where he sang the leading role in the school operetta. He is entering Stanford in the fall and hopes, through picture work, to earn enough spending money to carry him during the freshman term.

Another junior at First National is Jackie Warner. Jackie has been given a job as an assistant script clerk on Mervyn Le Roy's picture, "Little Caesar." At the end of the first week he went into his father's office and demanded to know why he wasn't getting the standard wage for his work. He pointed out that boys at M. G. M. were getting $18 a week, and his check amounted to only $15. The outcome of the conference is not known.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer sports one prominent son on its payroll, Fred Niblo, Jr., who is a staff writer. At Paramount, Jesse L. Lasky, Jr., has been placed in the foreign department. And Carl Laemmle's boy needs no further introduction regarding his activities at Universal.

HE'S VERSATILE

Ramon Novarro's first Spanish version will combine much more than just his acting ability. Preparations are being made to record "The Singer of Seville" in Spanish and Ramon is being consulted in nearly every phase of the story.

Ramon Novarro

In addition to story construction he will act as technical adviser on the set and help with the direction.

Naturally the cast will be entirely Spanish and Ramon is now helping select the actors who will play the various roles. And last, but not least, he writes music, and will take a hand in composing some of his numbers. Outside of this and playing the lead he has nothing to do on the production.

A TRADE

Because Robert Montgomery's and Robert Ames' measurements are almost identical there was almost a riot on the "War Nurse" set.

Both are wearing the same kind of uniforms and had spent several days at the tailor's for measurements and fittings. Finally the wardrobe finished the costumes and sent them to the actors' dressing rooms. Five minutes later both rushed on the sound stage berating a tailor who could not make clothes to fit. The director was called in, and he also blew up. The tailor was sent for and was being properly bawled out when someone suggested that the uniforms might be mixed up. Whereupon the two Roberts retired to their rooms and exchanged wardrobe. Since then peace has reigned.

PAYS DOUBLE

A stroke of good showmanship at an expense of $100 was shown by Sid Grauman at the midnight showing of "Hell's Angels" at the Chinese last Saturday. For the past two weeks the theater has held a dancing contest on the stage prior to the showing of the feature, the winning couple to receive a one hundred dollar bill. Last Saturday's contest was eliminated to two potential winners, and the audience were so enthusiastic toward both that a decision one way or the other would have caused ill-feelings so Sid called it a draw and awarded both contestants a first prize.

Popular!

There are two heroes in "Hell's Island," coming Saturday to the Harris screen, and both of them want the fair heroine, Dorothy Sebastian. May the best man win!

(Of Zilch and Zilch)

New York, N. Y., April 2, 3, 4.—Well, little diary, old pal, you was probably wonderin' what has happened to me and honey because I didn't write in you for so long, but when you get a load of what has been what and what I have suffered on account of that boloney you will then understand why I feel sorry for Mrs. Snyder and her sweetheart, which I do because now I know to kill a person is maybe as easy as flopping at Loew's Delancey Street if you do a Kazotsky.

In the first place me and honey is gettin' along still as was only we don't sleep in the same rooms no more and the only time we do sleep side by side is when we have to make a long jump in a sleeper. Next Saturday, I think, if the booking is confermed we will have to share an upper berth, as we may work Wilmington. I ain't like I used to be, diary, old pal. Before honey turned out to be the heel which you know she always is, I could stand for anything because love is like that, diary, like that is love. No matter what she done I maybe would lose my nut for a hour, but then when I realized the expenses by having to have separate rooms I would give in to her. Like a dam fool, sure, but now it's different with me.

Nowadays, diary, I don't even get that feelin' to hit and no more do I even get sore when she don't feed me the way she should, which when she does pull the lines the way it is right for her to do I get the laughs they way they should laugh. Do I have to brag, diary? Do I ever act like that landlord, Lou Holtz, who when he happens to go good he puts in a ad in Variety what the critics from Zit's or the Billboard says about him? Nope, I don't not, diary. I never done that big-time stuff, and either am I ashamed I am working for Loew, as Loew has over 50 weeks from coast to coast, and if you go good at the State you don't have to worry about how you go in Mount Vernon or Newark or any of their houses.

Which is why I don't like to work for the Orpheum or Keith time, although we have a chance to show the act for them wise guys at the Palace Thursday morning, which, when you come to think of it, I won't do, because why should I have to show them guys a act that got such good write-ups from the New Orleans Picayune, the Battle Creek papers, the Duluth ones, and a wow of a notice from Zatkin in the Telegraph when we played at Minskey's and tie it up in a knot deucing it?

If I remember correct, we had to follow Swain's Cats and Rats at that can, and how honey was nervous! As much as I hate her, diary, old pal, that was one time I felt sorry for her, who has done me such a rotten deal. Honey can't stand no animals of no kind. Even when Julius Tannen tells that one on the lions she has to hold her ears. It scares her like a shot. Which reminds me, I must get a load of Tannen, as he sometimes has good gags, which I need maybe one or two to liven up our finish number. Lately the one about "it musta been two other guys" isn't getting the belly laughs.

But I am not telling you nothing about honey, which you maybe are dying to find out, so I will go back to the time she pulled that fake faint on me backstage at the Palace (in Canarsie), where we took a cut just to keep from getting stale, as we was layin' off stalling those big-time bookers who didn't want to pay us my figure. I happened to bump into her accident-like, and she looked at me like she looks when she is drinking Scotch with sassaparulla. So I says:

"Don't be an Airedale! You mug!"

You know how you wise crack when you feel hopped up about somethin'? That was all, diary. I was only kiddin' with her, but what does she do but crack somethin' under her breath, so I says, loud-like: "What's that?" "Why don't you look where you go?" she says. At first I only walked away and laughed my laugh at her, but she made another dig on me, that the stage hands and the girl act could hear, and go around sayin' things.

"You're gettin' clever," I says, sarcastic to her. "If you would be able to think of a very good gag, maybe we could use it, but no, you are like your whole family, nuts and money mad."

Which I really shouldn't have

AVERY capable girl, everyone agreed. A nice girl, too. Yet she didn't advance. Raises were slow and small. Promotions passed her by. People liked her personally, but seemed to avoid her.

Then Mrs. Carey, the new office manager, had a talk with her. Gave her a tactful hint about "B.O.", the polite term for something people dislike even to mention—body odor. Suggested a simple way to avoid offending . . . From that day on, her "luck" seemed to change. She's popular with everyone now—has twice been promoted within six months. "B.O." no longer cheats her of friendship or success.

Hotter weather no excuse for "B.O."

We perspire more freely these sultry summer days. We have to in order to endure the heat. And though we don't notice "B.O." in ourselves, the slightest hint of it annoys others.

But perspiration can be kept odorless by a simple safeguard millions of particular people have adopted. It's Lifebuoy, the delightful toilet soap that lathers so abundantly—even in hardest water. Cleansing, refreshing, mildly antiseptic, this rich, creamy lather penetrates deeply into the pores—removes all odor. Its pleasant, extra-clean scent—that vanishes as you rinse—tells you Lifebuoy purifies.

said at all, because then what happened was terrible. What does she do but fling the Stein's number 8 at me, so I had to let her have a rap on the mouth. But it didn't floor her, and the rat makes a pass at me, which steamed me up so much I lost my nut and gave her a medium hard kick on the hip. Then she pulled that prop faint. What riled me up, diary, was that the electrician butts in and wants to know what's the matter and how do I get that way.

"What's it to you, big-timer?" I says to him. "It's better you don't mind married people's business, as sometimes you get to feel sorry after." "No kiddin'," he says back. "If you was a gentleman, you wouldn't strike a woman. Don't try that Wild West stuff again around here or maybe a sandbag might drop on your head from the flies."

You wouldn't dare," I says, "as I would report you to the union, and somebody would not only lose their job but maybe get arrested."

So without no warnin' or anythin' he socked me, and I didn't give him a punch back, as why should I lower myself or fight with stage hands and get a bad rep on the circuit?

Well, anyway, honey started to cry, like she always cries, and I thought maybe she would scram and screw on me back to her mother, who don't like me because I am a atheist. Anyhow, I gagged my way out of it, and says if I give you some extra dough to send to your mother will you forget and forgive, or if you don't want to forget or forgive, will you tomorrer make the rounds of the offices and use your personality to get a half a week in Passaic or Bayonne? So she says yes she would. Then I gave her a finn, which is half a sawbuck, to send to her mother, who really didn't deserve the extra two bucks for the rotten things she has said about me and my sister who is in the reformatory on a framed up charge.

But what the hell? It was worth the extra bucks to have peace of mind for once, and, anyway, it was a two-dollar bill, and I didn't tear off the corners, just for spite, so that they will have hard luck—only the rotten part is, it don't go to her in the orichinal, as honey gets money orders all the time. Oh, I almost forgot to tell you, Diary, old pal, that Ned Norworth told me in Red Bank last week that Helen Eby, of the Nine Crazy Kids' act, thinks I am hot.

LONDON, July 24.—(AP.)—Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president, and a delegation of 700 members of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, en route to the eighth world's convention of the organization in Berlin, placed a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Westminster Abbey yesterday. The homage was paid in behalf of the 200,000 members of the society in the United States who served in the great war.

The party was addressed by Canon Donaldson, of Westminster. Twenty of the officers previously had been guests of David Lloyd George in the Parliament Building. Dr. Poling and Carlton M. Sherwood, of New York, were received by Arthur Henderson, British foreign minister.

The Berlin sessions will be the first international religious meeting in the country since the war.

GARMENT MILL STRIKE ON

BALTIMORE, July 24.—(AP.)—Demanding union recognition, a 40-hour, five-day week and creation of a minimum wage scale, workers in the women's garment industry of Baltimore are on strike. Union officials said 2,000 of 3,000 persons employed in the industry left their work, paralyzing 19 of the two dozen shops in the city.

Operators, however, said there were not more than a thousand women's garment workers in Baltimore. The union leaders were accused of attempting to drive the industry out of the city.

Five strikers who were arrested on the complaint of one operator were given a hearing and dismissed. They were accused of creating a disturbance.

KONJOLA PROVES REAL MEDICINE IN THIS CASE

Stomach Ailments of Four Years Standing Soon Banished By New and Different Medicine.

Surprising as it seems, Konjola is at the peak of its powers in those stubborn and obstinate cases that have defied and resisted all other medicines and treatments tried. Yet this is not to be wondered at for Konjola is really 32 medicines skillfully blended into one. Of Konjola's 32 ingredients, 22 are the juices of roots and herbs known for their medicinal value.

MRS. ANNA CROWE

All who suffer are urged to get the facts about this medicine from the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh. Read what Mrs. Anna Crowe, Route No. 3, Amity, near Pittsburgh, said to the Konjola Man recently:

"I am 68 years old and took Konjola after reading of the experiences which some of my friends had with this medicine. I suffered three or four years with stomach trouble. I bloated terribly after meals. My food never seemed to digest, and I was extremely nervous and could not sleep at night. I took medicines for years without lasting benefit.

"Two weeks' treatment with Konjola has given me very good results. I eat and sleep better than I have for a long time. It has been four months since I stopped taking Konjola and I am in excellent health. I no longer bloat after meals and the pains of indigestion have passed. I am no longer nervous and sleep well at night. I am perfectly satisfied with the fine results I had from Konjola."

And so it goes—the same glad story wherever this great medicine is given a chance to make good. Most cases of stubborn ailments require a treatment of from six to eight weeks.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is sold by all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

This paragraph might be titled, "A Peek Into the Home Life of Public Service Commission Representative Hiram D. Hirsh." The heat has been bothering Mr. Hirsh, but he has found a solution. At 6 in the morning, unable to sleep longer, he fills the Hirsh bathtub with cold water, makes a pillow of a half-dozen towels and goes conveniently to sleep.

Somebody asked him whether deliberately sleeping in the bathtub wasn't dangerous business, and Mr. Hirsh, brave and defiant, said it was, but what can one do about it? Any minute now we expect to hear that Mr. Hirsh has written a song, "Sleeping in the Bathtub."

"Two of Evans City's well known tomcats, a large, yellow cat and a tiger cat, have entered the tree-sitting contest," writes Mrs. J. B. Cooper.

"This morning, at half-past three, their melodious voices could be heard issuing from a large willow tree in our backyard.

"At seven o'clock they were still there. They were finally persuaded to come down by well-aimed sticks. Unless someone else can tell one better, I think they have won the cat-tree-sitting contest."

Any veteran of the steel mills can paint a vivid picture of the old "boss rollers." The boss roller has given way to modern improvements, but in his day he was a power. He hired and fired the men who worked under him, scorning his company's employment office. On pay day it was he who collected all the wages for his mill and paid off the men himself. In the eyes of his men, the boss roller was supreme. The men would take orders from no other, no matter how high those others might be in the company's affairs. Some of the boss rollers of many years ago on the South Side were Jake Yellig, who was on the "muck rolls;" Joe Webb, on the guide mill; John Dashbach, Wallace Cready, Andy Freund and "Buck" Trimber.

On August 2 it will be just three years since the last issue of the Pittsburgh Evening Sun was published. On that date, newspapermen and former newspapermen will gather at the Press Club to honor Charles L. Lancaster, veteran editor, who retired from active service with the passing of the Sun. Mr. Lancaster was a newspaperman for 44 years. Many still in the profession, and many business men and public officials served under him as reporters. "Charley's Boys" will gather around him once again a week from Saturday, and many brave tales will be told.

There has been some doubt that the names of Iron Irene Schroeder and Glenn Dague would go down to posterity, no matter in what terms, but that doubt has been dispelled. For in the wax museum attached to the Johnny Jones shows there stands, in inanimate nonchalance, Irene looking askance on Glenn—or maybe it's Glenn looking askance on Irene.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph

Well, we got the treaty signed for the limitation of naval vessels, so we can settle down to steady building. You see you must build between these various conferences, otherwise you have nothing to sink when you meet. You hold a conference and decide to sink some vessels that would sink themselves if the conference was postponed for another year. England is to sink three battleships that competed against the Spanish armada, Japan is raising two that the Russians sunk, and will re-sink them for the treaty and the weeklies. We are building two to sink.

Yours,
WILL.

Raquel Borrows Money and Leaves Home Town

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Raquel Rojos, engaged to Bill Johnson, the richest man in the border town of Hermosa, has fallen in love with Jack Farrell, a handsome young engineer. She is about to break her engagement when she is startled to hear the banns of her marriage to Johnson read out in church. The notice has been given to the parish priest by her father, Pancho, to hasten the wedding. The girl flees blindly to the old ruins of the San Jeronimo Mission. Now she has put Hermosa behind her. She is on a train headed north for Phoenix, Ariz.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

An eerie light began to press against the windows of the train in which Raquel rode. Dawn was out there behind the dark rim of the world, sending out pearl-gray scouts to clear the way for flaunting rose banners and gold guidons.

When it was quite light she might be almost to Phoenix. Dawn reminded her of twilight. Except that it had an upward cheery song to it, while twilight sloped downward in a mournful dirge.

It had been twilight when Jack Farrell came to her in the ruined mission of San Jeronimo, where she hid following the reading of her marriage panns. All during the long afternoon she waited for him, crouched behind a leaning slab of marble that had once been a part of the altar of the mission chapel.

Twice voices approached, close by her hiding-place. So close that Raquel held her breath. Searching parties? No. The owners of the voices passed on. Little prayers of thanksgiving moved her lips. Pancho would not search for her. He considered her as good as sold, now that her banns were published.

The evening star winked a friendly eye at her through an opening in the roof before she heard the echo of hurrying feet.

Farrell! There was no need to reconnoiter. She knew. Out from the darkness she flitted, and stood, vibrant, expectant, before him.

"Raquita!" His arms enfolded her. Gently, then tensely, as he felt the yield of her.

Crossroads
Must Take One of the Roads

She lifted her lips. His kiss was so hungry it seemed to draw the blood from her heart and spread it hotly across her face.

He held her from him, seeking to search out her eyes in the darkness.

"Is it true, Raquita," he asked hoarsely, "about you and —Johnson?"

She clung to him. Crossroads. She had come to crossroads. She must take one road or the other. Along the dusty, beaten trail, brown and flat and uneventful with Johnson and such makeshift milestones as his money could buy for her. Or along the winding path through the green woods of the unknown with Farrell and the gay buds of adventure. Hermosa—or far places.

A moment only she stood on tiptoe, studying the roads. Then, in a flash, she threw off her past life like a burdensome mantle.

"It might have been true," she said, "but—I met you."

"Raquita!" He crushed her to him.

"How did you know," she asked, when she could draw away from him ever so little, "about what happened in church —about the banns?"

Resentment
Disapproves of Her Father's Act

"How did I know? Why the whole darned town is ringing with them! Pancho's down at Keno Joe's buying tequila for anyone that will drink it."

It was Pancho who took them —the banns—to Father Luis. Another passion replaced the one Raquel had so lately felt for Farrell. A passion of resentment against Pancho, her father.

"Johnson's forbidden me to see you again," she said. "He's probably told Pancho."

"I saw Johnson making for your place as I came out," Farrell laughed. "He was togged out as if he expected the wedding to take place this evening."

"The wedding will never be," she announced.

"You mean—you'll go through with this, Raquita—you'll go away, with me?" Farrell was drawing her to him again. Persuasively. Pleadingly.

"Not with you, hombre mio." Raquel shook a reproving head. "But I will go away."

"Alone, bonita? No. That will never do. I can't let you go, now that I know you care. You do care, don't you?"

She did not answer, but she did not deny his arms.

"Then you will go to the priest, tonight." Farrell decided. "Surely he cannot refuse to marry us, once he knows how things are between us."

Raquel's Plan
Wants to Go Away by Herself

"I—don't—know." Fearfully. "There is Pancho, and Johnson. Who knows what they have told Father Luis? After all, Pancho is my father. A Spanish father does with his womenfolk as he wills, Jack. I can't risk it. If Pancho should find us—"

The terror in her voice shook him. He was wax in her hands.

"Then you shall go, and I will go with you," he said. She felt rather than saw the set of his lean jaws. No, not that. They must not leave Hermosa together. That would be too sweet a dish for the toads and the scorpions, Raquel Rojos, riding out of town with a stranger and the devil as her traveling companions. Her arms twined softly about Farrell's neck.

Leaves Hermosa
Jack Supplies Raquel With Money

"Please, carito mio," she begged, her lips against his throat. "My name would then be a rag for these coyotes to tear at. Let me go, now, tonight. You come after. As soon as the coyotes sleep. Let them think I have run away from everyone. From Johnson. From you. With you here, pretending surprise, grumbling that you are hurt that I should leave you on—what is it you say?—'on a limb,' they will gabble only that I am a foolish one, not that I am bad. I cannot bear they should say I am bad, like Lily, carito."

He kissed her. Lightly, on the creamy satin of her fore-

Packing Up to Seek Giant Sable in Africa

AFRICAN JUNGLE NATIVE WITH GIANT SABLE SUCH AS EXPEDITION IS PLANNING TO SEEK

BOULTON GOING TO AFRICA

One of the few spots left in the world where the white man has barely touched—the Chobe Swamp of Portuguese West Africa—will lure five adventurers within the next month.

Two of the party will be Rudyerd and Laura Boulton, Pittsburgh explorers and scientists, who recently returned from a 15-month expedition in Africa. The other three will be Ralph and Mrs. Pulitzer and their son, members of the New York publishing family. The Boultons will leave Pittsburgh Monday night, and expect to join the others and sail July 30. They do not know how long they will stay in the wilds.

But they plan to get, besides many scientific specimens for Carnegie Museum, where Boulton is assistant curator of birds, the giant sable, most sought-for animal because of its 65-inch horns. And perhaps, says Boulton, in the Chobe swamp district they may get a white rhinoceros.

Extinct in all Africa for more than a score of years, excepting 20 on a reservation, one of the white rhinos was reported seen in the Chobe swamps 10 years ago. If there's one left—the Pulitzers and Boultons hope to get it.

This will be Boulton's third expedition to Africa. His first was with the Arthur Bernay-Angolo party in 1925, when Boulton was able to bring back one of the rare giant sables.

The only time the big sable can be captured is during the month prior to the rainy season, when the grass has been burned off and before the rains encourage the new crop. Bush grass grows six feet high.

SHOOTING LAID TO JEALOUSY

Jealousy today was given as the cause of a shooting at 2228 Tustin street last night, when Elvira Richard, Negro, shot her husband, Richard, in the abdomen, police say. He is in Mercy Hospital.

Richard told police at the hospital, they said, that he had been visiting a friend, and that when he reached his home his wife shot him. His condition was serious.

Parts of New River Road Being Used

Sections of the Ohio River boulevard in Emsworth, Avalon, Ben Avon and Bellevue are being used for local traffic, according to engineers of Booth & Flinn, contractors, with prospect that the entire stretch between Camp Horne road and the Jack's Run Bridge will be thrown open unofficially within a month.

Work on the Jack's Run span, the largest of nine bridges along the route, will be completed late this fall. Engineers expect that the boulevard will be officially opened to through traffic by December 15, eight months ahead of schedule.

Urges Case History System In Prison Operation

Dr. A. Warren Stearns, of Boston, commissioner of correction for Massachusetts, advocates a new science of penology which he declares is the result of the merging of criminology with the parent science of sociology. Dr. Stearns was in Pittsburgh yesterday attending a meeting of the western branch of the Pennsylvania committee on penal affairs.

The new criminology would operate not on the basis of retribution for what the criminal has done to society, but on the case history method, a study of the career of the criminal, his mental makeup and environment, and would prescribe the proper treatment to rehabilitate him as a member of society.

Dr. Stearns said Massachusetts already has made a start toward reforming penal affairs by extending the probation system and withdrawing 30 per cent of the prison population into honor camps. As a result the state has only about 5,000 in prisons, half of the prison population of 25 years ago, and one of the lowest totals in the country.

WOMAN DIES IN EAST END COLLISION

Boy Pushing Bicycle Killed By Machine; Police Trail Alleged Driver to Home

A woman and a boy were dead today and four persons were injured, one critically, as a result of a series of automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district late yesterday and last night.

The woman, Mrs. Mary Bright, 73, of 750 Elm way, Oakmont, was riding with her son, Hugh Bright, when their machine collided with one driven by Margaret Gamel, of 500 Sickle street, Wilkinsburg, in McPherson boulevard.

The boy was Leo Vollmer, 14, of 715 Foreland street. He was pushing his bicycle in Evergreen road, near East street, when he was struck by a machine driven, police say, by Ben Harlan, 19, of 206 Clairmont street, West View.

DRIVER ARRESTED

Police say Harlan drove away after the accident, but was later arrested in his home. He confessed, police said, after he was shown a door handle from his car, which was found near the wrecked bicycle.

Hugh Whiteman, 40, of 509 Alter street, East Carnegie, a conductor for the Pittsburgh Railways Company, received lacerations of the forehead when he stepped from between two cars into the path of an automobile at the Ingram car barn, according to a company report. The driver of the machine was George W. Fender, of 3216 Universal street, Sheraden, the report said. Whiteman was given treatment by a physician and taken home.

THREE HURT IN COLLISION

John Mazur, 19, of 331 Allegheny avenue, West Aliquippa, suffered a fractured skull and was sent to the Rochester General Hospital, and John Lescisin, 22, of 132 Main street, and John Stancusosky, 25, of 213 Main street, both in West Aliquippa, were cut and bruised when a car in which they were riding collided with one driven, police said, by Nicholas Micire, 19, of 417 Hopewell avenue, Aliquippa, in Hopewell avenue last night. The injured were first given treatment at the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation emergency hospital. Micire escaped unhurt.

Oakland police today were seeking three men to question them in connection with an automobile crash last night in Bigelow boulevard, near Dithridge street, which caused the car to catch fire.

The men fled after the machine left the boulevard, skidded into an iron pole and into a field where it caught fire, police said. The car was towed to a police garage.

McKeesport Street Work Progressing

The Pittsburgh Railways Company has already repaired the street along its tracks from Pirl street to the car barns, Zwingler said. The city repair work east of Fawcett street will be held up while the Bell Telephone Company is putting in the conduits there.

CHARGES AIRED IN HEARING OF MALONE MEN

Discharged Engineer Again Denies Tardiness, Laxity; Insists He Lives in City

The Civil Service Commission has reserved decision on the appeal of Joseph M. Clifford from his discharge, July 15, by Safety Director James M. Clark, as assistant engineer in the Building Inspection Bureau.

The hearing was conducted by Dr. F. H. Frederick, president, and Dr. S. H. Johnson, Mayor Kline's brother-in-law. Attorney J. Howard Devlin was absent.

Assistant City Solicitor Harry Diamond, representing Clark at the hearing, reiterated the director's charges of tardiness, insubordination and neglect of duty in failing to keep the filing system up to date and being absent from duty without leave last July 7.

BLAMES FELDMAN

Clifford repeated denials of the first two charges and explained he was absent July 7 because it was the last day of his annual two weeks' vacation. He was entitled to an extra day because July 4 was in his vacation period, Clifford said.

Clifford, a political ally of former President of Council James F. Malone, had advised Clark in an exchange of letters that his discharge was prompted by Harry Feldman, Fifth Ward leader for Mayor Kline, to create a vacancy for Feldman's friend, Louis Schwartz.

At the hearing, Clifford testified his superiors never had accused him of tardiness, insubordination or neglect of duty during his four years' service until he got his suspension notice from Clark.

CLARK'S WITNESSES

Clark's witnesses included Richard Neff, chief engineer of the building inspection bureau; B. J. Carowthers, plan examiner, Clifford's co-worker; Frank Mack, engineering inspector; Robert Brown, chief clerk in the safety department, and City Detectives Guy Daley and Emer K. Henry.

Neff, in charge of the bureau, said he had been informed Clifford never was on time, but that no records of arrival times were kept in the office. Neff said he never had reprimanded Clifford for tardiness.

Concerning failure to keep the files in shape, Neff declared important reports of steel and concrete inspections that should have been filed each day, often lay on desks for two weeks.

Neff declared Clifford left for his vacation June 23, and should have returned July 7, regardless of July 4 being a holiday.

ASKED TO CHECK TIME

Carowthers declared Clifford reported in the same room with him and was late frequently, but that no time record was kept in the office.

Mack explained he and Clifford shared the responsibility of filing the important reports, that they filed on alternate months, and that he had heard no objections to Clifford's work or his arrival time.

Diamond and Clark questioned Clifford's residence in Pittsburgh, and sought to prove he conducted Burt's Inn on Wyman road, Fair Haven, which is outside the city. Clifford admitted visiting the inn, but insisted he lived at 741 Bryn Mawr road, Fifth Ward.

Detectives Daley and Henry testified they investigated Clifford's residence last Saturday and saw Clifford and his wife at the inn. Henry said he was advised by the tax collector of Fair Haven that Clifford lived in Pittsburgh.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question: Do you think Pittsburgh might benefit by election laws that would allow the city's citizens to recall their mayor as did Detroit voters?
EDWARD G. LANG, director Public Works, North Side: The city would hardly be benefited by using such a law. The time for consideration of such matters is at the time of the election of all public officials. I don't believe recall works for the best interests of the political organization.

Edward G. Lang

MISS G. SCHENKMAN, saleswoman, city: I don't see why not. People frequently find out that an official is not the best for the position he holds and, in that case, it might be well to let a better man do the work.

Miss Schenkman

R. Kibler

R. KIBLER, Checker, Oakland: At the time a man is elected to an office the people should be satisfied that he is the right person to elect, and then recall would be unnecessary.

MISS DOROTHY FLUCKER, schoolgirl, East End: Well, if such an election law would be of any help to the city or would benefit the people I don't see why we shouldn't have it.

Miss Flucker

Larry B. Jacobs

LARRY B. JACOBS, director, Oakland: I think it's a good idea. The people who elect a man should most certainly have the power to recall and elect another in his place.

Miss Ridenouer

MISS VERA RIDENOUER, Mt. Washington: When a man is elected to an office I think there should be sufficient trust in his ability that recall would not be necessary.

TREE SITTERS STONED

Sympathizers of opposition "sitters" were blamed today for the stoning at 11 o'clock last night of Pittsburgh's original tree sitters, perched high in two trees in a yard at 631 Sickles street, Brushton.

While Robert Gravely, 9, and his brother, James, 14, perched in a cherry tree, and Lawrence Gravely, 11, and his cousin, Sam King, using a locust tree, were preparing to sleep, a barage of stones came up and roused the sitters to indignation.

The code of sitterdom forbade them to lower themselves to the ground and give battle to their assailants, so all they could do was shout their contempt at six boys on the ground, who left after they had exhausted their supply of "ammunition."

Two teams in Homestead and one in Lincoln place are competing for the mythical world record, whatever that may be.

Carl Roper, 13; Edward Thomas, 10, and Ray Stopher, 13, "reverted to type" at 6 p. m., Tuesday, and took to the trees.

Their "hangout" is a perch 20 feet above Thirteenth avenue and West street, Homestead. They were followed two hours later by Carl Smith and Dennis Linn, both 14, of Lincoln place.

Two other "tree-minded" youths at Lincoln place went aloft at 6 p. m. yesterday with the same intention.

Early yesterday morning, three Homestead sitters left their perches during the downpour of rain.

"I'm a game guy, but I ain't a duck," said Bill Taner, one of the trio.

The latest development in "tree-sitting comfort" was the installation of a radio set and a tent for one of the Homestead entrants.

Boy Fined $25 In Theft of Auto

Not stealing the car, but driving it for a demonstration, was his alibi, but it failed to save Stanley Lampicke, 17, of 197 Beelen street, from a $25 fine or 30 days to the workhouse in Morals Court today.

Lampicke was arrested last night after Walter Carter, Negro employe of the Schenley Apartments garage, reported Lampicke had stopped to ask the price and sought a demonstration. A short time later it was missing.

A policeman appeared on the scene, asked Sulinsky for his owner's and driver's card, and when he failed to produce either, arrested him, according to the Woods Run police report. He will be given a hearing in Traffic Court.

Chicago Perturbed By Anthrax Death

CHICAGO, July 24.—(AP.)—The death of John Bloch, 48, from a disease diagnosed as anthrax, puzzled the coroner's office today. Anthrax is a virulent, febrile disease of cattle, sheep and horses, rare among humans except those working in wool or hair or handling the hides of infected beasts. Bloch's work as a clerk required him to handle nothing by which the diseases is usually communicated.

An autopsy revealed the anthrax bacilli, Dr. J. J. Kearns, of the coroner's office, said.

RAIDERS SEIZE BARS, ARREST 3

Three men were held for hearings today following six raids by prohibition agents, three of which were in Pittsburgh, two in Charleroi, and one near Oakmont.

In an unoccupied house at 514 River avenue, a 200-gallon still and 15 gallons of moonshine, were reported seized. At 6800 Frankstown avenue a 20-foot bar, fully equipped with gin, alcohol, beer and whisky, was reported found.

Joseph Debelic was arrested at the Frankstown avenue place and William Armstrong was taken into custody at 1719 Wylie avenue, where agents seized whisky found in an improvised bar in the rear of his restaurant, the agents said.

A small quantity of liquor was reported found in a small bungalow on the Saltsburg road, near Oakmont. Agents reported arresting Charles Pontier, of 1149 Lincoln avenue, Charleroi, and seizing a still and liquor in the two raids in that town.

Hit-Run Driver Held For Felling Pole

Emerson Braden, 19, of 3085 Texas avenue, Dormont, is a new kind of hit-run driver, police charge. When his machine knocked down a light pole at Oliver avenue and Smithfield street early today, he failed to heed a patrolman's whistle to halt, it is alleged.

The officer gave chase and overtook him at Penn avenue and Sixth street. Charged with reckless driving, he was released on a $50 forfeit for a hearing in Traffic Court.

RAIL CROSSING STIRS DISPUTE

A three-cornered fight has developed in Beaver County over elimination of a grade crossing three and a half miles east of Industry Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad on a road leading to Tuscarora.

This developed before Public Service Commissioner Charles H. Young, when Timothy Normile, secretary of Industry Township commissioners, objected to a previous ruling that Beaver County pay half and the township half the cost of the improvement. Secretary Normile said he thought the township should pay only a fourth and the county three-fourths.

The State Department of Highways complained regarding the dangerous condition of the crossing, known as Route 243. A previous hearing was held, this resulting in the commission examining additional plans, which were up yesterday for consideration. It was testified a straighter and safer grade could be obtained if the Pennsylvania changed its plans further to eliminate the crossing at grade.

Secretary Normile opposed the plans as proposed. It is claimed there should be a wider curve built at the point.

MAP ON PARKING ZONES READY

The prohibition of downtown parking is almost an actuality, Lewis W. McIntyre, head of the Bureau of Traffic Planning, announced today as the bureau began distribution of parking maps of the downtown, North Side and East End districts. McIntyre said two of the three major types of parking are already banned downtown, these being unlimited and three-hour. Only one-hour parking is allowed on a few streets.

The maps contain all parking regulations of the city corrected as of June this year. Special emphasis is paid to the congested downtown district, where no parking is allowed at any time. The map explains that on "no parking" streets, vehicles are permitted to stop long enough to take on or discharge passengers, and to load or unload merchandise in readiness for immediate handling.

Copies of the parking guide may be obtained at the office of the Planning Bureau, 908 City-County Building.

George E. Clarkson, chairman of the accident prevention sub-committee of the Better Traffic Committee, and chairman of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, addressed traffic policemen at roll call today in the City-County Building.

At the same time instruction cards containing extracts from the law on passing street cars were distributed to the officers and to the patrolmen of the 17 stations. Clarkson's talk was the third of a series of educational talks arranged by the Better Traffic Committee.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Frederick Martin Davies, Pittsburgher's Grandson, Engaged in East

There's one belief of the good old days that hasn't been debunked yet, and that belief is that summer is the time of romance. And I do not think we shall ever be disillusioned about the power of Cupid's moonbeams on a starry summer evening. For all summer long we hear of interesting engagements and of plans for weddings.

From the East, from Newport, R. I., where the girl's father and mother are summering, comes news of a betrotha. of a society girl to the grandson of a Pittsburgher. The girl is Diana Dodge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Widener of New York, and the man in the case is Frederick Martin Davies, of New York, grandson of the late Eugene M. O'Neill, of Pittsburgh.

Noted Family

On Sunday evening the Wideners gave a large dinner at the Orchards, Newport, in honor of Diana and her fiance.

Mr. Davies is the son of the late Frederick M. Davies, a prominent banker, broker, horseman and clubman and at one time treasurer of the National Horse Show Association of America.

His mother was married on Friday in Paris to Horace Chase Stebbins, of New York. Mr. Davies is a grandson of the late Mr. O'Neill, who was the editor and publisher of the Pittsburgh Dispatch from 1877 to 1902. Mrs. Sigourney Thayer and Audrey Davies, both of New York, who are now abroad, are his sisters.

He was graduated from Harvard with the class of '27. He's a member of the Racquet and Tennis and Harvard clubs.

Diana Dodge was graduated from the Chapin School, New York. And she studied at the Sorbonne. She was introduced to society at a large debutante ball given in August two years ago by Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice at Miramar, Newport.

It's expected that a large dance the Rices will give at Miramar on August 22 will be in honor of Diana and her fiance.

Bride Today

The bride was Jane Roberta Smith, daughter of the Junior Anthony W. Smiths of Elwood street, and the bridegroom was M. Graham Netting.

Following the ceremony, the Nettings left for a honeymoon in the mountains of Eastern Pennsylvania. After August 15 they will be at home in South Highland avenue.

The bride is a post-graduate student at the University of Pittsburgh, and Mr. Netting is assistant curator of herpetology at Carnegie Museum.

Activities at Girl Scout Camp 'Redwing' More Varied This Year

Activities at Camp Redwing, the Girl Scout camp at Ribold, are even more varied this year than ever before. Puppetry has been inaugurated as a hobby and a stage is erected with blankets between the trees when the time is propitious for a performance. The first puppets were made from scraps of cloth, but some of the girls have been working for a week or so, modeling from clay and then casting the little figures in plaster wood.

Some time ago the girls transformed their camp into an old English country fair, and had appropriate festivities for the evening. Outdoor breakfasts, overnight hikes, hidden treasure hunts, marshmallow roasts, supper cook-outs, serenades, a unique star party with a most entertaining and original program, and a book night, at which each patrol dramatized a scene from a favorite story, have been among the more recent events.

Miss Jeanne Christy, camp chief, has a staff of 30 working under her direction. Well balanced menus are prepared by a dietician, and a trained nurse is on duty at all times. Sunday is the only day open to visitors and there are rules, all fairly flexible, which the girls are required to observe and by which they receive the utmost benefit from their camp stay.

Mrs. E. V. Babcock is chairman of the camp committee, which also includes Mrs. C. L. Pierce, Jr., Mrs. W. H. R. Hilliard, Mrs. R. V. Bingay and Mrs. C. H. Borntraeger.

Mrs. R. W. Cummins, president of the Edgewood Woman's Club, accompanied by her husband and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Cole, have returned from the Adirondacks, where they spent a fortnight. Mrs. T. S. Grubbs, another club member, and her family are "vacationing" in Canada at present, and Mrs. W. C. Dierks is at Pike Run Country Club, near Mt. Pleasant. Mrs. Dean Harvey, a former president, and her husband are home from a motor trip through Eastern New York, and Mrs. H. D. James has returned from a three-month European tour.

LINEN SPORTS ENSEMBLE PRESENTED BY STYLIST

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, July 24.—When we go down to the sea we stop at nothing in our efforts to present a gay and colorful picture. Just now the various coastal resorts and places present multi-hued pictures that are very emblematic of this exciting and eventful era. It is thought that drab and ordinary resort fashions are gone forever, and certainly a vacation spent in loose, colorful beach raiment is as cheering to the mentality as it is healthful to the body. And so we have gaudy swim suits and pyjamas with hats and accessories cleverly blended into the color scheme, and so none of us need have the ocean blues anymore from wearing an uninteresting bathing suit and an indifferent beach robe.

THE LEANING TO LINEN evidenced by the mode is becoming more pronounced as the season waxes. Linen frocks, suits, hats and beach ensembles have been the pleasant rule and women have been delighted to find that linen is as smart as it is cool and comfortable. Jane Regney, who has been extremely successful with sports clothes, has used linen for several of her most popular models. One of these we are privileged to show you today in the form of a sketch of a linen sports ensemble in white with piecings of blue linen appliqued on the bodice. The straight box-coat has a scarf-collar buttoned on at one side with blue buttons and lined with blue linen. Similar buttons fasten the two pockets on the upper side of the box-pleated skirt.

THE OTHER SKETCH, need we tell you, is of a gay pyjama ensemble destined to decorate Dinard, Le Touquet or some other delectable resort. This beach ensemble is of bright blue crepe de chine finely dotted in white. The bandings on the coat are of plain blue crepe. A linen belt in two shades of pink adds another note of color that may be repeated in the accesories if desired. It is by Chantal.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

What If Your Boy Married A 'Bad Girl?'

That's a terrible question, is it not? And it seems very far away from your happy home life now. It seemed very far away to two other mothers also, but the time came when they had to face it in all its agony and darkness.

Would you have had the courage to do what Julia Cannon did if your idolized son had chosen such a girl for his wife? Or would you still be holding off as Gene Leverett's mother-in-law is doing?

The little bad girl—how tragically many there are in these filming reckless days. And what pain and shame they spread through many a home. Is it ever safe to marry a girl who has sown her wild oats? That was the question that Peter asked—and all Peter's respectable friends and relatives answered with wild yells of "No!" But we said that if the girl had proved that she wanted to go straight she might be worthy of his great love and trust.

And then the letters piled in! Some telling us we were right. Some saying we were hideously wrong. Letters from bad girls themselves. Letters from men who had married them and blessed — or cursed — the step they had taken. And now a letter from a mother who first cursed—then blessed—the day that brought one little bad girl into her family.

A MOTHER'S STORY

"Dear Sally Martin:

"You ask for opinions on Peter's problem, and I want to tell you mine. In fact, it's more than an opinion. It's an experience . . . an experience that began in a mother's bitter heartbreak and has grown into happiness, strange as it may seem.

"You see I had a son who fell in love with a girl like that girl Peter wants to marry. I was horrified, outraged, frantic. You can imagine yourself just what I went through when I knew that he intended to bring this girl into the family.

"I did everything I could think of to break it off. I wept. I pleaded. I threatened to disown him. But he wouldn't listen to me. And he married her. It made me actually ill. I was sure his life was ruined and the family disgraced. I flatly refused to speak to her . . . or to have anything further to do with him. And I just sat and waited, sure she would do something to break my boy's heart and bring further disgrace on him and his family.

FORGIVENESS OFFERED

"But she didn't. And I wanted my boy so badly that I finally called him up one day and asked him to see me. He said he would forgive me for disowning him if I would come to his house for dinner. That wasn't so easy. But I went. And I found his wife as sweet appearing a little lady as you could want to see. I began to wonder if maybe there was something good about her. I went again. I asked them home. And I tried to study this girl without prejudice.

"And I finally came to the conclusion that if my boy had married any of the 'good' girls we knew he couldn't have found a better pal and helpmate. She saves his money, and is in every way a good wife, and a modest and self-respecting woman who is a credit to him and shows up some of these clothes-crazy, inexperienced girls who don't appreciate a home and an honest-to-goodness man.

"Some like her I know might have lived up to my worst fears, but I'm compelled to admit, hard as it was for me to do it, that this one is one of the finest women and best wives in the world. She has been married to my boy for eight years now, and never once has there been the slightest whisper about her character, and that is more than we can say for some of these 'virtuous' girls who flirt around after they're married, and think nothing of it.

"Tell Peter to be sure of his girl . . . and if he is sure to go ahead and marry her. We all of us make mistakes, but a mistake isn't always a sign of being no good. I've found that out.

"MRS. JULIA CANNON."

HOPEFUL SIGN

But not every mother forgives as Mother Julia has done. Here is the story of Genevieve who plumbed the depths and came back. But her man's mother still can't believe in that redemption. However, there are hopeful signs—and I'm betting on plucky Genevieve.

"Dear Elsie:

"I've just read your article about Peter, who wants to marry a girl who hasn't always 'been all she should be', and if the truth from one who knows will help Peter, will you please convey this message to him?

"I, myself, at one time was one of those poor creatures who went down, through misplaced confidence. I was wild, discouraged and hopeless. I thought I was gone for then I met a Peter. A man straight, clean and honest. And he fell in love with me.

"With his love, faith and understanding, I reached the heights again, where decency and loyalty to him, the man I loved, were the two biggest things in my life . . . the heights I never thought I could see again as long as I lived. I worship him for his belief in me . . . . for his faith in my desire to come back and be a true woman. And never, as long as I live, could I ever let that faith and love and trust down. I've had my lesson. I know just how little joy and how much dreadful misery there is to be found in this 'bright life' you hear so much about. We have been married five years now, and we are both supremely happy.

"The only flaw in our cup of happiness is his mother's attitude. She has never forgiven him for marrying a woman like me. And she has never forgiven me for 'roping him in,' as she puts it. But lately, there are even little signs that she is relenting and beginning to believe that I'm not poison and won't ruin her boy's life."

Fay King Marvels at Facial Resemblance of Folks Not Related

MANY SISTERS DO NOT LOOK A BIT ALIKE
FAY KING
THE SCREEN HAS LOTS OF RELATIVE TYPES!

By FAY KING

It certainly is a prank of nature which makes faces in one family so different and the features of total strangers so alike. How often in a crowd we see someone who so perfectly reminds us of a friend far away, while sisters and brothers do not resemble each other at all.

How many stars on the screen one might number in groups who could be related, yet their blood relatives would have difficulty proving it by looks.

Two men sitting at nearby tables in a night club were considered so alike by their friends that they shook hands and introduced themselves.

I know a couple who adopted a child who looks more like them than their own children do.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

The 'Greens Expedition' Is a Complete Success

Mary squeezed my arm at my promise that "nobody should get her," and I felt that she comprehended the silent amplification of that promise which was in my mind. But there was no opportunity for more words upon the subject of Philip Veritzen's oppression, even if either of us had wished to utter them, for the boys were dancing up and down with impatience at our tardiness in coming to their picnic fire.

"Mums!" Junior's voice was almost a wail, "everything will be spoiled if you don't hurry."

"Mary!" shouted her young brother reproachfully, "I thought you said you were starved. You don't act very starved to me."

"Don't I?" Mary retorted. "Watch me; I'm a hungry panther, and I'm coming to eat everything up."

She advanced toward them in a succession of little leaping runs, and I noted as I had done so often before, the lithe grace of her movements. The boys squealed with delight as she pounced upon them, and for the next few minutes we ate with the wonderful appetites and appreciation of those who have spent hours in the open air while I mentally echoed Roderick's wistful query when we had finished the meal and were packing up the picnic things in the smallest possible compass for stowing away in the bottom of the car.

Do we have to go back, now?" he asked, and there was in his voice more than the ordinary wish of a small boy to prolong an enjoyable outing. There was the realization — unconscious, perhaps—of the woods' experiences, which he had missed and with a little tug at my throat I resolved to make up those things to the child as much as I could while he was with us.

"Must we, Mums?" Junior chimed in perfunctorily, with the inevitable desire of a child to snatch at any chance to prolong a pleasure. But I knew that my son was too familiar with family customs to have any hope of staying longer.

"Yes, we must hurry back now," I told them firmly, "but you know, we're going to have two more wonderful trips next week"—I looked at Junior significantly.

"O—oh! yes, I know the Christmas——" he clapped his hand over his mouth at my look of warning. "Ge!" he mumbled when he had released his lips again. "I almost gave away the s'prise."

"I'll tell the world you did, Junior," Mary laughed while Roderick looked at his cousin wide-eyed. "Better lock up that mouth of yours if you can't keep it closed better than that."

"I won't forget again, you bet your boots," Junior promised fervently. "Hurry up, Rod, let's get out of here. This is nothing to what we're going to do next week."

He swaggered toward the car, the importance of his secret so pompously investing him and so palpably impressing Roderick, that Mrs. Ticer, Mary and I kept our faces straight with difficulty, and Mary plunged volubly into a plan for disposing the holly in the car with the least discomfort to any of us.

"Suppose we pack as much as possible on the running board in the luggage carrier and cover it with that rubber trunk case," she said. "Then nobody'll know what we have, and perhaps trace this lovely secret place of ours—I mean of Mrs. Ticer's," she amended apologetically.

"The first word was all right, Mary," Mrs. Ticer laughed. "I've always meant to share it with you folks."

"You're a darling, Mrs. Ticer," Mary told her, "and that's all the more reason why we shouldn't give this secret away. So after we've covered up the luggage carrier and piled all the rest of the holly beside the car, Junior and Roderick and I will climb into the back seats and sit on our feet with our legs tucked up under us. Then Auntie Madge, you and Mrs. Ticer can pile the holly on the floor until it reaches as high as our heads if you want to, and cover it with the blanket. That's one time you wild boys will have to sit still," she admonished the giggling youngsters—"it's no joke to fall into a lot of holly—to say nothing of spoiling the Christmas decorations."

"Then when we get to Mrs. Ticer's we can unload her share——"

"Unload nothing," my good neighbor interrupted forcefully. "I kin take Jerry and go down another day. This is all for you folks."

She stopped my protest with an imperative gesture. "Don't say a word," she warned. "I want to do it. And if you don't mind letting 'em come, I'll take Roderick and Junior along the day I go. I would not want to ask for better help than they be."

"Look out, Mrs. Ticer," Mary warned in a low voice. "They'll burst with pride if you say much more."

And indeed the small boys looked as if her prediction might be justified as they swaggeringly packed away their picnic gear in the car, after they had thanked our neighbor with boisterous enthusiasm.

We followed Mary's plan in packing the holly for transportation to the farmhouse and I drove home as swiftly as possible mindful of the cramped position of Mary and the two small boys on the back seat. But whatever of discomfort was their's, it was forgotten as we came into the farmyard to see a large car drawn up at the side of the veranda. Junior's shout could have been heard at Ticer's.

"It's Uncle Harry's car. I'll bet Marion's here."

But I knew that Marion was not yet released from school, and I wondered dreadfully as I ran up the steps if some threatening emergency had brought the Underwoods to us ahead of time.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Pimples behave better, do a get-away, when soap and water are used freely and often, and the skin is not oiled much. They are small boils, and warm compresses bring them to a head and will often open them. Blackheads lead to eruptions; the pore, filled with sebaceous oil and dust breaks its walls, insidious germs walk in, and the jig is up.

When the hair falls, that is precisely the time when it needs vigorous brushing. Every hair that the brush drags forth has served its term of usefulness; it is as dead as Cleopatra and the sooner it is out, the sooner the little fuzzy understudy will appear to take its place. Hair mbults more in warm weather than in cold; it grows faster in the summer than it does in the winter. It has ideas.

To keep the cash customers interested, beauty shops must offer novelties. Hence platinized hair. You take your sacred glory halo to the beautytorium and have it plated in gold, silver or bronze. The hair is shampooed, waved and dressed. The operator of pulchritude processes then holds over the patron's expectant head an atomizer from which flows the magic metallic fluid. Next day a special preparation is applied for the removal of the glitter.

If a double chin is to be thwarted, it must be caught young, when that first crosswise fold appears. The excess chin may be due to accumulations of adipose tissue or it may be due to soft, sagging tissues. If fat, it must be rolled between the fingers to dissolve the new addition; if it is saggy it must be whipped and patted. In either case it needs ice rubs or applications of cold water, also neck exercises — throwing the head forward and back, turning it from side to side or swinging it around in a circle. The bulge beneath the beauteous chin must be battled.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, July 25

An interesting and eventful day is forecast from the predominant lunar and mutual directions. New enterprises or negotiations with large corporations or secret organizations are in prospect, with much diplomatic maneuver or secret understanding of agreement. These successfully operated may bring renown or sound position in the public eye, with gratifying personal recognition and favoritism from those in high places. There may be a few minor anxieties or complications.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of an eventful and interesting year, with the prospect of successful dealing with large corporations where diplomacy and stratagem will play leading parts in obtaining recognition or favors from those in power. The private associations may contribute to happiness and business prosperity, despite small anxieties.

A child born on this day should be ambitious and clever and should reach prominent place through its faculty for diplomacy, strategy or intrigue, mainly in connection with secret orders or close corporations. It should be popular and personally happy.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Measles Most Contagious Disease

Infancy and early childhood are subject to many more or less serious contagious diseases. Measles is one of the most common of them.

DR COPELAND

In and of itself measels is not serious. Like whooping cough however it may be followed by bronchitis, pneumonia —which is the most common complication—and tuberculosis. Death rarely occurs in uncomplicated measels in a child over four years of age, but under that age it may be fatal.

When a grown person has an attack of measels it is a serious matter. It goes very hard with such a person. Among Indian tribes it is a fatal ailment.

Measles is the most highly contagious disease known to man. From the time the first symptoms appear until the catarrhal symptoms disappear, for a week or more, the measles patient is a menace to others.

The infection is carried by the secretions of the nose, mouth and throat. It may be transmitted by sneezing or by contact with the secretions in some other manner.

A person is not apt to have measles more than once. But an occasional person may have it a second or even a third or fourth time.

It is a mistake for a mother to deliberately expose her child to the dangers of measles. Until the age of 5 certainly every effort should be made to avoid the disease. Fatalities are largest among the very young.

Among the first symptoms are a sense of chilliness or a real chill. Fever, headache and a marked increase in the secretions of the nose and throat follow. The eyes are red and fun water and are sensitive to the light. The victim is always sneezing and coughing.

In a day or two, or by four days after the first signs, an eruption appears on the face. Dark red, smooth spots come out on the face and then spread to the rest of the body. The skin may itch and burn.

Then there is a peeling process. It is not so pronounced as in scarlet. Next after the eruption begins to clear away, tiny scales or flakes form on the skin. This may continue for several weeks.

Keep the patient in bed and surround him with all the sanitary means of assisting the cure. The itching of the eruption may be relieved by applying petroleum oil, cocoa butter or cold cream. This helps, too, to keep the scales from floating into the air.

The patient should sleep with the windows open night and day so as to get all the fresh air possible. All complications must be watched for.

Do not neglect a cough that continues. Build up the body by simple food and quiet living. The patient must not be considered cured until all the symptoms disappear.

Answers to Health Queries

T. B. H. Q.—How can superfluous hair be removed? Is there any chance of scarring?

3. What do you advise for headaches?

A.—When the electric needle is properly used there is little danger of scarring the skin, but it must be employed by an expert. Consult a skin specialist.

2. Yes. But it takes time and careful attention to the health in general.

3. A thorough examination and a complete eye test will usually locate the source of the trouble. Eye strain, infected teeth, tonsils and sinuses, constipation, indigestion, kidney conditions or nasal catarrh may all be responsible.

Household Hints

Wash hosiery after each wearing so the perspiration will not have a chance to rot the fabric.

Don't try to turn off the water faucets with all your strength, as it only wears out the washers. Turn them off sufficiently to stop the water and then stop turning.

When preparing a mustard foot bath, be sure to dissolve the mustard in cold water first. Then add it to the hot water. If just dumped in, the mustard is very apt to stick to the skin and cause a burn or blister.

head. It was, she knew, the salute of surrender.

"But Raquita," he said, hopefully, at last, "there is no train from Hermosa."

"I will ride to Columbus Junction. There is a train, before midnight. I could go on that train except—I have no money."

"Ride on what? My horse?—I came here on foot. As you must have come. If I returned for a horse—they might be watching me——"

"I will find the horse." He knew she had already solved this problem. Her assurance told him. There remained, then, only the money.

Reluctantly—it was taking every ounce of will at his command to let her go—he reached in his pocket, drew out a roll of bills, pressed them into her palm. Her slim fingers closed over them.

"They are a loan, hombre mio," said Raquel. "I shall repay."

"It will not be necessary, my darling," Farrell reminded her proudly. "You will be my wife."

An hour later Pancho Rojo's piebald pony, tied to a ring in the side of Keno Joe's dance hall, felt a familiar hand smoothing along its tangled mane.

"Quiet, Chico," whispered Raquel. "Who feeds you lumps of sugar, eh, and avacados? Raquel, is it not? Come now, you must serve me well. I know you will come home when I turn you loose."

The pony's hoofbeats were silenced by the cushion of dust into which they thudded.

At the edge of town, in a trysting place on Johnson's 10 acres by Pueblo Creek, Farrell waited. It had all been arranged between them. He lifted her from the saddle, held her as if he would never let her go. The frenzy of his lips covered her face, her hands, her throat, with the passion of their parting. One last embrace—

"Remember, Raquita mia, you are to wait for me." Clinging lips—

She was off across the desert. The wind in her hair. A chant in her heart.

"Adios, Hermosa," she flung back across her shoulder. "I put you behind me. I shall never willingly look at your ugliness again."

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

A Gracious Bow, the Dignified Greeting

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. After not seeing some men friends for a long time on account of misunderstanding between the fathers, if you happen to meet them at a party or dance, what is the proper thing to do? Should the girl go over to the men friends and say "Hello"?

2. Would it be proper to send a graduation card to a young man after not seeing him for about two years, because of the above reason? M. A. S.

1. No, it would be highly undignified for the girl to go over to where the man is and greet him. She may, if she wishes, bow graciously to him, but she would show extremely poor taste if she goes toward where he is standing.

2. Yes, if the girl wishes to, and especially since apparently the misunderstanding was not the fault of either of them.

A Card for the Group Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are giving a wedding present to one of the girls from our office and enclosing a card. Should each girl sign her name individually, or one girl write the names of all the girls on the card? J.

Each girl should sign her own name to the card.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

This madness called love, which ends in marriage, is constantly being underrated by people who write me that marriage should be founded upon friendship, and that one should not hesitate to analyze love and give the mental and spiritual attractions the lead over the physical.

I'm old enough to know better I suppose, but I still cherish the belief that love is the greatest thing in the world, and that it is something you can't lasso and pull the wings off of, in an effort to make your proportions scientifically correct. A teaspoonful of this and a cup of that and butter the size of an egg, and you have grand muffins!

When you can't go completely daft over someone, without reasons and in spite of everything, you are old. Life has lost for you all its beautiful mystery. You are ready for the rocker and the black silk dress and you might well call a cab and drive to the Old Ladies' Home.

"Must one always let the head rule?" I asked a smart man who had been in love with the same woman for more years than either of them can remember. "Smart people do," he answered, and kept dealing his game of solitaire. But there was a look in his eye that told me he was theorizing. His wife smiled and I don't know whether it was understanding, or amusement in her eyes.

"Smart people do!"

Can one deliberately be smart if they are in love?

A lady from Washington stated this by writing me that:

"We polish a grand piano carefully and guard it from scars, painstakingly weed a garden of flowers, mend the tiniest rent in a lace gown, but the little places in the marriage relation, so sadly in need of repair, are left to the temperament and not good common sense. If marriage becomes duty, threadbare and threatened with tarnish, we call it fate and sit down to nurse our emotional bruises."

She's right about that.

"The basic trouble is that men and women expect too much of each other. Failure to keep marriage what it started out to be, is not likely to be a one-sided affair. The average man has as fine instincts as a woman and a better conception of justice and fair play.

"For 16 years I have lived alone, since the tragic wreck of my marriage. Aloneness and independence do not create happiness. The companionship of one man and one woman is still the most beautiful experience this old world holds, in spite of the sarcastic and brilliantly clever briefs rendered against it. Womanlike, I dream that perhaps some day there will be a home, a husband, a smelly pipe and an open fire, a favorite book and faith, loyalty and the illimitable peace of a mutual contentment."

She pays a compliment and asks me to accept this tribute from a "small, unbelievably plain person to a more fortunate sister."

How green the grass next door always looks! But you, dear lady, are unbelievably big.

CRASHES PROVE UNDOING OF PADDY

FATAL CRASH

Pictured here is the wreckage of the automobile in which Harmon was fatally injured a few days ago. It was the last big crash for the man who was a dreamer of great things from his boyhood days.

LATE PADDY HARMON

Harmon was the "rags to riches" hero of Chicago who conceived the $7,000,000 sports Stadium and then saw his dreams crash when he was ousted from control of the enterprise after it was finished.

TWO SPORTS PROMOTERS of more or less worldly fame have just gone over the Great Divide.

One of these was Patrick T. (Paddy) Harmon, of Chicago, and the other Tom Duggan, of Montreal.

Both were successful in their lines and both were only in middle age. Duggan, who died from heart trouble, was 48 and Harmon, who succumbed to injuries suffered in an automobile accident a few hours before, was 53.

Of the two, Harmon had perhaps the more general appeal. He was a bit of an Horatio Alger character, a self-made man who came up from the streets of Chicago's Gas House district as a newsboy and a promoter of dances, bicycle races, boxing shows and whatnot and lived to see the fulfillment of his life ambition, the building of the huge Chicago Stadium at a cost of $7,000,000. He sold the idea for such an enterprise to wealthy Chicago men and saw the thing through. His joy was short-lived, however, for the men of means whose money was invested in the venture soon found that Harmon was not a very good business man and moved him out of control of the arena. Thus the temple of sports that was his brain-child figuratively crashed about the head of the dreamer who had caused it to be. Ironically, it was another crash, that of the automobile which he was driving, the wrecked remains of which are pictured above, that cost him his life.

AS FOR DUGGAN, he was a big man in his scheme of things, yet withal quiet and unassuming and self effacing. He had a finger in many pies. He was a horse racing track owner and hockey and boxing arena mogul in Montreal and operated dog racing tracks at Bridgeville, in Florida and elsewhere. He was a bit of an inventor and radio was one of his hobbies. He always carried his own powerful receiving set with him wherever he went and liked to talk about radio and its future. He was the pioneer in the art of getting ice on and off rapidly in Madison Square Garden and other hockey arenas about the country, and thus made it possible to popularize the winter sport by not having to tie up the floor space for several nights to arrange for a single game. He was a friend of the late Tex Rickard.

I always found Duggan to be a square shooter and am sorry to see him go.

During a conversation here recently, Tom told me of experiencing pains in the region of his heart and said he expected to return to Pittsburgh in the fall to undergo treatment to obtain relief. He thought it was merely a muscular condition around the heart, but he was wrong.

CARL F. KAUFFMANN

Schenley Park's greatest golfing product, who has won the National Public Links title the last three years and defends the honor again in Florida next week. He refuses to become a professional because of his love for the amateur sport.

Pittsburgh's champion of champions, Carl F. Kauffmann, national public links golf titleholder three years hand running, has no illusions about the game of golf—or life. Next week, Carl goes forth to do battle at Jacksonville, Fla., in defense of his laurels, and he knows he faces a test of the most severe order.

Kauffmann was a guest of honor at the annual banquet tendered by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to the winners of prizes in its junior golf championship tournament for the William Randolph Hearst trophy and other awards, held in the William Penn Hotel, night before last, and mixing with the younger generation brought out the best that is in the man. In his talk, Carl spoke some great truths. Naturally shy and retiring, and, as he says, inclined never to give advice unless it is asked, he unburdened himself on this occasion.

His advice to the youngsters was of a most practical sort.

"TO THE VICTOR belongs the spoils in golf, as in other walks," Kauffmann said, "but I believe we should learn to lose as gracefully as we win. Don't forget that the winner generally is the man who plays the better game. Shake his hand if he beats you and give him the credit that is his due.

"The boys of today are our champions of tomorrow. Bobby Jones will be through one of these days and who can tell but that from your ranks will come the man to succeed him. If you can't succeed Jones, come out to Schenley

BULLETIN.

Favorites triumphed in the first round of matchplay in the annual West Penn junior golf championship being played over the Westmoreland Country Club today. Regis Wolff defeated Robert McKee, 3 and 1; Sidney Carson, Jr., defeated Rupert Friday, 3 and 1; W. W. Long defeated R. Burton Parker, 1 up, 19 holes; John Totten defeated Francis Totten, 2 and 1; T. S. Jamison, Jr., defeated John Haskell, 4 and 3; Tom Vantacky defeated Jack Benson, 1 up, 21 holes; George Chubb defeated H. C. Weidner, 2 and 1; and Wilson Marks defeated William Mercur, Jr., 1 up.

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

The chap who was "next best" last year, Wilson P. (Billy) Marks, of Kiski, runner-up to Denny St. Clair, a schoolmate, in the finale of 1929, took an early lead in the fight for the Western Pennsylvania junior golf championship throne yesterday when he led the field by five strokes in the 36-hole qualifying round at the Westmoreland Country Club with a tally of 72-79—151, his morning round card being level with Old Man Par.

PLAYOFF THIS MORNING

Marks' opponent for this morning's first round of match play was not decided until the five youngsters who tied for thirteenth place at 168, William W. Long, of New Castle; William A. Mercer, Shannopin; Rupert Friday, Pittsburgh Field Club; the medalist's brother, James L. Marks, Kiski, and Tom Vantacky, Titusville, decided who was to continue in the championship 16 after their playoff.

Ranking second only to Billy Marks, and one of the favorites to give him torrid battle for any honors to be passed out for prowess over Westmoreland links was Regis Wolff, of Highland, Oliver High School star. Wolff aggregated 156 with his consecutive scores of 76 and 80 yesterday. On the very heels of the Highlander were Thomas S. Jamison, Jr., of Greensburg, 158; Francis X. Totten, of Stanton Heights, 159, and Sidney A. Carson, Jr., of Greensburg, 160.

BENSON GETS 161.

Jack Benson, of South Hills, qualified among the elite with 161, while R. Burton Parker, of Highland, made the grade with 162. George Chubb, of Sewickley Y, and John Totten, of Stanton Heights, got in with 164s, and John ...skell, of Titusville, and Robert McKee, of South Hills, qualified with 165s. H. C. Wiedener, of Beaver Valley, was the lone 167 scorer.

St. Clair, is not defending his confalon this year because he is more than 18 years of age—that being the limit. The Westmoreland course is in splendid condition for the competition, the greens especially being commendable. George A. Ormiston, secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, is conducting the tournament.

RED ARROW COPS

In a hard-fought golf match, the Red Arrow Quartet, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, defeated representatives of Radio Station KDKA by 16 points in the first of a three-game match. The best performers for the Red Arrow Quartet were McVicker and Seifert, and for the radio station, Kaufman and Rodgers turned in EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: TAME CROCODILES OF JAIPUR INDIA—I personally have seen and photographed the docile crocodiles of the magnificent pleasure gardens which belong to the Maharaja of Jaipur in the Rajputana Agency. I am informed that this is a unique achievement of the tamer's art, and I was amazed to see such naturally ferocious creatures so tamed as to take food from the hand of the keeper.

NEW YORK, July 24.—It is altogether possible that the Pirates dreamed much of the Baker Bowl during the night, but this morning they were fully awake as they realized they were away from that Slough of Despond. Inasmuch as they copped two games at the Philadelphia ruins, the Buccos may have had some pleasant thoughts in this direction, but every member of the club was tickled that the ordeal was over. And if there's any word stronger than ordeal to fit the case, the Buccos would like to have it ride.

SHORT ON HURLERS

Twenty-two innings of exciting baseball left the Ensmen a bit groggy this morning. But the manager was reassembling his squad for the five-game series with the Giants which is due to get under way this afternoon.

The skipper is hard put for pitchers. He has no regular who has enjoyed the conventional rest period. But Remy Kremer is willing to tackle the Giants on two day's relaxation and Ens wants him to do this very thing. So Frenchy will be in there in the inaugural. The Pirates expect to tangle with Carl Hubbell.

The Pirates won both ends of their bargain bill with the Quakers, yet the grade of baseball in each contest was as far apart as the poles. Heinie Meine won a 2-to-1 verdict over the Quakers in the opening game. This battle was a slab masterpiece, with a young pitcher from the Central League sharing the honors.

The youth is Roy (Swede) Hansen, a tall southpaw who recently was purchased from the Richmond, Ind., team. In his joust with Meine and the Pirates the lad covered himself with slab honors. He held the Buccos to eight hits.

MEINE SMART

Meine worked one of the smartest and best games this writer has yet witnessed in the bandbox park. Meine held the Quaker sluggers to five hits.

After the customary rest between games, the two clubs went out and enacted the opposite sort of baseball drama. The notorious rightfield wall, strangely silent during the early fight, rang with the barrage of drives that soon were under way once the contest started.

Showing a fighting spirit seldom seen on the ball field, the Buccos and their lowly foemen waged a fight of 13 rounds before the Pittsburgh boys won a hair-line decision in a contest that produced 50 hits. The score of this game was 16 to 15. It's another big one for the book when you stage a 50-hit game and have it decided by one run.

TRAYNOR BIG STAR

Heroics were spilled all over the ball orchard for something like five hours. But out of it all, the athletic form and figure of Pie Traynor stood out as the biggest hero of the wild day.

Pie hit two homers and the Boundary Belts won both ball games. Pie came up in the ninth inning of the first clash with the score tied at one all. The great thirdsacker smacked a liner to left that hopped over the screen into the bleachers and Meinie carried on to his brilliant success.

PRIMO'S STAY EXTENDED

NEW YORK, July 24.—Primo Carnera, giant Italian pugilist, returned to New York last night and, his American manager, Billy Duffy, announced he had obtained a 20-day postponement of the deportation with which immigration authorities had threatened the fighter.

Carnera, through his manager, denied he was refused permission to enter Canada, where he was to have appeared in an exhibition at Montreal. The Ambling Alp claimed he and See were en route to New York from Cleveland yesterday and stopped over in Buffalo for a sightseeing trip to Niagara Falls. The exhibition, See said, has been postponed one week.

"We started to the Falls," See said, "but turned back when Canadian officials refused us entrance because of lack of passports. Returning we were stopped by United States authorities, who believed us attempting to illegally enter the United States."

See said he exhibited railroad tickets to New York and after explaining they had not entered Canada, were permitted to go on their way.

Immigration authorities were represented as refusing to consider Carnera's application for an extension of his visit unless he could produce evidence that his behavior in this country had been more exemplary that its public notices have implied. The task of proving that Primo's fights in this country have been conducted on the level presumably will occupy his time during the 20-day deportation reprieve.

BARASA INTERVENES

CHICAGO, July 24.—(AP.)—Former Judge Bernard Barasa has asked James J. Davis, secretary of labor, to intervene on behalf of Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight boxer, who has been ordered to leave the United States.

Barasa, speaking for Chicago Italians, wired the Secretary of Labor yesterday, asking that an extension of six months be granted the giant fighter. He urged the extension so that Carnera again might box Leon Chevalier, coast Negro. When the pair met in California several months ago, it was charged that one of Chevalier's seconds tossed a towel into the ring admitting defeat, while the Negro was apparently easily holding his own. The incident resulted in the suspension of Carnera and his several managers in many states. The bout would be staged in Chicago by Promoter Mique Malloy August 14.

BUCS, PHILS SET RECORDS

Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, July 24.—By making 50 safe hits in their second game of yesterday, the Pirates and Phillies came within one hit of equalling the long-standing record for safeties made by both clubs in one game.

On August 25, 1922, the Phillies and Cubs made a total of 51 hits, the Phillies winning, 26 to 25 in nine innings.

In all, two all-time major league records were shattered and a third equaled. The teams set new records for the number of times at bat and total bases in a single game, tied the record for assists and came within one of equaling the established marks for total hits, total extra-base hits and number of pitchers. The length of the game, three hours and 41 minutes, was nine minutes short of the record time of three hours 50 minutes, established in a 26-inning tie game.

The Phils were charged with 62 times at bat and the Pirates with 55 for a total of 117. The former record of 110 was established by Boston and Detroit, of the old National League, on June 9, 1883, and the modern record of 99 was made by New York and Cincinnati, June 9, 1901.

The clubs tied a fielding record which has stood for a quarter of a century, making a total of 45 assists. The record held by the New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox, was made August 21, 1905.

In their 13-inning clash of yesterday, the hits were 27 for the defeated team and 23 for the victors. Eight of the blows were homers and nine were doubles. There were no triples, a three-bagger being a red-letter hit in the notorious ball field.

Pie Traynor was the only five-hit man of the long game.

HUNT UNCONSCIOUS

CHICAGO, July 24.—(AP.)—Little hope for the recovery of Steeplechase Jockey Harry Hunt, who was injured Tuesday when his mount, Fit, fell with him at Arlington Park, was entertained today. Hunt suffered a concussion of the brain and late last night had not regained consciousness.

Nick Altrock Says:

CHICAGO, July 24.—We arrived in Chicago last night from St. Louis and if we get through the crime wave like we did that heat wave, they can use us for apron strings. All we've got out of this present road trip is the sightseeing. The A's have acquired a couple more acres of ground to put between them and us, and if we don't keep right on their heels they will be putting up a fence. And it isn't comfortable having the Yankees so close to us in this sticky weather, either. Tomorrow I will take up the question, "Are the Brooklyn Robins only English sparrows painted red?"

By TOM BIRKS.

A battle for first place in the West Penn League will be at stake this evening at Cribbs Field, Verona, when Community clashes with the undefeated Wilmerding nine. The Artmakers have been going at a sensational clip in the second half and have copped three straight. However, Bill Bright probably will work Buzz Isherwood and the Wageley boys will have to be in a hitting mood to cop.

TWO GOOD TILTS CARDED

Two good games will be staged in the Central loop. St. Johns will visit Magee Field to hook up with Manager Berg's Y. M. H. A. aggregation. The Bellefielders are stepping at a snappy pace and expect to get back among the leaders.

The Baltimore and Ohio nine will be the attraction at delightful Camp Horne this evening and the Reick-McJunkins will visit Homewood playgrounds to tangle with Mine Safety Appliance. Horne's are fighting to get close to Reliance Life, the Campers standing second in the league race.

In the Eastern division of the Steel City League the St. Elizabeth nine will travel to Turtle Creek to meet the Hale club. The game will be played at the Union High School Stadium.

REAL GAME PROMISED

A real battle is promised in the City Loop when Homewood meets Book Shoe at Olympia Park. Both teams are of the slugging variety and some big hitting might be on tap.

Pleasant Valley will travel to the Salt Works grounds to meet the North Side Civics and a meeting between these rivals should be worth while.

The battle of the Rox will be staged at Stowe Field, however, when Mike Jedinak and his Woodmen cross the bridge to meet Pop Geer's club. Pop is a big booster for the new grounds, and the popular Stowe mentor states that Stowe Field is the best diamond in the county. Dormont meets Thomas at Dean Field.

W. O. W. BEATEN

The North Side Civics copped from the W. O. W. gang, 6-4, in the City League, while Drave bowed before Carnegie Steel, 8-4, in the Commercial and Industrial yesterday.

In the Major League the Lineys tripped Iroquois, 5-4, and St. George won from the Union Printers, 8-2. Reliance Life and North Bessemer played to a 3-all deadlock in the Greater Pittsburgh League.

Collier, Jenna, Ingomar, Duquesne Traders and the Crawfords won independent contests yesterday.

Bunts

The Bergman and Fisher nine of the Central loop, champions for the second consecutive year, will play a benefit game for Tom Birkes Sunday at the Carrick Volunteer grounds. The West Penn Umpires have donated the services of referees for the game, which will be called at 3:15. A large crowd is expected.

The final night baseball game of the season, featuring the Homestead Grays and the Kansas City Monarchs, will be played tomorrow evening at Forbes Field. The Saturday night game was transferred to Thursday, O. It is believed another banner crowd will be on hand.

The Dormont Club of the Steel City League, first half champions, is desirous of booking games at home and abroad, tonight and Sundays, with the best teams in the district in the light first-class ranks. For games call Manager Dormont any evening at Hiland 2750.

DAVIS CUP NET DRAW MADE

PARIS, July 24 — (INS.) — America's Davis Cup team was favored in the draw today when Big Bill Tilden was paired with Jean Borotra, bounding Basque, in the opening singles match Friday against France for the most coveted tennis trophy in the world.

Following the Tilden-Borotra clash, George M. Lott will face Henri Cochet, France's greatest star.

On Saturday John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, American doubles team, probably will clash with Cochet and Borotra, unless France should decide on the other doubles combination of Boussous and Brougnon.

On Sunday the final singles matches will be played, with Tilden meeting Cochet, his nemesis, and Lott crossing recquets with Borotra.

American Davis Cup followers were more than delighted with the fortunes of the draw. Tilden, despite his ankle injury, is favored to defeat Borotra on the opening day, and even if Lott loses to Cochet, as is expected, America will go into the doubles matches at least even with France. With Van Ryn and Allison at top form, the two youngsters should repeat their sensational victory of last year.

Such a turn of fortune would throw the entire outcome of the 1930 Davis Cup finals on the Sunday singles matches. A victory in either one of these for America consequently would return the big silver cup to American shores. Tilden, however, has never defeated the peerless Cochet in recent years, and so the crucial match of the series, if predictions run true, will be that between Lott and Borotra.

BLUE LARKSPUR LAME, CAREER WRECKED

CHICAGO, July 24. — (AP.) — Blue Larkspur's chance of becoming the leading money winning horse of American turf history apparently has been wrecked by lameness.

Col. E. R. Bradley's 4-year-old son of Black Servant-Blossom Time bowed a tendon in his weak right foreleg yesterday in a workout for the $35,000 Arlington handicap Saturday and Trainer Dirk Thompson said he would be out of racing for the rest of the season and probably for all time.

Lacking but a few thousand dollars of Gallant Fox's money mark, the 1929 3-year-old champion of America was favored to win the Arlington Handicap Saturday and move up to Zev in winnings. He refused to even limp coming off the track, but his leg filled a few hours later and examinations indicated he never would be in shape to add to his winnings of $272,000.

Blue Larkspur's withdrawal from the handicap and uncertainty that Misstep, the Lamar Stock Farm Stable's crack stake racer would be able to start, left Joseph E. Widener's Curate as the favorite for the rich event. Curate dazzled clockers yesterday by reeling off a mile and a quarter in 2:04 2-5.

Blue Larkspur's greatest triumphs were scored at Arlington Park. Last year he defeated the winner of the Kentucky Derby, the Dwyer Stakes and the American Derby in the first running of the Arlington classic. This season he won the Stars and Stripes Handicap July 4 and the $25,000 Arlington Cup last Saturday.

Night Sandlot Football Is in Prospect Here

Night sandlot football in the Pittsburgh district may be promised local fans when the Parnassus High School Board meets Saturday evening. The valley school authorities are very favorable to the installing of flood lights, and should they be installed, the Burns Club, of Kensington, which plays its home games on the Parnassus field, would schedule its home games with the leading Pittsburgh teams for either Wednesday or Thursday night.

It is reported that one of the finest clubs ever banued together will represent the Black and White of Burns under the leadership of Dick Goldberg. Offers have been made to Toby Uansa and Tom Parkinson, former Pitt backfield stars, but nothing definite has been settled as yet.

JOHNNY LEHMAN LEADS MOE IN WESTERN

BEVERLY COUNTRY CLUB
CHICAGO, July 24 — (AP.) — Johnny Lehman, young Chicago star, held a slim one-up margin over Don Moe, the defending champion from Portland, Ore., at the half way mark of their 36-hole quarter final match in the Western amateur golf championship today.

Lehman co-medalist toured the heavily trapped Beverly course in 77 strokes, six over par, to gain his lead while Moe, off to a bad start, scored a 79. Moe was down most of the journey. He rounded the turn 1 down and while he shot a fine 36 coming back, Lehman did the same thing to hold his lead.

Bob McCrary, of Des Moines, conqueror yesterday of Cyril Tolley, whizzed around the quarter turn with a 2-up lead over Gus Novotny, of Chicago, runner-up in 1928. Bob shot a 38 out to Novotny's 41.

Jack Westland, Chicago District champion, led T. Phillip Perkins, the Englishman now residing in New York, 3 up; Ira Couch, Chicago, had a 1 up margin over Charley Fish, Rockford, Ill., and Bob McCrary, Des Moines, Ia., was 2 up over Gus Novotny, another Chicago star, at the quarter turn of the other matches.

Keck's Sport Comment

Park and take the places of the men who are growing old there. Carry on the good work. I'm getting somewhat gray and along in years myself. If you can't take Bobby's place, take mine.

"Don't take much stock in the saying that if golf interferes with business, cut out the business. You can do it if you have laid aside a half-million or so dollars, but not if you have to make a living. I know. I tried it and lived to rue it. Some years ago, I was so keen about playing golf that one afternoon I stole away from work to play while I was employed by a firm that refused to give its men time off for golf. I loafed for two years afterward.

"HOW DID I happen to go in for golf? I'll tell you. When I was a kid, baseball was my game. We would play after school on Fridays and also on Saturdays. It got so we couldn't rustle up enough players to make up a team. We almost always had only six or seven players, so I became disgusted and began to look around for a game that I could play myself. I ran across golf.

"If you want to become good at golf, you have to make sacrifices. The same story is true of anything else. Anything that is worthwhile is worth working for, making sacrifices to attain. We've all heard men of money say, 'I'd give $5,000 to be able to play golf like that fellow.' But that's impossible. They wish to buy with dollars and cents what the other fellow has won by sacrifice.

"If golf means a whole lot to any of you boys, take my advice and get yourselves jobs as caddie masters or assistant professionals and make it your lifework. But don't expect to work at something else and neglect it for golf.

"TIMES HAVE CHANGED since I was a youngster. When I began to play golf, I had to borrow or steal clubs and play in a cow pasture. Now you have such fine tournaments as this one sponsored by a big newspaper for your benefit. A wonderful opportunity lies before you.

"I have been asked frequently why I don't become a golf professional. I suppose it's because the love of the amateur sport is so strong."

Seated next to Kauffmann at the speakers' table was J. Bernd Rose, of the Allegheny Country Club, former stellar Princeton athlete, recently president of the Pennsylvania Golf Association and now president of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association. Mr. Rose had accepted an invitation to attend and present the trophies and medals to the successful contestants. He marveled at the fine 66 turned in by Anthony Myers, 17, of Etna, winner of the event, played over the Schenley Park public course, Kauffmann's home stamping grounds, on July 7, and proved a gracious guest. His presence made for considerable good will, bridging, as it did, the gap between private club golf on the one hand and public links and boys' golf on the other.

John Jay Burke, father of public links golf in the Pittsburgh district, and a big factor in the success of the three junior tournaments staged in as many years by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, also was a welcome guest. He has attended all these annual banquets and pronounced this year's the best of all.

CONCLUDING HIS SPEECH, Kauffmann emphasized the natural prejudice against public links golf and golfers on the part of the more fortunate members of the golfing fraternity.

"Frequently I hear, 'Oh, so you play over the Schenley Park course—that's an easy one to score on,' he said, and added, 'and my comeback to that is: 'How often do you hear of par being broken in competition at Schenley?'"

After the dinner, Kauffmann was his usual conservative self again. It is evident that he is a thoughtful and level-headed soul. As Mr. Rose wished him continued success in the defense of his national title, Carl said he knew he had a tough row to hoe at Jacksonville.

"I can't afford to get swell-headed over any success I have had in the past," he said. "Everybody always is lying in wait for a chance to beat the champion. They all prime to beat him. I am looking forward to the fight of my life this year."

IT ALWAYS HAS seemed to me that this wizard of the public links (the poor man's game) has been more or less misunderstood. His diffident nature as he concentrates on his game on the course has given most people the wrong slant on the man. It took this meeting with the youngsters to mellow him and bring out his inner thoughts. This was my first meeting with him, and I came away thinking how much more credit is due him than he has received from the golfing world as a whole, and will be pulling strong for him to come through again at Jacksonville and set a mark that those who follow will be shooting at until the cows come home.

OUT AT FRICK PARK today, another fine amateur sports enterprise fostered by this newspaper enters its final stage. It is the tournament to determine the public parks tennis champions in men's and women's singles, the winners of which will be sent to compete in the national championships at Washington, D. C., next month. Last week, the champions of six public parks were decided by elimination and they will clash in the interpark finals, ending Saturday, if the weather permits.

A significant feature of this tournament, which, like the junior golf tournament, is to become an annual affair, and has the wholehearted sponsorship of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, is that it is open only to players who are not members of private clubs and do not play on private courts. Some of the best players in other cities have sprung from the public courts, and there is every reason to expect that the same will prove true in Pittsburgh in the years to come.

Sport Vignettes

In yesterday's issue, Paul Sullivan described the styles and playing forms of the finalists in the men's division of our interparks tournament. It is only right that someone go into detail a bit on the women stars. Here's how: . . . Mrs. Artzberger, champion of Olympia, is a sterling player who rates well up in the list of the city's habitual competitors in open tourneys; Letilia Schmidt, Schenley, who was virtually unknown as a player until she flashed a game that won her the honors in the largest park, is a formidable chopper, and so is Mildred Klages, of West Park; Anne Elise Searing, of Frick, leans toward the driving game, and is proficient at it, while Ruth Spencer, of Highland, and Ruth Staiger, of Riverview, are stars who will bear watching.

JIM M'GIRR, McKeesport's veteran boxing promoter, who was foxy enough to lay off during the present off summer season, is getting ready to reopen indoors in his Palisades roller rink arena on September 11. Jim had a hard time of it last winter and says the coming season may be his last as a sponsor of fistic entertainment unless he gets a better break . . . . Motor Square Garden will not reopen for boxing until mid-October, and there is talk of a regular club operating all through the indoor season at Duquesne Garden, which will have its hockey club back because no one seems to have enough money to buy the franchise . . . . Tony Herrera will be back in the Meyers Bowl one week from next Monday night, with Jackie Pilkington, of New York, serving as his opponent . . . . The Bowl had quite a time getting Tony back, because he wasn't paid for that "no contest" fiasco with Eddie Elkins recently and his percentage of the receipts called for him to draw down approximately $750 . . . . If times weren't so tough all over the country, Tony would continue to stay away until this amount were forthcoming, but the Bowl has lured him back with a proposition whereby he will get an additional $200 over and above his contract every time he appears there and draws more than $5,000 until the obligation is met . . . . The boxing commission, it will be remembered, made the club give back all of the receipts to the customers the night Tony boxed Elkins and the bout was halted because of a bothersome boil on one of Eddie's arm.

A case of Scotch, direct from the old country, is due at the Stadium tomorrow . . . Its name is Jack Sutherland, and he's the Pitt head football coach, just back from a visit to the bonny heelands . . . A bird with the meaningless name of Nisse Ramm, Swedish heavyweight, has just scored his fifth straight knockout since arriving in the States, stopping Willis Hoffman in the first round in Chicago . . . That is if, in these post-Carnera times, any foreign heavyweight may be said to win any straight fights . . . Speaking of exhibitions, as if anyone had, how about that two-horse race between Questionnaire and Awake, in the fourth event at Empire City yesterday? . . . They ran a mile and 70 yards with Questionnaire winning, and the odds on the victor were out, out and out, and the same on the loser . . . Incidentally, they're stablemates and ran as the J. Butler entry . . . Only two other horses were entered, Polygamous and Stormy Dawn, and they were scratched . . . Such stuff!

PROS, AMATEURS IN BATTLES TONIGHT

Boxing fans have their choice between professional and amateur talent tonight, when the Hickey Park arena stages its weekly show in Millvale, while the American Legion's Golden Gloves amateur tournament gets under way in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, with the finals carded tomorrow night.

Frankie Wine

Frankie Wine, of Montana and Barberton, O., meets Ike McFowler, Negro heavyweight, of Johnstown, in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, with Al Becker, of Sheraden, and Cowboy DeLuca, of Lawrenceville, young middleweight rivals, in the eight-round semi-final, a bout that promises a lot of action.

In the two six-round bouts, Paul Balint, of the North Side, boxes Bud Brady, of Cumberland, Md., and Hans Roberts, German welterweight, of Brookline, takes on Freddie Boylstein, Kittanning veteran.

STARS IN TOURNEY

Virtually all of the amateur stars of the district are entered in the Golden Gloves tournament, and the show is the biggest simon-pure mitt event to be staged in this section in a long time. The tournament is under the auspices of American Legion Post No. 99, of Braddock, North Braddock and Rankin. An attempt will be made to clear up all of the preliminaries tonight, leaving the semi-finals and finals for tomorrow night.

Bill Simendinger and Steve Carlson, the latter of Uniontown, will referee the amateur bouts and the judges will include Frank Klaus, former middleweight champion; Johnny Hamm, former National amateur flyweight champion; Councilman Harry Litzle and Harry I. Neaman. The bouts will get under way at 8 o'clock and the physical examination and weighing of the contestants will begin at 6 o'clock.

Between Rounds

The Hickey Park Club plans a double windup show for next week. It already has signed Battling Geary, of Denora, and Ray Collins, of Erie, for one of its 10-round bouts, and the two Pittsburgh favorites, Billy Schoos, of the North Side, will oppose C. S. Carpenter, of New Kensington, again and Frankie Lane, of Sharpsburg, will take on Don Frazier, of the Hill.

Bouts around the country tonight include: Tommy Grogan vs. Bruce Flowers and Leo Fulmer vs. Joe Trafton at Queensboro Stadium, New York, and George Gomez vs. Larry Doyle at Franklin, N. H.

Mickey Solomon and Jimmy Belmont will box the 10-round main bout of a show in the Pastime Auditorium, East Liverpool, O., next Tuesday night. Sammy Faris, of the Hill, and Kenny Davis, of East Liverpool, O., will appear in the six-round semi-final.

Ted Yarnes, of Norma, and Johnny Risk, of Cleveland, will box a windup at Parkersburg, W. Va., August 13.

A card of two 10-rounders, an eight-rounder and two six-rounders will be substituted for the canceled Johnny Tocco-Tommy Freeman show at the Meyers Bowl, Braddock, next Monday night. Young Rudy, of Charleroi, and Tom Malos, of Soho, hairy-fisting welterweights will meet in the main bout, and Peter Pittone, of Canton, O., and Harry Williams, of the North Side, light-heavies, in the other 10-rounder, their fourth meeting. Andy Andriani, of the East End, will be one of the principals in the eight-rounder. In the two six-round battles Johnny Hamm, of Braddock, and Jack Cleveland, of Cleveland, will box Joe Midway in two rounds at the Bowl last Monday night, will engage Nick Polis, of Allenport, and Sammy Faris, of the Hill, will take on Steve Resch, of Homestead.

The Fidel LaBarba-Earl Mastro return bout at the Chicago Stadium has been set for August 7.

East and West In Tennis Finale

MANCHESTER, Mass., July 24. — (AP.) — The championship round of the Essex Country Club invitation singles tennis tournament became an East-West affair today when Marjorie Gladman, young California star, and Edith Morrill, of Dedham, both won in their semi-final matches.

Miss Gladman had a hard struggle with Josephine Cruickshank, a sister Californian, before she won by scores of 1-6, 6-4, 6-1. Miss Morrill, however, romped through her match with Dorothy Weisel, of Sacramento, Cal., to win by the top-heavy score of 6-0, 6-2.

NET SERIES BEGINS

INTER-PARK ELIMINATION PLAY OPENS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Inter-Park Elimination Series contesting in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph revival of the Pittsburgh Public Parks tennis championships will swing into action on the Frick Park lot at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Women's preliminary round jousting will be featured at this hour, with early man-to-man battles on the card for 5:30 p. m. in order to allow racqueters who toil opportunity to be on hand without undue inconvenience.

Crossing bats in the feminine division today are Ruth Stalger, Riverview luminary, and Letitia Schmidt, scintillant Schenley survivor, who will clash in the upper half of the bracket, and Ruth Spencer, Highland star, and Mrs. Jean Artzberger, Olympia champion, who are billed to tussle in the lower section. Both fracases loom as closely-fought affairs, there existing virtually no basis of comparison on which to build reliable doping of the outcome of the melees. Mrs. Artzburger is probably the most experienced competitor of the quartet, though Mrs. Spencer has enjoyed not a little open tournament mixing. Miss Schmidt and Miss Stalger, however, while comparatively new to formally organized racqueting, are courageous and self-possessed young performers and will hardly be awed by sense of tourney responsibility.

TWO MEN'S TILTS

In the men's milling, two torrid debates are scheduled for completion. In the top half, Karl Beilstein, West Park stylist, will encounter the flashy Highland southpaw satellite, Jack Redmond. Beilstein is a tried veteran of municipal title-seeking, while Redmond, with less parks competition behind him, is nevertheless a youngster who has disported himself in numerous net meetings of import. He holds the Pittsburgh City High School crown and is a serious contender for Pittsburgh Center Junior laurels, along with Frank Brodia, of Frick; Jack Herrmann, of Riverview, and such clever youths as Chuck Arensberg, Shady Side captain; Maurice Saperstein, of Fifth Avenue High, and various others.

In the lower sector of the men's affair, the above-referred-to Herrmann will tangle with Robert Broad, former South Hills High School netman, who surprised the natives by scoring the only upset of a number one seeded player registered in the individual parks skirmishing last week to annex the Olympia Park medallion. This duel, involving the speed of Herrmann with the steadiness and caution of Broad, is apt to prove quite a lengthy session, as indeed, is the meeting of Beilstein and Redmond.

Victors in this afternoon's and evening's engagements will step into semi-final hostilities on the morrow. Among the fair sex, the winner of the Stalger-Schmidt match will battle Anne Elise Searing, Frick driver, with the Spencer-Artzberger survivor taking on Mildred Klages, accomplished West Park chopper. Redmond or Beilstein, as the case may be, will mingle with Broida, who, it is expected, will return from the Pennsylvania State Junior championships at Cynwyd, near Philadelphia, just about in time for the fray. The successful party to the Herrmann-Broad tete-a-tete must face Irvin Goodman, brilliant Schenley champ and University of Pittsburgh varsity mainstay. All men's tilts will be the best of five sets, with women's contests being the conventional best of three.

EXHIBITION PROMISED

A highly promising exhibition attraction has been arranged to supplement the final program of the Inter-Park eliminations Saturday afternoon. By fortunate co-incidence, the champion Edgewood team of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League is down to combat the crack P. A. A. aggregation in a scrimmage bearing vitally upon the standing in the inter-club loop. Heading the Edgewood doubles array is the Western Pennsylvania title-holding combination of Paul Hicks and McCook Reed, while at the top of the Winged Head dual list is the mighty Dare - and - John O'Loughlin duo, which has garnered trophies too numerous to mention, but which has yet to test its prowess in the teeth of Hicks-Reed opposition.

By special arrangement between the managements of the competing teams, Reed and Hicks will play off their inter-team joust with the O'Loughlins as part of the Public Parks final bill on the Frick gallery rectangle. Neither pair has been defeated in club cavorting this season—and, for that matter, we have no recollection of setback for either twain at any time on the P. T. A. circuit. The doubles event will succeed the men's singles finale and will be more than worth while waiting for, unless all signs go wrong.

Broida Is Beaten In State Net Play

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—(AP.)—Eddie Bordin, Central High School, Philadelphia, and Leonard Hahn, Lansdowne, Pa., High, furnished surprises yesterday by defeating favorites in the Pennsylvania junior tennis championship at the Cynwyd Club, to advance to the semi-finals.

Bordin toppled over Frank Broida, Pittsburgh, 2-6, 9-7, 6-2, and Hahn defeated Warren Munger, Phillips Exeter Academy, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Bernard Friedman, Philadelphia, seeded number 1, also reached the semi-finals. He disposed of Clayton Delaney, Baltimore, in the quarter finals, 6-1, 6-0. Mickey Bodenger, Central High School, Philadelphia, won the championship in the boys' division by defeating Lincoln Parvin, Cynwyd, 6-1, 6-1, in the final.

Jeannette Noses Out Governors

Jeannette nosed out Charleroi, 5 to 4, in their Middle-Atlantic League game yesterday, while Johnstown and Cumberland were splitting their doubleheader, the Johnnies copping the first, 9-8, and losing the second, 10-0. Fairmont won two from Scottdale, 2-1, and 6-2, and Clarksburg lost to Wheeling, 5-4, in their night battle.

PIRATES OPEN SERIES WITH GIANTS

rizes again, the scene represents the same diamond about four hours later. The snap manifest in the athletes in the first game is missing to some extent and the gladiators are grimy and perspiring. It is the thirteenth inning of the second game and the shadows of eventide are gathering on the field.

Two Pirates are out and two are on the sacks. Only a few minutes previous the Pirates enjoyed a two-run lead which was dissipated as the home club rushed to a deadlock. There was much reason for the Buccos to be downcast and some of them undoubtedly were.

PIE COMES THROUGH

Pie was not among the discouraged ones. The gallant captain of the Rovers walked into the spotlight with a homer into the leftfield bleachers that gave the Pirates a three-run lead.

The tired athletes in the Pirate dugout were revived by this courageous swat. But the home club was yet to be reckoned with. Larry French had gone to the rescue of Steve Swetonic in the twelfth inning. And when Larry fanned the first two batters who faced him in the thirteenth, the fans were ready to give up.

But the burglars were due to come to the plate again. O'Doul, Klein and Hurst are liable to hit any pitcher, any time, for any regulation distance. All the three did in the crisis was to deliver two singles and a double. Two runs were over, and the fans rushed back to their seats and other places of vantage as Hurst carried the tying run up to second. One more single and the game would be deadlocked again. Yea, another homer and the ball game was over with the Quakers on the winning end. But French finessed Whitney in the jam. Larry threw out Pinkey, and the athletes headed for the clubhouses.

Chief among the big sideshow attractions of this marathon match were eight homers, and, truth to tell, some of them would have been round-trippers on any park. Ervin Brame, Tripp Sigman, Don Hurst and Frank O'Doul hit ferocious wallops far over the right-field wall. Paul Waner got in on the home-run feature by driving out his first homer of the season.

The circuit clout of Brother Paul, sailing over the fence in right center, to all intents and purposes won the second clash, for it gave the Pirates a one-run advantage in the ninth. But with two out in the home half, O'Doul measured the same wall for a four-bagger, and thus the game went into extra innings.

The Pirates scored six runs in the second and third innings. They had this edge at the end of three rounds, when rain interfered for a short spell. Rain also interfered in the fourth. The Phillies scored four tallies in this inning after play was resumed. From that point to the finish they were factors in the game.

BRAME FALLS

Brame started for the Pirates, but gave way to Spencer in the fourth. Swetonic entered the fight in the sixth and pitched fine ball until the twelfth, when O'Doul's homer tied the score. French then rushed to the scene.

Manager Shotton used six pitchers in this game. They were Benge, Smythe, Nichols, Elliot, Collard and Sweetland.

Chuck Klein's spectacular fielding cut deeply into the Pirate scoring in the first clash. On two distinctive occasions the right-fielder turned in feature plays to spoil Pirate runs. He climbed up the fence to take a fly from Traynor's bat in the fourth inning, and in the sixth he robbed Comorosky of an extra-base wallop by his dizzy one-hand catch of a liner near the fence. Grantham was running from first at the time and probably would have scored had the ball got away.

Whitney's wide throw of P. Waner's tap in the fourth inning, with one out, opened the way for the first run of this battle. Paul scratched a single off the glove of the thirdbaseman, and he reached second on Pinkey's bad throw.

Grantham followed with a double off the right center fence, but Paul could not score. Thinking the ball might be caught, he went back with the idea of advancing a base. He scored as Thevenow was throwing out Comorosky.

An error was mixed in the only run made by the home team. O'Doul started the fourth with a single to right and Klein beat out a tap. Hurst grounded to Grantham, who tried to start a double play. Bartell's shot to first went low after the force at second and O'Doul scored. Hurst reached second, but he tried to steal as Meine held the ball and was nicked at third.

Beginning with the sixth round, Meine gave an exceptional display of pitching. Traynor and Suhr turned in a double play that gave Heine a boost in the fifth. The St. Louis Dutchman then took 11 Quakers out of the picture in a row and needed only one more out to complete his victory. Don Hurst looked dangerous in view of the short fence, so Heine worked carefully on the southpaw slugger. He eventually walked him and then he made Whitney hit into a force play.

McKeesport Tin Plate Reports Gain

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

M'KEESPORT TIN PLATE COMPANY has been one of the outstanding corporations showing continued gains in its earnings in spite of unfavorable conditions in general business. Semi-annual statements in each of the past three years have been marked by increases in sales as well as in net income.

In the first half of 1930 net profit amounted to $1,513,850. This was equivalent to $5.05 a share on 300,000 shares of common stock. The company has no preferred stock or funded debt.

Profit for the half year represented a gain of $429,388 or 39.6 per cent over last year when $1,084,562 or $3.61 a share was earned. In 1928 net was $852,974 or $2.84 a share on the basis of the present capitalization.

Full Year's Dividends Earned

PROFIT FOR THE HALF year was in excess of the regular dividend rate of $4 for a full year on the stock as well as the extra dividend of 50 cents declared last May. The high rate of earnings for the present year leads to the belief that the payment of additional extras is quite probable.

The exceptional gain in profit reported for the half year indicates that earnings for the full year of 1930 will also be far ahead of last year. In 1929 profit was $2,402,200 or $8.01 a share. This compared with $1,587,919 or $5.29 a share in 1928. Profit for the first six months of 1930 was nearly as large as in the full year of 1928.

Costs Reduced

SEVERAL FACTORS have combined to make possible the gain in earnings this year. First of all has been the exceptional stability of the tin plate business. Fruit and vegetable crop expectations for the present season have been good. This has resulted in heavy demand for tin plate by the can companies. The packing of food in cans is not affected by business depressions. The foods must be packed or be allowed to go to waste regardless of conditions in other industries. The actual consumption of canned goods, which include most of the essential foods, changes little between good and bad years. New canned products are steadily increasing the need for tin plate.

Declining commodity prices have helped rather than hurt the operations of McKeesport Tin Plate. Its costs for both semi-finished steel and pig tin are lower than a year ago. On the other hand, tin plate has not been subject to the price shading found in other branches of the steel industry. A cut of 25 cents a box to $5.25 a box made about a year ago was the first change in five years.

Subsidiaries Profitable

THE COMPANY'S BALANCE sheet is exceptionally conservative. At the close of 1929 investments were carried at $50,722. This included the stock of the Metal Package Corporation carried at $10,000. This particular subsidiary reported net profit of $409,347 in the first half of 1930 compared with $281,879 in the corresponding period of last year a gain of 45 per cent. In the full year of 1929 the company's share in Metal Package earnings was $363,885.

McKeesport Tin Plate has one of the largest single plants devoted exclusively to the manufacture of its product in the world. This factory covering 28 acres, with 44 hot mills and an annual capacity of 4,000,000 boxes of tin plate, was carried at $9,300,737 after deducting depreciation of $8,756,207.

The balance sheet at the close of 1929 showed a strong financial position with current assets of $7,033,804 against current liabilities of $1,083,800. Cash of $1,582,715 exceeded all current liabilities. During 1929 $1,750,000 in notes payable were retired, leaving the company free of all debt except a small amount of current accounts payable.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Lambert Company reports for June quarter, consolidated net profit of $1,886,083 after charges and taxes, based on ownership of 95.8 per cent of stock of Lambert Pharmacal Company and Listerine Proprietaries Brands Company. This is equal to $2.35 a share on 744,000 no par shares and compares with $2,088,247 or $2.76 a share in the preceding quarter. On a similar basis, net profit in the second quarter 1929 would have been $1,683,872 or $1.98 a share on present shares. Consolidated net profit for six months ended June 30 was $3,744,349, equal to $5.02 per share on 748,000 shares, against $3,808,481 or $5.08 a share on the present basis in the first half 1929.

Cutler Hammer, Inc., for six months ended June 30 shows net profit of $802,807 after depreciation, federal tax, etc., equal to $2.63 a share on 320,000 no par shares, against $1,125,152 or $3.60 a share on the same basis in the first half of 1929.

Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie System shows deficit after charges for June of $153,500, against surplus of $319,617 in June, 1929. For six months deficit after charges totaled $2,909,561, against deficit of $291,411 in the first six months of 1929.

Worthington Pump and Machinery Company reports first half 1930 net profit of $1,052,722 after charges, depreciation and federal taxes, comparing with $1,099,626 a year ago.

National Distillers Products reports for six months ended June 30 profit of $245,-93 after depreciation, interest and subsidiary preferred dividends, but before federal taxes, against profit after interest and depreciation, but before federal taxes, in the first half of the previous year of $320,945.

Foster-Wheeler Corporation, including English and French subsidiaries, in the first six months of 1930 earned $4.27 a share on 326,649 common shares, against $3.57 a share on 300,000 shares in the first half of 1929. Unfilled orders June 30 were $10,790,737, compared with $8,579,-603 June 30, 1929.

Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation in second quarter earned 70 cents a share on 8,000,743 shares, as against 72 cents a share on the 8,995,208 shares in the preceding quarter, and 58 cents a share on 9,208,108 shares in the second quarter 1929. Six months' earnings equal $1.42 a share on 8,000,743 shares, against $1.75 a share on 8,208,108 shares in the first half of 1929.

Air Reduction Company, Inc., reports first half net profits of $2,993,847, or $3.64 a share, compared with $2,130,533 or $3.61 in the initial six months of 1929. Second quarter net was $1,280,589 against $1,492,171 a year ago.

American Multigraph Company for six months ended June 30 shows net profit of $201,583 after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equal to $1.76 a share on 114,575 no par shares of common stock, compared with $260,387 or $2.27 a share in the first half of 1929.

I. Miller & Sons, Inc., earnings available for dividends for four months ended April 30 totaled $292,725, an increase of 4.4 per cent over the $273,097 in the same period in 1929.

Spear & Company for six months ended June 30 shows net profit of $302,965 after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equal after allowing for dividend requirements on 7 per cent first and second preferred stocks, to $7 cents a share on 223,050 shares no par common, against profit of $360,122, or 75 cents a share in the first half of 1929. Net sales were $6,971,932, against $6,720,415 a year ago.

STOCK MARKET TRENDS ALTER FREQUENTLY

List Inclined to Ease in Extremely Dull Trading; Rallies Follow Declines

NEW YORK, July 24—(AP.)—Bull forces gave the stock market a rest today, but offered sufficient support to hold leading shares at concessions of a point or two from yesterday's final levels and to discourage any very ambitious bearish activity.

On the whole the list was inclined to ease with a few shares losing 3 to 6 points or more. Price trends changed frequently in extremely dull trading. There were fairly substantial dips at times followed by moderate rallies. Trading was in such small volume that the ticker tape was stationary much of the time.

G. M. REPORT

The General Motors earning statement showing net of 1.34 a share for the first half as compared to $2.91 in the same period last year was generally regarded with satisfaction. The substantial improvement in the company's cash position since the first of the year was also gratifying and the stock was firmly supported by its market sponsors.

Wall street is now waiting rather impatiently for U. S. Steel's earnings statement, due next Tuesday. Dow Jones & Co. estimated the company's second quarter earnings at $3 a share, compared to $3.44 in the second quarter. While this will only aggregate about half the first six months income of 1929 it comes close to the full year's dividend requirement of $7 a share and exceeds the results of the like period of either 1928 or 1927. There have been some rumors that directors would declare a $1 extra, but they have gained little credence.

DIVIDEND CUT

The results of major corporations so far reporting for the first half have been gratifying, but many of the smaller corporations have not done so well. Follansbee Brothers cut its annual dividend rate from $3 to $2 the first steel company to reduce its regular disbursements this year. The company showed a profit in the second quarter, however, compared to a deficit in the first.

Among the day's none too pleasing news was announcement of a 10 per cent wage reduction by National Cash Register and extension of Ford Motor's shutdown for another week. No explanation of the further shutdown was available.

Such stocks as American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Standard of New Jersey and Radio Keith sagged a point or so at times, but were quickly supported.

RADIO ACTIVE

Radio, General Electric, General Motors were active features, but moved narrowly. The last-named received particularly good support. American Can sold a little higher at times. Allied Chemical, Safeway Stores, Chesapeake and Ohio, Western Union and Columbian Carbon sold off as much as 3 to 6. International Cement was a strong spot, rising more than 3 and National Dairy, American Power and Light and Coca Cola were firm.

Credits remained easy, with call loans officially at 2 per cent, but as low as 1¼ in the outside market.

Schoonmaker, Jr., formerly with the Standard Steel Spring Company, Pittsburgh, and later with the Dayton Wright people of Dayton and General Motors. William T. GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 24.—Higher temperatures and widespread dearth of rain gave a quick early upturn to the corn market today. All deliveries of corn rose to the highest prices yet on the present movement. Wheat also advanced, owing a good deal to indications of liberal export business over night. Starting ⅛@1¼ higher, corn soon showed material further gains. Wheat opened ⅛@⅝ up and afterward held near to the initial figures. Oats were firm. Provisions likewise hardened.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

Wherein a Writer Takes His First Air Ride; Wife Makes Up His Mind

By B. C. FORBES

IN THE WEST, July 24.—I am often accused of being up in the air when I write. For the first time in my life I have gone up in the air physically. Arriving at Spokane

Mr. Forbes

I was [illegible] informed that I was to be flown over the Columbia River basin irrigation project. Colonel [illegible] it be done by motor? I inquired. No, they would take Cobb Days' How big is this land. I was [illegible] to stay at the ground. Three million acres.

Let me make a confession. For years I have dodged flying. To avoid all cover up my cowardice I always schnozzled invitations to some such explanation that having a small army of little fliers dependent on me for their shoes and other things I really didn't think I had any right to indulge in flying simply for the purpose of getting a few thrill. I added, usually, that if the time ever came when any useful purpose would be served by my soaring into the air why of course I wouldn't hesitate.

BUT HESITATE I did just the same. It was settled as most things are settled for married men. My wife informed the delegation that I would fly that she would go along to see that I did.

Confession Number Two: For the first half hour I was much more interested in my own mental capitalistic than in the land below. My interest in it was confined to what kind of a forced landing it would provide. It looked tragically bumpy, not to say mountainous. Presently our genial master of ceremonies, Roy R. Gill, public-spirited citizen who has been giving years of unremitting and enthusiastic service to the furtherance of the colossal project, leaned over and shouted:

"That land, as it is, isn't good for anything, not even for landing a plane."

JOB'S COMFORTER. However, misgivings—that's a polite word for fear—were off as we kept on and on. Every now and again the ship's tail took an unannounced lurch toward the earth making you feel that your anatomy threatened to divide fifty-fifty. But long before the 350 miles had been covered flying had become a matter-of-fact experience and sensation.

I shall fly again if it will accomplish anything, old fogey though I am.

More again. I have just realized. I have gone up in the air in my writings. But, you know, one can write only about what one is thinking.

NOW FOR THE Columbia basin enterprise. Mr. Gill supplied this brief statement, under the caption "What It Is."

"The Columbia basin irrigation project embraces 1,-883,000 acres of arable desert land in South Central Washington. Less than one-third of the waiting water of the Upper Columbia River will irrigate it.

"Thirty years will be required to construct and people it with farmers.

"When completed it will provide a market annually for $100,000,000 for eastern manufacturers.

"THE PROJECT has been declared feasible by four sets of engineers, and has been indorsed by numerous conservative organizations, among them the Investment Bankers' Association of America.

"President Coolidge said: The Columbia basin project is not far distant.

"Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work: Just so sure as time passes the Columbia basin project will be built.

"SPEAKER NICHOLAS LONGWORTH: It seems to me that Congress can well afford to provide credit that will enable that land to be flooded with water.

"Herbert Hoover, when Secretary of Commerce: The initiation and construction of the Columbia basin project is inevitable. It should not be delayed until we are overwhelmed with population."

MORE TOMORROW about this Napoleonic project. And more about flying.

Litigation Hits at New B. & O. Service

BALTIMORE, July 24.—Suit to enjoin operation of the "store door delivery" service of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in New York City, started July 15, was filed in Federal District Court here today by the New York Dock Railways and three other interests affected.

The suit charges that the new service constitutes an actual extension of the lines of the railroad, but that no new freight tariff was published and filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Besides the New York Dock Railway the complainants are the Bush Terminal Railroad Company, the Brooklyn Eastern District Terminal and the Jay Street Terminal.

American Machine & Metals Reports Net Loss Of $224,569

The semi-annual statement of the old Manhattan Electrical Supply Company, recently reorganized as the American Machine and Metals, Inc., rings like an echo from the past. The stock of the predecessor company came in for close scrutiny at the hands of the Stock Exchange authorities several months ago following a collapse in the issue which marked a duplication of a similar condition that developed several years ago. The new company and its subsidiaries reported a net loss of $224,569 after interest, depreciation and idle plant upkeep for the first half of this year as against a net profit before federal taxes of $67,094 in the same period in 1929.

Six months' net of Commercial Solvents showing the equivalent of 60 cents a share earned after ordinary charges, and provisions for contingencies and inventory adjustments, was somewhat better than had been anticipated in most quarters. The result was a fairly strong market developed in the stock in the course of yesterday. While net was somewhat under that reported for the first half of 1929, when 72 cents a share was earned for the stock, it was, nevertheless, the best for the corresponding period in any previous year with that exception.

After a lapse of almost two months during which no transfers of memberships in the stock exchange had been posted, announcement was made yesterday of the sale of a seat for $400,000. This represented a drop of $68,000 from the figure at which the last transfer was made near the end of last May. Evidently the slow pace of business since the termination of the spring advance has found reflection in a slackening demand for memberships. Details of the current transfer were not announced, that is the names of the seller and buyer, but opinion was that it probably took the form of a special transaction. The low price for a seat this year was established at $390,000 back in February.

It is estimated that Loose-Wiles will show earnings of $5 a share for the current year. While it is admitted that it seems a little early for predictions of this kind, those making them point out that they are basing their views on the current low prices for flour and sugar, which should be beneficial to the company and result in a larger margin of profit in the last half of this year. There have been periods when good buying has come into the stock, although the volume has not been large. Market sponsorship is lacking in the issue. With more satisfactory conditions in the general list, it is probable traders will take increased interest in the issue.

A growing tendency to compare the present market with that of 1921 is apparent. After a major decline from November, 1919, to December, 1920, the industrials rallied sharply in January, 1921. Thereafter, an upward movement continued for five months, followed by a new reaction which reached a low in June and duplicated it again in August of the same year. Early in the present year, a broad rally occurred in the market, culminating after the middle of April. The drastic decline to the lows of June 24 followed, and since then there has been a rally. Volume has also moved along the same course as in 1921.

A new and improved Prestone anti-freeze fluid is being made by Union Carbide for the market next winter. It will cause less rust in motor cooling than water. The new product is to be green in color so that it readily can be identified. Dealers are said to have been solicited and have been placing tentative orders for the cold season, having been impressed by qualities of the new Prestone. It is made from natural gas synthetically and promises to be one of the company's most profitable lines.

WALL STREET HEARS

That important developments are pending in Norfolk and Southern, probably in connection with a merger.

That a new model being introduced this week by General Motors has had a large advance sale.

That Raybestos-Manhattan, a feature of the spring bull market, is again receiving the attention of important interests, owing to its favorable competitive position in its field.

That Timken Roller Bearing's earnings for the year will fall to around $5 a share.

That U. S. Pipe and Foundry, despite sharp improvement in the first half, is looking for even better earnings in the last half.

BIG RAIL DEAL UNDER WAY

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP.)—Whether the Southern Pacific Railroad had acquired working control of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) through purchase of 135,000 shares of voting preferred stock from New York investors, Inc., lacked confirmation today.

At the offices of Hale Holden, chairman of Southern Pacific, it was said a statement might be made later.

In the absence of official comment, it was believed that announcement of the transaction, if accomplished, was being withheld pending application by the Southern Pacific to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to acquire the Cotton Belt shares from the investment company which bought them a year ago from the Kansas City Southern. The latter disposed of the shares, representing nearly 40 per cent of the St. Louis Southwestern voting stock, after proceedings had been instituted against the Kansas City Southern on the ground that its position in the Cotton Belt road violated the Clayton Act.

The Interstate Commerce Commission's railroad consolidation plan assigned the St. Louis Southwestern to the Illinois Central.

New York investors bought the stock at $69 a share.

Mississippi Barge Gets Federal O. K.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today issued a certificate of "public convenience and necessity" to the Mississippi Valley Barge Line and authorized it to establish through rail-barge and rail-barge-rail rates on various commodities between points in central territory on one hand, and points in southern and southwestern territories on the other.

The barge line has a capital stock of $3,000,000, fully subscribed, and plans to increase this to $500,000 in the near future.

Du Pont Rayon Co. Reduces Prices

NEW YORK, July 24.—Price reductions on Viscose Process Yarns, duplicating the cuts made by the Viscose Company Tuesday, have been announced by the Du Pont Rayon Company. The new lists show reductions of 20 to 25 cents a pound, ranging between 13 and 22 per cent. The American Glanzstoff Corporation stated it was cutting prices to meet competition and would have its list ready shortly.

DAILY TRUE STORY

The Right Spirit

The Rev. Merton Varney seemed rather young to the older church people when he came to Plainfield to take up his duties.

To the very young who had to listen to his first sermon he didn't seem much like a minister. They had an idea that all ministers were white-haired and stern and pale-faced, like old Mr. Tuttle, whose passing on had opened the parish to the Rev. Merton Varney.

The young men of the parish agreed, after church, that he looked like a husky fool.

"Gosh, too darn bad he's a minister, he'd make a swell right tackle for our team," Spiney Smith said.

"I bet you he'd a been a corker stock reader if he hadn't gone and been a preacher," Pudge Hanlon complained.

The young ladies discussed him somewhat differently.

"A perfect Adonis," Charibelle Dutton whispered.

"He looks like a movie hero," Mary Clark said.

"The answer to any maiden's prayer," giggled Fanny Williams.

"Not this maiden's prayer."

It was Lorna Cartright who spoke.

"Why I'm cra-zee about handsome men like him," Charibelle declared.

"If he wasn't a minister—yes," Lorna agreed. "He's about the handsomest cleanest cut young man I've ever seen, but not for me. Ministers aren't modern enough, they haven't the right spirit."

"Why Lorna, ministers do have the right spirit, you know, being Christians and the brother-love stuff and—well, you know."

"Surely I know, Mary—but who wants to live in an atmosphere of piety? The right spirit today is modernism, and ministers are as old fashioned as wax flowers in a parlor."

They laughed at Lorna, but admired her.

Everyone admired Lorna especially the young men.

Minister Impressed

If the Reverend Merton Varney had overheard what Lorna Cartright said about him he would have been distressed for two reasons—he detested to have anyone say that he was a handsome young man, and he was making every effort to avoid the old-fashioned model of a minister—the awfully pious sort who smirked and talked whiningly through their noses. He wanted to be modern. He believed that religion should be as wholesome and as necessary and as natural as a man's breakfast. It wasn't anything to whine over and keep piously glum about.

More than that, during his very first sermon he had noticed Lorna Cartright. He was too clever, too self-possessed and too mentally brilliant to let the sight of her beautiful face rattle him, but she impressed him.

To himself, when he was introduced and he learned that the name was Lorna, he made a terrible pun: his thought was "I've met my Doone." It didn't shock him to realize that the terrible pun had come to him on the Lord's day in the Lord's house.

Merton Varney fell in love with Lorna Cartright, but he was far too wise to let anyone suspect this.

Most of the young men of the parish decided that the "Parson" was all right.

He played football with them that fall.

He took out the Scouts in winter and showed them winter camping tricks they never knew about.

More than that, he approved of dancing at parties and he did not frown on cigaret-smoking among the ladies, providing they were at least 18.

As for bridge, he played a great game. He and Lorna Cartright won prize after prize when they played together.

A few of the older ones in church got together and protested. This new minister was flighty. He danced at parties and he smoked cigars. He played bridge and in the spring he pitched for the local nine and helped to defeat the Millvilles, and when a brawl came up, the young minister took "Bull" Peters, the Millville tough who started the riot, by the nape of his neck and elsewhere and ran him off the ball grounds, and when "Bull" kicked him as soon as his back was turned, the young minister knocked "Bull" so flat and hard that, although the minister helped him up, he ran away like the very devil and had never come to Plainville since to bully the local boys.

Salary Increased

These older church members maintained that he wasn't a man of God.

But the church membership increased 22 per cent, the Sunday school membership was doubled and the wealthy old Jacob King had started attending church and had donated money for a new parish house because, he said, they had got a regular man preaching instead of some white-livered wind-bag.

And so the Rev. Merton Varney not only remained, but had his salary increased.

At once he proposed to Lorna Cartright.

It was a mighty sensible proposal. He wanted to marry her because he loved her and as he had never loved before he didn't believe he would love anyone else.

Lorna was also sensible about it.

"You are a dear, Merton. I'd marry you in a minute if you weren't a minister," she said.

"I can't give this up. Can't you overlook the minister part?"

"We wouldn't get along. I'm too much imbued with the right spirit—modernism—and I'd be too worldly and gay, your parishioners would be shocked and you'd have to move from parish to parish because I use rouge and cigarets and dance and am strictly modern."

The Rev. Merton Varney kept on with his sermons and his parish work just the same. His emotions were his own and no one suspected that he was mighty hard hit over Lorna's decision.

That time he preached and said that he didn't considers the church building to be the Lord's house in the sense of a place where people came just to show a little weekly piety, made quite a stir. Lorna thought he did it to convince her that he was modern and she didn't like it. In truth, he hadn't thought about her at all—he never mixed her with sermons, she mixed with his dreams of the physical side of life.

"Never thought of you when I outlined the sermon, Lorna, not at all. I never mix you with sermons. When I think of you, which is amazingly often, I think of you as my wife, my life pal and the mother of my children."

Lorna Unconvinced

"Are children modern?"

"If you mean having them, they are eternal. If you mean this generation, they are just the same as any other generation. I'm going to propose to you on the Fourth of July picnic."

"Don't, Merton."

"Oh, yes."

That was all that was said, and Lorna was unconvinced.

Many things get to the ears of popular, husky young clergymen. The Rev. Merton Varney heard much and on the night before the Fourth he put on a rough tweed suit, old cap and walking shoes and remained out of doors. He lurked in the vicinity of Mrs. Larcom's house.

There was a sun dial in her yard, a big gate to her fence, a silver reflecting ball on a pedestal and a couple of little statues.

Mrs. Larcom had put out her flagpole ready for the flag in the morning.

The dear old lady was sitting in her living room, which was darkened. She hoped that if any wild boys started to steal her gate or trample her flower beds, her own gentle voice would deter them.

Pudge Hanlon, 20, six-foot and husky, came along with his pal, Spiney Smith, another heavyweight. Four others were with them. They were celebrating.

They leaned against the Larcom fence and drank from a flask, then they lifted off the gate and two boys went in for one of the statues.

They recognized his voice.

"Come now, parson, be regular tonight—get the right spirit of the holiday," Pudge said. "Get the statues and benches, trying to shove him aside, boys," he ordered.

"Don't touch a thing," the clergyman ordered.

"Now, parson, we don't want to rough up a good guy like you, but we will if you don't fade away—we're full of Fourth of July spirit."

The Rev. Merton Varney grabbed Pudge and Spiney and bumped their heads together violently. Four others rushed him, and he did the same to them. Then he took the flask from Pudge and smashed it.

"Come inside," he said.

Modern Enough

They hung back.

"Must I beat you saps unconscious and drag you in?"

They went inside.

Sweet old Mrs. Larcom brought out cake and someone in her kitchen brought out lemonade.

"Here's the flag Mrs. Larcom will put out in the morning, boys. She's celebrating the birth of her nation. See that old portrait? That was her great-great-grandfather, who was killed at Bennington in the Revolution. That picture is of her father, who was killed at Malvern Hill. Do you know—"

"Civil War, sir," said one of the boys.

"Mr. Larcom lost a leg at San Juan Hill, and was an invalid all his life. He died 20 years ago—shall I go on, Mrs. Larcom?"

"Yes," she said.

The parson took down a photograph. "You remember him? Billy Larcom? He's buried in France. Here's a V. C. and Croix de Guerre, do you—"

"And this lady is going to fly the stars and stripes tomorrow morning for the country that took her son, invalided her husband, took her father and others—that is the Fourth of July spirit," he said. "Now, if you think you can honor your country better by destroying the property of Gold-Star Mothers—"

"Aw, say, Parson, we—we get you."

Pudge was actually sniveling.

They went out. Mrs. Larcom called the clergyman back. When he got into the room she was gone but Lorna Cartwright stood there, crying.

"Merton," she said, "I was out in the other room. You—you are wonderful—modern enough for me—"

The clock struck midnight.

"It's the Fourth now—keep your word, propose," she said.

Dear old Mrs. Lascom peeped into the room and decided that ministers could kiss a girl just as well, if not better, than any other fellow.

Fine Thrift Record of Pittsburgh Children

Pittsburgh parents, and citizens generally, may well be proud of the thrift of the city's school children, as disclosed in the report of the Board of Public Education on deposits in the school banking system. The youngsters have $2,118,000 on deposit.

Impressive as the total is, the most important feature of these savings is that they have been accumulated by the regular setting aside of small sums. It is persistent, methodical saving, rather than the depositing of large sums, that makes for thrift and financial independence. The child who deposits 10 cents regularly every week is more likely to "get ahead" than one who puts, say, $10 out of his Christmas gifts in the bank but does not bother about saving money during the rest of the year.

Pittsburgh has always been well to the fore among the cities of the country in school savings. Perhaps our thrift is an inheritance from the frugal Scotch-Irish and Germans who settled Pittsburgh. Whatever the source, it has now spread to Pittsburgh children of every racial origin and is one of their most admirable traits.

Exploration May Be Conducted in Back Yard

The announcement is made that Rudyerd and Laura Boulton, of the Carnegie Museum staff, will leave Monday on a scientific expedition which will take them into an unexplored region in Portuguese West Africa. Many, of an adventurous spirit, will wish they, too, might have the opportunity to explore unknown regions and make contributions to knowledge. An article by Prof. Samuel H. Williams, of the University of Pittsburgh, in the current number of the "Annals of the Carnegie Museum" suggests that the opportunity may be found in one's own back yard.

Prof. Williams' article deals with the mammals indigenous to Pennsylvania, of which he lists 63 species. They are worth knowing. They include the oppossum, three kinds of moles, five kinds of shrews, nine kinds of bats, the bear, the raccoon, three kinds of weasels, two kinds of minks, the skunk, the otter, two kinds of foxes, the wildcat, the deer, the groundhog, two kinds of chipmunks, two kinds of red squirrels, two kinds of fox squirrels, two kinds of flying squirrels, two kinds of gray squirrels, the beaver, four kinds of deer-mice, the cave rat, the red-backed mouse, the lemming-mouse, the mole-mouse, the meadow-mouse, the muskrat, three kinds of jumping mice, the black rat, the brown rat, the house mouse, the porcupine, two kinds of rabbits, and the hare.

Now Prof. Williams tells us there is much to be learned about these animals, and particularly about the little ones. Specimens of rats, mice, shrews, bats, flying squirrels and moles are desired from every section. Data concerning the feeding and nesting habits of shrews and information about the migration of bats are particularly needed, he says, because of all native mammals these are the least known.

If you live in the suburbs and have a spacious back yard you probably will not have to go far to find shrews, moles and other tiny mammals. To get the information that Prof. Williams solicits concerning their habits will require long and patient observation.

It will be no easy task. But, then, it is no easy task to explore the African jungle, either.

And it is also to be borne in mind that the greater the difficulty in making a contribution to science the greater the glory.

Pennsylvania Railroad Owes Much to Pittsburgh

The suggestion in the Sun-Telegraph that the Pennsylvania Railroad should electrify its tracks here as a return for the many favors that have been extended the Pennsylvania by the city of Pittsburgh has raised the question: What has the city done for the railroad?

For one thing, it has given the Pennsylvania numerous valuable tracts of land, some of which, although no longer used for railroad purposes, are still retained by the company. An example may be found in land near the Aldine Theater which was in litigation recently. The city vacated a street there and turned it over to the Pennsylvania in the middle of the last century, and the railroad still owns it.

To induce the Pennsylvania to take its tracks off Liberty avenue downtown, where freight trains were run, to the great inconvenience of the public, long after Pittsburgh had attained metropolitan size, the city gave the railroad valuable tracts of land for its Duquesne way elevated line and freight warehouses.

Many streets are being vacated to permit the Pennsylvania to carry out the plans for its new terminals.

While the Pennsylvania has, of course, given benefits in return for these gifts, a balancing of the accounts will show the Pennsylvania indebted to Pittsburgh, not Pittsburgh to the railroad.

And that is just one reason why the Pennsylvania's complete disregard of Pittsburgh, while electrifying 426 miles of its trackage in the Philadelphia district and in other cities, must be branded as unfair.

Another reason why its failure to do away with the smoke nuisance here, while showing such consideration for eastern cities, is unfair, is that the Pennsylvania derives a very large part of its revenue from this district.

If the Pennsylvania feels that gratitude and good will should play no part in its dealings with municipalities, it might at least consider the personal welfare of its officials, directors, stockholders and employes. Two directors of the Pennsylvania, Howard Heinz and R. B. Mellon, several of the executive officers, and thousands of employes and stockholders live in and near Pittsburgh.

How much more pleasant a dwelling place it would be for them if the railroad, by substituting electric for steam locomotives, as it has done in the Philadelphia and New York areas, would cease to defile our atmosphere, cease to throw grime and cinders on our streets, cease to smudge our houses and soil our clothing!

King For a Day -:- -:- By Hal Coffman

Organized gangsters of today levy tribute among any and all business men where they think they can get away with it. There are many ways they can terrorize a manufacturer, contractor or anyone else they pick out. Bootleggers, dishonest judges and those in any so-called "Rackets" must chip in their bit to the crooks "higher up." If they don't they are "put on the spot" or "taken for a ride." The underworld plutocrats are having their day—yes, King for a Day—but how long will they last? Not long—if history repeats, and it usually does. H. C.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Coming to a Slow Boil

The administration's Homeric struggle with Claudius Huston is a corroboration of an old political snapper; few die and none resign.

For some reason the Republican National Committee has admired Mr. Huston's hair so much that they would like to see his scalp on display for the edification of the many.

"Bugs" Baer

But Mr. Huston continued to cling to his swivel chair through the happy merger of personal integrity and centrifugal force.

There is no doubt that the national chairman is both upright and honest.

And those two ingredients are enough to embarrass any administration.

All this trouble has distorted Mr. Huston's outlook for 1932. He cannot look forward because he is too busy looking sideways.

He has had so many harpoons thrown at him that he is almost a brother-in-law to Moby Dick.

Whether Mr. Huston has resigned, will resign or will continue to march out in a body to lunch and dinner, is merely an indication of Republican apprehension for the consolidated future.

The Democrats have been gnawing away at the superstructure of the too well-oiled machinery and are claiming everything in sight and throwing rocks at the rest.

The Republicans are concentrating on eliminating the Reds this season. But if a Soviet agitator looks red to Washington then a prominent Democrat must resemble a huge ball of flame.

From now on, you are going to see all the fireworks you didn't see on the Fourth. There are going to be plenty of resignations. And every so often, one will be the right guy.

The advance symptoms are strong for a switch in political chauffeuring for 1932. The man in the rumble seat is going to make a grab for the steering wheel.

While the Republicans have organized themselves down to a whisper, the Democrats have always missed that fine point which makes a mustard plaster so dependable. And that's the power of cohesion, co-operation and an ability to cling to the other man.

Every Democrat you meet is a fine orator, but he wants to climb up on a stump and talk the handle off a mop. The secret of Republican success is simple.

While the Democrats are talking straight from the shoulder the Republicans are conversing off the back of their hands.

ARCHIMEDES

By Archibald Henderson

In the midst of countless inventions for our utility and convenience: the screw, the balance, the pulley, innumerable devices for multiplying power—we seldom if ever stop to consider our debt to the original inventor of these devices. This was Archimedes, regarded as the most perfect type of scientific intellect that the world has ever seen. He was a brilliant theorist, and demonstrated that he was probably the greatest mathematician who had lived up to his time.

Moreover, he was a genius as an inventor, who knew how to put his recondite theories into practice. He cared little about the practical part of invention, as compared with his deep love for theorizing and abstractions. But his genius was perforce turned into practical channels by the complaints of the very practical monarch, Hiero, King of Syracuse. As we learn from Plutarch, Archimedes regarded his inventions as among the amusements of geometry, the diversions of science. "Nor had he gone so far," says Plutarch, "but at the pressing instances of King Hiero, who entreated him to turn his art from abstracted notions to matters of sense, and to make his reasonings more intelligible to the generality of men, applying them t. th. ures of common life."

Archimedes was born in the then great city of Syracuse, in Sicily, in the year 287 B. C. His father was a geometer, and he grew up under royal patronage, deeply pondering fundamental geometrical problems and remaining in constant correspondence with the leading geometers of Syracuse. He was the lovable type of absent-minded professor, who nevertheless must have been exceedingly trying to his wife. Like Einstein and Newton, he would become so exceedingly absorbed in his reflections and calculations that he would forget all about dinner and would not come when called. Every schoolboy knows that he hit upon a great discovery while in the bath and, forgetting for the nonce his nudity, rushed out into the street, crying "Eureka!" which means, "I have found it!"

Archimedes discovered the principle of the lever, one of the most powerful of all instruments in engineering, architecture and industry. He invented pulleys and windlasses, the water screw, the endless screw which is found today in high-powered motor cars. He invented various hydraulic and compressed air machines. It has not been disproved that by means of a great burning glass he set on fire part of the Roman fleet besieging Syracuse. As he was pondering some geometrical figures drawn in the sand he was slain by a Roman soldier whom he peremptorily ordered to get out of his light!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I've known plenty of men, and plenty of women,
And I can't, for the life of me, discover
Any essential difference between them.

One hears of man nature and of woman nature,
But actually there is only human nature,
With its identical gobs of cussedness.
Sometimes that human nature wear plus fours
And sometimes it wears teddy bears;
But beneath the lingerie
They're all the same.

Of course men and women
Have learned different tricks,
According to their jobs and environment,
And, because their tricks were different,
They grew to believe that
They themselves were different.
And suspicion arose between them, and fear,
As though they were separate species of animal.

Then out of that fear for each other,
They invented countless schemes,
Whereby women thought that they
Were putting something over on men
And men thought that they
Were putting something over on women.
But actually there is no need
For all these manoeuvrings, because,
If we'd stop cutting up and act natural
We'd very soon discover that men
And women are all of a piece.

Men claim credit for courage
And women claim credit for purity,
But, taking 'em by the large,
Women are as brave as men
And men are as pure as women.
And when it comes to cruelty
And laziness and lies
And similar shinannigans,
Neither sex has a thing on the other.

As for women being mysterious—piffle!
We all are mysterious, in a sense.
But there is no magic about women
When men do not also possess,
It is true that women make
Some mighty funny passes
And put over some swift ones,
But that is because men
Think they're boojums,
And so let them get by with murder.

But women are not boojums—
They're just humans,
Taking advantage of any old opening
To get their stuff across—
Exactly as men would do
If other men gave them the chance.
Nine-tenths of our mutual misery
Isn't founded on any Natural difference between the sexes—
But on this hopped-up idea
That we've gotta act different in order
To qualify as hes or shes,
And I am convinced that there would be
A tremendous amount of relief
If we'd let the girls be boys
And the boys be girls
Whenever their fancy dictated,
As nature intended they should.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

There was a woman at the grocery store giving the grocer a piece of her mind.

"See here," she says, "how I spoiled my dress on the paint on your door!"

"Oh, I'm sorry," says the grocer, "but I had a big sign there that said Fresh Paint. I reckon you didn't see it?"

"Sure, I saw it. I been seeing a sign here that says Fresh Eggs for the last three years, too, but I never seen any truth in it. How can a lady believe what the signs say in a joint like this?"

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

The Dreamer

Life has denied me much for which I hoped.
The realms of beauty and old sages' lore;
Down barren pathways I have sometimes groped
Whereon, it seemed, no foot had trod before.
As lonely and untenanted were they
As some bleak house deserted through long years,
A house where stealthy shadows creep by day
And raindrops on the windows fall like tears.
Life has been niggard; but, ignoring him,
I fill my days with fancy's shining gold;
Then all my hours sparkle to the brim
And overflow with wealth they cannot hold.
Love has been cold, Joy turned her face aside;
But I, the dreamer, will not be denied!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

The difference seems due to the relative rate of thyroid growth. If it grows fast relatively to the body, the necessary concentration of hormone in the blood will be reached when the animal is small; if its growth is slow, the tadpole's existence will be prolonged.

We can prove this by actually altering the thyroid's relative growth-rate. The thyroid hormone seems to owe many of its properties to the presence in it of iodine in much greater abundance than in any other part of the body. Iodine is very scarce in nature, and the growth of the thyroid is limited by the amount it can pick up.

H. G. Wells

Give it more than usual, as by emersing tadpoles in weak iodine solution, and it will pick up more, grow faster, and so cause metamorphosis at a lower body-size than usual. And the precocity of metamorphosis is roughly proportional to the strength of the iodine solution.

The thyroid is the main gland concerned with metamorphosis; but the pituitary—the ductless gland that lies under the brain and just over the roof of the mouth—is also essential. In the absence of the pre-pituitary or anterior lobe, tadpoles will not metamorphose; and examination shows that their thyroids have failed to grow to a tenth of their normal size.

The pre-pituitary is needed to make the thyroid grow—a striking example of the interlocking action of the different ductless glands. But, in addition, pre-pituitary itself exerts a direct influence upon metamorphosis, injections of it causing even thyroidless animals to transform: it is, however, far less potent than the thyroid. Thus pituitary here reinforces thyroid both directly and indirectly.

Finally—a strange fact—the other or posterior lobe of the pituitary (post-pituitary) works against metamorphosis. Injections of this, in axolotls, for instance, are antagonistic to the effects of thyroid and pre-pituitary, and can prevent the animal's transformation.

This is interesting as evidence of at least a partial antagonism between the two halves of the pituitary. It has also had practical results, for the investigation of the reason why certain extracts of pre-pituitary had no effect on axolotls, revealed the fact that if the two parts of the pituitary are not separated as soon as possible after death, post-pituitary hormone leaks into the pre-pituitary there to work against its hormone.

And this has led to improved methods and the preparation for the first time of really pure pre-pituitary extracts for medical use.

The transformation of polly-wogs is not so trivial a process as it seemed. Processes are there at work which are of the utmost importance in our own lives; but in the tadpole they are more readily accessible to experiment.

The specific sensitiveness of different tissues, their reactions to different intensities of one and the same substance; the synchronizing of many processes by the aid of one hormone; the shifting of the time of some development crisis by altering the relative rates of two processes; the interaction of different ductless glands, different parts of that "chemical skeleton" whose general plan runs through all vertebrates just as definitely as does the plan of their true mechanical skeleton—in all these ways the study of tadpoles has shed new and valuable light on general problems.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

LONDON—Just as Samuel Pepys, the diarist, was the typical Londoner, so is The Strand the city's typical street. It is ugly, narrow, harsh. And yet somehow we all fall under its spell. Like Broadway it is despised and reviled but remains another cross-roads of the world.

The charm of the Strand to me is in its sudden escapes. One minute you may be a part of its crowded clatter but by ducking into any of those innumerable alleys you may be on the bank of the Thames, the Adelphi Terrace, among the flowers of Covent Garden or in the brooding quiet of Essex street.

The Strand is the promenade for foreigners—especially Americans. The great hotels, like the Savoy, cafes like Romano's, and theaters, like the Gaity, tend to cosmopolitanize the district. True Londoners look upon it as a yokel lane but on an evening out they always visit the Strand.

This morning I idled about Charing Cross station in a walk along the Strand. Depots always fascinate me. Everybody is on tiptoe of expectancy and under the sway of excitement. From there I wandered among rare old houses in Adelphi Terrace. No house in the Terrace has ever changed.

Garrick died in No. 4 so a tablet states. Disraeli claimed No. 2, James street, in the terrace, as his birthplace. At No. 2 Robert street, Thomas Hood caroled his "Song of the Shirt." All houses suggest Adam ceilings and fireplaces and furniture by Sheraton and Hepplewhite. You are hushed by an intangible restraint.

Somehow in browsing about my mind was filled with thoughts of men like Pepys, who toyed with goblets of incomparable claret, had an appraising eye for a pretty face, fondled rare books and chatted before huge open fireplaces. For men in gloomy old London have always lived with a superb gusto.

It is only the gaudy omnibuses that relieve the gravity of London streets. Without them, there would be no color. On one coming down the hill from Charing Cross to Whitehall I recognized my wife and trotted along to catch up with her. Failing, I yelled "Yoo hoo!" which seemed vastly to amuse pedestrians.

Fleet street is London's Park Row and is hung heavily with the aroma of printer's ink. To those of us accustomed to the quick gait of American newspaper work the tempo of Fleet street seems leisurely and obsolete. The terms "scoop" or "beat" suggest the chill of a death's head at the feast. The London reporter is a true "gentleman of the press." He carries engraved calling cards, sports a lapel flower and upon auspicious occasions dons a tall silk topper. Yet those of us who have spent formative years pulling doorbells and asking impertinent questions are impressed with its journalistic dignity as stately indeed as one of Sir Christopher Wren's local spires.

The headline hunters do not have to swipe furtive peeks from the first pages while passing newstands. The latest news of the day is proclaimed by men encased turtle-like in bill-boards who walk along the curb slowly with such red banners as "Murder in Clapham" or "Lady Astor Rebuked," etc. Incidentally rebuking Lady Astor appears to be one of the indoor sports in Parliament.

No visit to London is up to snuff without a visit to George B. Shaw or the Marble Arch entrance of Hyde Park where political firebrands blow off steam. For a small fee they may mount the portable platform and relieve themselves forensically of their pet grievances. One while I was there was "laying out" Premier McDonald and took a shot at the United States with: "H'america, what is she doin?" I am cabling this evening to find out now that my curiosity is so aroused.

It is no easy trick to get lemonade unbottled in London, but with the usual flair for solving problems that do not matter I have found a way. One asks for a "lemon squash." They bring you a lemon cut in halves, a bucket of ice, a lemon squeezer, spoon, sugar, straws—in fact everything but a passport—and you make it yourself. I not only made lemonade, but removed ink stains from my finger with the rinds.

At breakfast this morning in one of the hurry up places on Jermyn street the waitress seemed surprised at my heavy order. I got and devoured part of it, but the rest never came, although I waited and waited. I don't know what happened unless they figured I had eaten enough.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Have you always waited throughout your life until you might feel sure of success before you entered upon any undertaking?

Because of this cautious streak you have hesitated about carrying out plans by which you might have benefited greatly.

Did any one ever take a chance on you when you were hired for work?

There is always an element of possible failure in ventures and the men who make them.

If the men who have employed you had to try you out in every respect before they would pay you, you might be out of employment most of the time.

You have to be willing to take a chance, as they have on you.

If you won't take a chance on anything, why should others take a chance on you and your methods of doing things?

Of course, certain work is routine, but exceptional success means that some one must have initiative and courage to try, without guaranteed results.

You may be influenced by pride—don't want your friends to know that you tried and failed so you let fear and pride act as a stumbling block in advancement.

If you know you are incompetent, that is one thing; but if you are reasonably sure of yourself don't let what others might say retard your efforts.
